IMPLICATING WAY WITH NISSLY DEATH

(Continued from page 1) Nissley's death, Way came there late in the evening when he was not driving cattle. The Nissley family thought very little of it and handed him the usual treat. At the time of Nissley's strange death Way was not even suspected but when he confessed to the Keller murder, and the fact that he went to the Nissley home at night with no other reason than for "ests," and Nissley's death being almost of the same nature as Keller's, it leaves evidence enough for at least a thoro investigation.

Up to this time Way has not been questioned by any one relative to being connected with the Nissley death.

The Stauffer Robbery

Since being lodged in the County jail Way has confessed to the robbery committed in the home of Miss Stauffer in the Winter of 1920 while she was in Florida. He confessed to having stole numerous articles, among which was a 32-calibre revolver. This same revolver was later sold to a local resident and borrowed by Way on the day of the Keller death. It was returned by Way to the owner next morning and contained one empty shell and all the other loaded ones given with the gun the day previous. The bullet that killed Keller was a 32-calibre. After much difficulty the revolver was procured by the State Police and is now in the hands of the authorities.

The Rheems Affair

When Way was taken into custody about fifty per cent. of our people laughed, feeling certain he was innocent, but since his confession, can be led to believe almost anything. The authorities are also investigating the murder of Absalom Emsweiler colored, of Rheems, who died as the result of wounds he suffered at the hands of several negroes who attacked and robbed him near the stone quarries at Rheems, in 1918.

At the time of the Emsweiler murder, Way was arrested on suspicion but later released because of lack of any stronger evidence than the fact that he might have shared in the loot obtained from the murdered man's pockets.

The district attorney is confident that the state police gathered enough evidence against Way to convict him of the Keller murder. But the official investigation which has just been started in regard to connecting Way with the Nissley murder is far from having reached a point where a formal charge would be justified.

AN INTERESTING REPORT BY STATE HEALTH DEPT.

With 207 cases of typhoid fever in June, 1922, as against 165 in the same month of 1921, and 164 in 1920 special effort should be made for early diagnosis of this disease and for the location of the source of infection. The commonest source of infection is drinking water.

In Mount Lebanon, Allegheny county, a spring used for drinking purposes more than 60 years, according to old residents, was purchased by a business man because of its abundant flow of pure water. Shortly thereafter his two daughters fell ill, but he refused to accept a diagnosis of typhoid fever, insisting they had pneumonia. The attending physician, his daughter, and two other children become ill and laboratory tests proved typhoid fever.

The spring water was tested and found to contain sewage germs. The owner was requested to close the spring for public use. This he did, placing a padlock on the springhouse door, but continued using the water himself, claiming that since it had been used for 60 years it was good enough for him. He joined the victim of typhoid developing a most severe case made worse by intestinal hemorrhages.

Dr. J. Moore Campbell, of the State Health Department, said the immediate closing of this spring prevented a wide-spread epidemic, but such a measure is only possible when the physician recognizes early that he is dealing with typhoid, fever, thus making possible prompt location of the source from which the infection comes. "Many epidemics of typhoid could have been prevented had the first cases been promptly diagnosed", he continued. "Early diagnosis makes early search for the cause possible and the sooner it is located and eliminated the fewer people will be exposed to it.

"Any case of continued fever without evident cause should be looked upon as a probable case of typhoid fever, and the physician should employ every means for reaching quickly a definite conclusion. There are three laboratory tests which help him to decide. A blood culture is the most desirable one because it gives the earliest information. Nine times out of ten the typhoid germs can be found in the blood during the first week of illness. In the stool they cannot be found with any certainty until the second or third week, and the Widal test is not positive until the 10th day of fever or later. Since during the first week the patient presents no symptoms exclusively pertaining to typhoid fever, blood culture is the only means of diagnosing without delay."

Dr. Edward Bartin, State Health Commissioner, is urging blood culture as a means of early diagnosis of typhoid, and at the recent instruction camp at Mont Alto the county medical directors of the state were drilled in blood culture technique, not only that they may take these specimens themselves but that they may be able to instruct physicians in their county who may apply for their assistance.

When the blood is taken and sent to the state laboratory, prompt examination and report will be made. Tubes for taking the blood can be had by applying to the Division of Supplies, State Department of Health, Harrisburg.

Stocks of beef in cold storage on June 1, 1922, were but little over half those in storage last year and only slightly more than one-third the five-year-average stock, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Strawberries arrived on the New York market at the rate of two to three hundred cars a week during May, the United States Department of Agriculture reports. The shipments from all producing sections filled about 3,000 cars a week.

The Friendly Path

By Walter L. Robinson

YOUR OWN DOORSTEP

Sweep your own doorstep! It always is easier to find fault with others than with oneself. And it is just as true that when one goes around looking for trouble, he's likely to miss more serious difficulties of his own making.

Neglect is never excusable. If one is fair to his fellows, as well as himself, he will always have his own house in order before he starts out to make others clean house. If one wishes to find fault with the treatment accorded him by his fellows, he should survey his own record of actions toward his fellowmen.

Many persons are constantly making their own lives miserable and adding to the sorrow of the world by complaining that "the world is going to the bow-wows," and contending that nothing short of another deluge will bring sinfulness to an end. They overlook entirely all the many good things and good deeds which are constantly being brought about by self-sacrificing individuals. Because people spend so much time discussing the sordid side of life, they come to think little of the better side.

With all the disappointing evidences of lawlessness and disregard for moral laws and modesty, it is still a fact that the vast majority are clean-minded, hard-working, law-abiding, God-fearing men and women. If they were not, there would be nothing new in the wicked pathways about which we hear so much. If the majority were following the wrong trail the story of sin and misery and missteps would attract but passing attention. The exception, as usual, proves the rule.

If all those who are worried about the "tendencies" of the age would keep their own course straight and would try to encourage others by their cheerful examples, there would be less sin in the world. For there are few who intentionally take the wrong path.

One always will make his own life happier and the world more cheerful if he keeps his thoughts and words focussed on the better side.

It never pays to play with fire or to occupy one's time reading trash.

And So They Parted, She flushed embarrassedly as she caught sight of him at a party. "Harold Moonleigh!" she murmured. "Poor fellow. How broken up he was over my refusal of him." Moonleigh wrinkled his forehead as he caught her looking at him. "Now where the devil have I seen that woman before?" he asked himself irritably. - American Legion Weekly.
