

Boonful of Purity

One uses so little baking powder in comparison with the other materials used in baking that it always pays to use the best.

For making the finest and most wholesome food there is no substitute for ROYAL Baking Powder. It is made from Cream of Tartar derived from grapes and is absolutely pure.

NEW ONE FOR POLICE

One Spills Victim With Crutch While the Other Goes Through His Pockets and Relieves Him of Valuables.

New York.—John Rozwell, thirty-three years old, of 191 Allen street, was held by Magistrate Douglas in Essex Market court in $10,000 bail for the action of the grand jury on charges of robbery and felonious assault.

Rozwell, who is minus his right leg, is said to have held up and robbed John Ketel, forty-five, a house wrecker of 45 Allen street, with the assistance of another cripple, a man with his left arm missing.

Ketel said he was passing through Hester street when Rozwell thrust a crutch between his legs, spilling him on the pavement. As he went down, he says, the other cripple pounced on him and made a narrow gauge search for his pockets, bringing forth a consumptive roll of $11.

Beats Him With Crutch. In the meantime Rozwell, as a means of discouraging Ketel from arising, was beating a devil's tattoo on his skull with the half-moon end of a crutch.

When Ketel felt his roll slipping from him, possibly forever, he opened his mouth and released one of the loudest screams heard in many a long day in Hester street, where the loud lunged screech bulled its nest and rears its young.

The agonized accents brought Patrolman Dan Lynch on the run. As Daniel breezed into the picture, the man with the one arm and the taking ways dropped out of it.

Rozwell, too, thought it was time that he was going. He started away on one crutch at remarkable speed and was making good headway when his crutch skidded on an empty lemon skin and clattered across the pavement into the gutter.

Goes After Hop Record. With Fate calling the odds on him at a thousand to one, Johnny Rozwell took a chance. Men have scaled their way to victory. Others have vaulted, run and jumped. Standing there with one leg, both crutches gone, Johnny stepped out after a new record. He was going to hop to freedom.

It was a memorable event for the length of a block. No one was on hand to time him or to scale the swing of the arcs he described. Had there been there's small doubt that Searched His Pockets. Johnny today would be acclaimed the champion all round outdoor one-legged hopper of the civilized world.

While Dan Lynch was conveying Johnny Rozwell to jail an ambulance surgeon from Bellevue hospital was placing 11 stitches in Ketel's scalp—one stitch for every dollar he had lost.

MOTHER SEES BOY DROWN

Parent Sees Body of Son, Two, Who Lagged Behind, Float Helplessly Down River.

White Plains, N. Y.—While a mother and daughter sat idly on the bank of the Sawmill river at Thornwood, a few miles from here, awaiting the return of the two-year-old son of the family, who had lagged behind during a walk through the woods, they saw a body floating down with the tide.

The mother, Mrs. Rose Vesel, New York city, screamed, waded into the river to her waist, and brought the body of her son, Patrick, to the bank.

Both mother and daughter worked feverishly over the body, but to no avail. A physician was called and he used a pump, but efforts to revive the boy failed. It is thought that the child slipped while playing on the bank.

TOBACCO UNDER ODD NAMES

When Herb Was New It Had Various Appellations, as Also Did the Potato.

Among its thousands of illustrations on wood in a work on the "General History of Plants, Gathered by John Gerard, Master in Chirurgie," and first printed in London toward the end of the sixteenth century, was one of the then still new herbs, "tabaco, or hembane of Peru," according to the text. "The people of America call it Petun; some, as Loebel and Pena, have given it these Latin names: Sacra Herba, Sancta Herba, Sona Sancta Infernum; and others, as Dodonaeus, call it Hyoscyamus Peruvianus, or Hembane of Peru; Nicolaus Monardus names it Tabacum. Of some it is called Nicotiana."

There was an illustration of another plant, also then still new—the potato, "by some called Skyrrrets of Peru, generally by us called Potatus. Cuslus called it Battata, Camotes, Amotes and Ignames; in English, potatoes, potatus and potades. The Indians do call this plant pappus." The potatoes, the book informed the reader, was to be eaten "toasted in the embers and sopped in wine." It was also made into preserves, "no lesse toothsome, wholesome and delicate than the flesh of quinces." Its use, however, in Burgundy—"where they call them Indian artichokes"—was forbidden, according to Bauhine, because it induced leprosy. The sweet potato and the common potato were pictured as belonging to the same family.

REFUSED TO BOW TO KING

English Pin Manufacturers, Centuries Ago, Shut Down Before They Would Obey Royal Mandate.

What would happen in the United States, where two thousand tons of pins are turned out every year, if all the pin factories closed down, as once they did in England? In the thirty-fourth year of Henry VIII complaints were made of the inferior quality of the pins supplied to the public, and in consequence parliament enacted that none should be sold "unless they be double-headed, and have the heads soldered faste to the shanke of the pyne, etc." The result was that the public could obtain no pins until the act was repealed three years later.

The act of repeal, having rectified the former act, pathetically admits that the attempt to control the pin industry had proved a failure. "For as much since the making of said act there hath been scarcity of pyines within this realme, and the kynges liege people have not been well nor completely served of such pyiners nor as likely to be served. . . . In consideration whereof it male please the kyng that it may be adjuaged and demed from hensforth frustrated and nullified and to be repealed forever."

Breeding of Buffalo Mystery.

Whatever of romance in regard to the American buffalo may have vanished with the passing of the old West, the life history and breeding of these animals are still a mystery to the biologist.

Just how old a buffalo gets to be is not known. As far as the records show, the Methuselah of the species is one in Paris which is said to be thirty-one years old. The oldest buffaloes in the government herds are a venerable cow on the Wichita preserve, now twenty-four years old, and Kallisp Chief, the leader of the Montana herd, now twenty years old.

It is known that the cows begin to breed in their third year. When they stop is a biological mystery. There is record of a cow breeding in her twenty-sixth year and one on the Wichita preserve had a calf at the age of twenty-two. The normal number of calves and the exact ratio of sexes are likewise unknown.

Snails Fed on Grapevine Leaves.

The choicest of edible French snails is the Escargot-de-Bourgogne, or the Bourgignon Ruge, bred in the vineyards of Burgundy for the French market, and fed only on the tender leaves of the grapevine. This escargot, baked with that delicious stuffing which the French are wont to crown him, is, it is said, delicious when one has got over the gulp that arises at the idea of eating a snail. Or eaten from a silver bowl (with a silver three-pronged fork as a means of conveying the long gelatinous thing to the mouth) and brought to the table very hot and swimming in a sauce in which hard and onions and garlic seem to be the principal components, the Escargot-de-Bourgogne is a dainty to remember.

In many districts in England are still descendants of the snails the Romans ate.

Remarkable Micrographic Feats.

Micrographers have vied with one another in the execution of the most minute specimens of writing. The Ten Commandments have been engraved in characters so fine that they could be stamped on the side of a nickel, and on several occasions the Lord's Prayer has been engraved on the side of a gold dollar, the diameter of which is six-tenths of an inch.

There is an account of a "rare piece of work brought to pass by Pezer Bales, an Englishman and clerk of chancery. It was the whole Bible in an English walnut no bigger than a hen's egg. The nut holder the book; there are as many leaves in this little book as in the great Bible and he hath written as much in one of his little leaves as a great leaf of the Bible."
