HONEY-BEE WILL PAY GOOD MONEY

Product Has Held Higher Level of Prices During Past Two Years Than Any Other.

FIT INTO GENERAL PROGRAM

Busy Little Insects Do Not Require Expensive Equipment and Require Very Little Attention—Keep Watch on Queen.

The lowly honey-bee, long since a familiar sight on the average farm, is coming back again. It has justified itself, not only in the eye of the faddist, but in the eye of the farmer.

Honey has held a higher level of prices the past two years than almost any farm product that can be named. It has done this in spite of the slump in sugar prices, in spite of the fact that more stands of bees are kept on farms today than for some years past, and in spite of the fact that last year was a tremendous favorable season and there was an unheard of flow of honey.

Fit in Farm Program.

Bees fit into the general farm program in an admirable way. To those who are unfamiliar with them a few of their advantages may be profitably pointed out. In the first instance, they require no special ground. A small space in a corner of the orchard will take care of them in excellent shape. They do not require expensive housing or equipment, although they must be given proper hives to work in for the best results. They do not require any care. They feed themselves and gather their honey from sources which otherwise would be lost. You have to buy no feed for them.

Require Little Care.

They require slight attention. During the swarming period, if they are properly handled, according to the latest plans, they will not cause the least trouble. Experienced beekeepers are giving their new swarms easily and in a period of a few minutes. Of course, they keep an eye on the bees and know what to do and just how to do it. They do not let them take to the air and then set up a barrage of yells and noise from tin pans and kettles. By watching the swarm and catching the queen when the hive

OLD AND WARY ANIMALS ARE HARD TO TRAP OR SHOOT

It is one thing to hunt predatory animals in practically virgin territory, and make a spectacular killing, and quite another to go into a district where only the wicked old offenders that have eluded everybody are left to catch. Hunter John N. Martin was sent by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture to some sheep ranges near Plainview, S. Dak., adjoining the Cheyenne Indian Reservation, and found that during the preceding winter and spring the country has been hunted and trapped over by bounty hunters, with the result that all pups and young animals, or those easy to take, were gone; sheep losses, nevertheless, were occurring constantly.

Working steadily for two and a half months, Hunter Martin took 35 coyotes and 2 bobcats, all old animals. About two-thirds of them bore evidence of having been in traps from which they had escaped, or of having been shot and wounded at some previous time. In addition to this kill, Martin reported that 59 poisoned bates were taken. The bounty system has been abandoned in many places as a result of demonstrations by the Biological Survey, as it has been found that better results in stopping live-stock losses are obtained when a hunter is hired to give all his time to hunting, trapping and poisoning and is held responsible for destroying the actual live-stock killers.

Re-arrangement of kitchen lightens housewife's tasks. New equipment is not always required to make home kitchens more convenient and less tiring to work in, says a report to the United States Department of Agriculture on extension-agent work. Much can be done by re-arranging the equipment already on hand, such as grouping objects commonly used in the preparation of food, or those used for washing or storing dishes, or articles belonging to the cleaning outfit. In many cases the attention of the housewife is drawn to the need of doing work requiring a good light by a window, or by having a good suspended light at night. One widely adopted improvement is that of giving old floor an easily cleaned surface. A number of simple contrivances can be made at home to lighten the housework, and frequently the farmer himself will assist by building shelves, a folding ironing board, dresser, wheel tray, and other labor-saving conveniences.

Improvements in farm kitchens are being carried on in practically all the States. Last year, through demonstrations given by extension workers, over 21,000 families are reported as adopting suggestions regarding home arrangement and management; 7,000 kitchens were rearranged, 5,000 water systems installed, 3,000 washing machines and 4,000 steam-pressure cookers purchased, 65,000 homes screened, 4,000 septic tanks installed, and 7,000 lighting systems placed in farm homes.

One secret of the great success of the rodent control work carried on by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture in Wyoming and other States, in cooperation with the extension forces of the State, is the fact that individuals who labor to assist in Federal State work want to be paid. In most cases the Government has no funds available to pay for the work. However, this value of the Government's money is needed for

High Lights on Highways

The Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture states that there are enough motor vehicles in the United States to take the entire population for a ride at one time.

How climate affects the highway working season is shown by the fact that grading can be done on 100 days of the year in western Oregon, 110 in Maine, 260 in Maryland, and 300 in several of the Southern States.

CLUB BOYS AND GIRLS TAKE PART IN HEALTH CONTEST

Baby contests have been popular for a long time, but it remained for boys' and girls' club workers of Iowa to institute an adolescent health contest. Physicians maintain that attention to health is often neglected during the adolescent period, although more important than in infancy when instinctive precautions are almost always taken. The idea of having such a contest occurred to the State club leader, according to the report received by the United States Department of Agriculture, when she overheard the remark of a well-known woman physician at a baby beef parade. The champion animal was lead out by such an undersized boy that the doctor exclaimed, "Club work certainly teaches these boys and girls how to judge a fine animal, but it is losing a big opportunity if it does not teach them anything about developing their own bodies properly."

Each boys' and girls' club in the State was asked to choose a representative, thought to score highest in physical condition, to compete in a health contest at the recent Iowa State fair. Among the 44 representatives so chosen were many pretty girls and husky looking boys who did not prove to be in perfect physical condition when judged by strict standards and specialists. The competition was close, however, the winning girl scoring 98.5 per cent and the winning boy 99 per cent.

Whitewash Helps Cow Barn

Thorough cleaning and disinfecting is urged before severe cold weather sets in.

Give the cow barn a thorough cleaning and disinfecting. Whitewash it from top to bottom and from end to end. Provide for the admittance of fresh air and the expulsion of the foul air that accumulates from the cows' breath. Put the cows on a winter ration of leguminous hay, silage and a balanced mixture of concentrates and minerals. Do these things and reap the profits that are sure to come to the owners of good cows well cared for.

PLAN TO KEEP SOREHEAD OUT

Piece of Canvas Well Greased Over Feed Hopper Will Soon Rid Flock of Trouble.

To keep sorehead out of the poultry flock hang a piece of canvas over the opening of the feed hopper. Cut slits in the canvas and keep the slits well greased with an antiseptic salve. The birds in feeding get the salve on their heads, and this puts a stop to the sorehead.

When and Where to Buy
