fortunately, if one looks through the columns of the Bulletin and sees the small percentage of advertisers who tell the people of what they have to offer.
The matter rests chiefly with the merchants themselves, but a serious wrong is being done our town, and the Bulletin will do its utmost to remedy this lack of economic foresight.
It is confidently felt that the people here will agree with us, that more "buying-at-home" will eventually mean a more prosperous town, lower taxes, and a better place to call your home.

RAPID IMPROVEMENT IN TELEPHONE SWITCHBOARDS

When the telephone was first invented and had arrived at the stage where ordinary conversation was possible, there were only two telephones, one at each end of a wire.
The first telephones used commercially were leased in pairs and many times the person to whom they were leased had to string his own wires from one telephone to the other, usually from his house to his office or factory.
At that time it was not thought possible to have an inter-communicating system until the advent of the switchboard.
In May, 1877, the first switchboard to connect telephone circuits was installed, connecting five Boston banks.
This was followed up by the first commercial telephone exchange, which was installed in New Haven, Connecticut, in 1878, with the eight connecting telephones and soon after exchanges grew in New York, Bridgeport and Philadelphia.
This first commercial switchboard was succeeded by various other boards up until 1870, when the first "Multiple" board was installed.
The largest type multiple boards have more than 2,000,000 tiny soldered parts, 15,000 electric signal lights and over 4000 miles of wire, more than enough to span the continent.

TRAINED FOR EMERGENCIES. PROVES HERSELF HEROINE

The telephone girl—how few of us who use the phone many times per day realize that the owner of the gentle voice at "Central" may prove herself a heroine any day. She is there, meeting every call upon her and doing it without any bragging or bluster.
Take the case of the girl in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. She saw a signal at her switchboard, plugged in to answer the call and heard moans over the phone. She acted—a doctor was called, sent to the place and probably saved the life of the woman who had fallen just as she started to phone. Yet the young woman, herself a bride of but two weeks, regarded it as part of her work. She was trained to think in emergency—and was ready when the emergency came. It is this training that makes heroes or heroines in everyday life.—Waukegan (Ill.) Daily News

Comfort Is Fashionable
Wherever you go nowadays you will find a great many of the smarter women wearing Cantilever Shoes. At the hotels in trim tailored suits with Cantilevers just as trim, you will see them at tea. This summer they will be seen in comfortable sport clothes and Cantilevers; in New York, San Francisco, Philadelphia—everywhere. For comfort has become fashionable today, and Cantilevers have the trim lines that harmonize with the ideas of American women.
Like the foot, the arch of the Cantilever Shoe is flexible. Your foot muscles, relieved of the restraint of the ordinary stiff sole, are encouraged to exercise, your blood to circulate, your arch to grow strong. The very first day you try Cantilevers you will feel the delightful ease caused by the well-placed heels, the natural inner sole-line, the thoroughly scientific construction that makes a Cantilever.
You'll like their style, too.
