

The City of a Thousand Stores

Is not the fanciful figure of a fairy-land fable—it's our dear old, incomparable Lancaster—shiretown of the grandest county on the globe.

It's the supply center of 200,000 people (including YOU and YOURS); it has EIGHT big department stores to Harrisburg's three, Reading's four and York's two. It has the biggest and best Men's Shops of any Second or Third Class city in the State. It has more and better specialty shops than several other towns of its size thrown together.

And to get every soul in Lancaster county to know this better and better, Lancaster's stores have set aside

Wednesday, July 25

as the third big

Sales Day

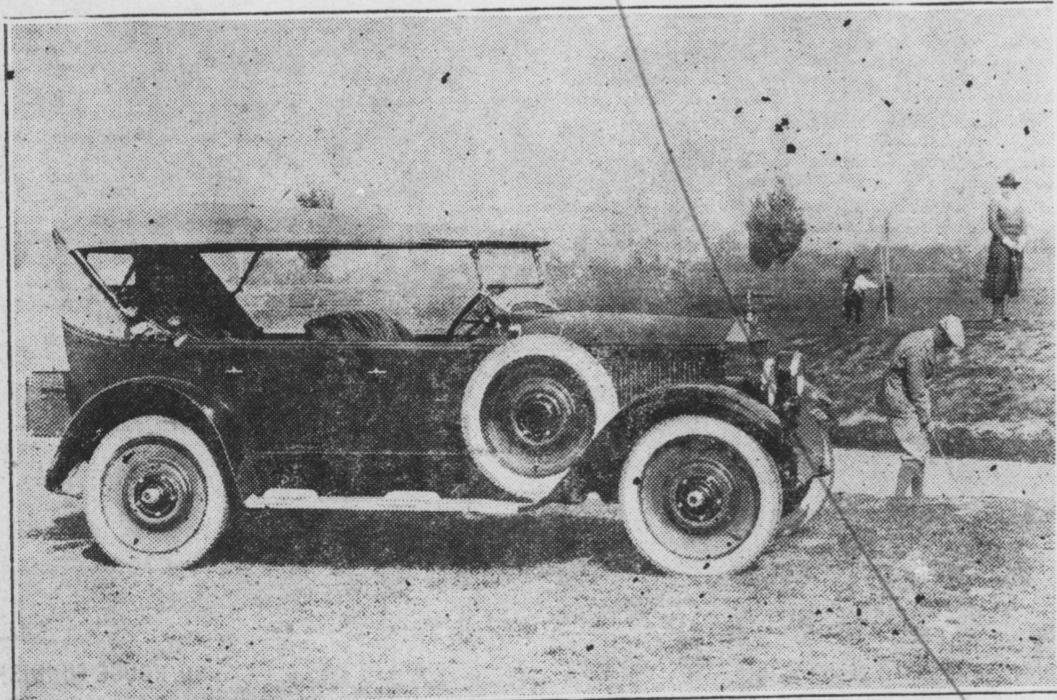

Come and bring the whole family; what you spend for gas, trolley or railroad fare won't be a bagatelle to the savings you'll pocket.

The merchants have banded together to forget profit for the day to get better acquainted with the people. On every hand there'll be bargain attractions and souvenirs no merchant could think of offering at another time.

Low as Lancaster prices are always in comparison with other towns—on Wednesday, July 25, they'll be a perfect revelation to you.

Henry Ford continues to be the big unknown quantity in the political campaign next year. Nobody knows whether he wants to run on the Republican or Democratic ticket. We do know that he is ahead in the straw votes; taken in the cities and rural communities, whatever that may mean.

No Nation can pay the fiddler's bill by doing the fiddling itself.
