POULTRY EVENT PLANNED FOR HARRISBURG SHOW

A new feature of the State Farm Products Show at Harrisburg on January 22 to 26 will be the First Annual Poultry Show which will be staged by the Pennsylvania State Poultry Association. In previous years, only a single variety of birds were given space, but the plans this year call for the entire first floor of the Emerson Brantingham building to be given over to the exhibit of the thirty most common varieties of fowls.

The judges of the show will be J. H. Drevenstedt. Newton Cosh, and J. Harry Wolsieffer, all nationally known men in the poultry game. The entries for the show will close on January first and premium lists and entry blanks can be secured from J. M. McKee, Deputy Secretary of Ag-riculture at Harrisburg or from H. D. Munroe of State College, who is secretary of the poultry show.

In addition to the usual egg show, the poultry exhibit will include: five varieties of Plymouth Rocks, four of Wyandottes, seven of Leghorns, three of Orphington's, two of Anconas, Rhode Island Reds, Rhode Island White, Light Brahams, Black Langshaws, C. Black Minorcas, Blue Andalumns and Dark Cornish.
