LONG TRIP 100 YEARS AGO

Story of the Strenuous Exploring Expedition of Maj. S. H. Long Into Northwest.

The exploring expedition conducted by Maj. Stephen H. Long of the United States army took its departure from Philadelphia on the 20th of April last with the view of traversing the American territory in a northwesterly direction and returning by way of the great northern lakes, says the Franklin Gazette of October 27, 1823. The gentlemen composing the expedition accordingly proceeded by way of Wheeling, Fort Wayne, Chicago, Prairie du Chien and Fort St. Anthony to the source of the River St. Peter. They then traveled over the valley of the River St. Peter to its junction with the Assiniboine, having ascertained, according to his instructions, the point at which the forty-ninth degree of north latitude, the northern boundary of the United States, crosses that river. Thus far they had gone by horse, but at this place they embarked on board bark canoes, in which they reached Lake Superior. Here they exchanged their canoes for a bait boat, amid severe gales and storm with snow, proceeded to Mackinac where they met a revenue cutter, which took them to Detroit. There they boarded the steamboat Superior and landed at Buffalo.

Pursuing their journey they found passage on board of one of the New York canal packet boats at Rochester on the Genesee river, and traveled on the customary route to Philadelphia. The tour extended to the fifty-first degree of north latitude and embraced a circuit of more than 4,000 miles, upward of 3,000 of which were through a savage wilderness. This long and hazardous expedition has been completed in the short period of three days less than six months, and greatly redounds to the credit of the distinguished scientific officers by whom it was conducted.

MADE HIS GARDEN PAY WELL

Minnesota Lad Laid His Plans Early and Carried Them Out With Skill.

Garden plans started during Christmas vacation and carried out the following summer earned a Minnesota club boy a net profit of more than $100 and the state garden club championship for that year. Obtaining a location for his garden early, this club boy, Willard Weeks of Winona, Minn., drew a plan of his plot, indicating the place for each variety of seed, so that when he had the ground prepared in the spring there was no delay in laying off and planting the rows. The first products of the garden were ready for use 21 days after planting. From that time on, throughout the summer, this young gardener not only supplied his family with all the fresh vegetables needed, but learning how to prepare his products for market, he built up an extensive trade among his neighbors. Finding the price for late products low, he used the training he had acquired in canning-club work to put up tomatoes, beets and corn, pickles and preserves for winter use. At the end of the season his records showed the total value of vegetables used at home, canned, and stored for winter, and sold, to be $135, produced at an expense of $21.50.

Great Ideas Last Long.

Why is it that there are some great men whose memory the world "will not willingly let die"? Most of us perish with our generation. A few personalities linger on for one or more generations. But there are some sons of men whose recollection does not seem to fade. Jesus of Nazareth is still a lively influence in millions of lives. Socrates, Plato, Buddha, Dante and Shakespeare are still vital. Men are like bells. They are struck with a "big idea." As the reverberation goes on long after the stroke has been made, according to the quality and size of the bell, so the great man is made of such metal that the reverberations of his initial impulse are not deadened by the passing of years. What a chime is that composed of all the echoes of the world's great souls—New York American.

Lights to Kill Insects.

One Texas farmer has doubled his yield of cotton by placing lights at intervals in his field and under the lights putting basins of water to catch the unwary insects.

The scheme sounds reasonable.

The bright lights of the big city attract the attention of the unwary boy and girl from the happy country home and has been the means of doubling the yield of broken hearts, blasted lives and degeneration along the brightly colored broadways of the country. The scheme works so well on people it would be a wonder if the bugs could not be caught by the same bait that is so alluring to man.

Nothing Now.

An African of peculiarly dusky hue was halted to count one morning for stealing chickens. The judge said to the clerk: "Swear the prisoner." "Sam, do you solemnly swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God?" "I does, sah." "Sam, what have you to say for yourself?" "Well, judge, with all dem limitations you has just put on me, I doesn't believe I has anything at all, sah."—Judge.

QUEEN IS FAIRY GODMOTHER

But Wilhelmina's Gift to Laborer's Child Was Grabbed by Father and Brother.

Little stories reflecting Queen Wilhelmina's popularity with her subjects appear from time to time in the continental press.

The Parisian reports that recently, while motoring in the outskirts of The Hague, the Dutch sovereign was attracted by the unusual beauty of a laborer's child who waved to her. She stopped her car to chat with the little girl, asked her name and kissed her.

A few days later the delighted child received a parcel from the palace containing a beautiful pair of gloves, the right-hand glove filled with caramels and the left with gold pieces. Accompanying the gift was a note from the queen asking her little friend to write and tell her which of the gloves gave her the most pleasure.

In due time the child's reply, on tear-stained note paper, reached the palace. "Your majesty," it read, "I don't know which glove I liked the best, because my daddy took the left-hand glove and my brother took the right."

The queen, in good story-book style, promptly duplicated the gift, making certain, however, that the child should not be robbed by grasping father or greedy brother. It is not related whether or not she repeated her rather embarrassing inquiry.

LION OF WATERLOO TOPPLING

Glory of the Old Battlefield Eclipsed by Events of the World War.

The great lion on the field of Waterloo is reported in danger of collapse. The base upon which it rests is in ruins.

The battlefield of more than a century ago has been forgotten by most people in the rush to the new field of glory. Where Napoleon and Wellington contended does not concern the tourists who want to see where Foch and Hindenburg were making their fame.

And the lion has lasted much longer than either the Corsican or the Englishman, neither of whom had another claim upon the attention of the world, observes the Fort Worth Telegram.

The poet Shelley sang the requiem of all the glory of might in the picture of a crumbled statue half covered with sand, bearing the inscription: "My name is Ozymandias, king of kings; Nothing beside remains. Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare, The lone and level sands stretch far away."

The lion of Waterloo, the lion of military fame, rests on a foundation that crumbles with time. Why patch it up?

Autos Thick in London.

According to officials of the London safety first council, it is less safe to walk the streets of London than to travel by rail or by air.

During the past year 694 people were killed and 26,322 injured in London's streets. During the same time the toll on the whole of England's rail ways was only 728 killed and 19,462 injured.

Paternoster Row.

Paternoster row is a street in London, near St. Paul's cathedral. Early in the last century it was the seat of the great publishing houses; but, in later years, these moved away to the neighborhood of the Strand and Piccadilly and left the "Row" to the booksellers of the metropolis. The origin of the name is variously accounted for. According to some, the street was so called from the rosary, or paternoster, makers that dwelt there; others, however, say that it was so named because all funeral processions, en route for St. Paul's, commenced their paternosters on entering this street, and continued to say them until they reached the gate of the cathedral.

Quake Caused Earth to Drop.

Intense damage in the vicinity of Yokohama, caused by the recent earthquake in Japan, was due to a drop of four feet in the surface of the earth, which may have resulted from activity of the volcano on the island of Oshima, southwest of Yokohama, in the opinion of Thomas A. Jaggar, Jr., volcanologist in charge of the Hawaiian volcano observatory, who has returned to Hawaii from Japan, where he made a survey of the damage wrought by the temblors. The death toll in the earthquake, tidal wave and fire was estimated at 400,000 by Mr. Jaggar, and the damage to property at $8,000,000,000.

Acting With a Lion.

A Hollywood motion picture director was trying to persuade a super to wrestle with a lion. "You needn't be afraid," he said, "the beast is perfectly tame. He never tasted raw meat."

THE CHRISTMAS SEAL

The 1923 Christmas Seal shows a little girl sitting in front of an old-fashioned fireplace where she sees in the bright flames the vision of Santa Claus. A stocking hangs in front of the fireplace. The Seal symbolizes the home and the child, and breathes the Yuletide spirit of giving. The use of Christmas seals means a gift of health to those about us throughout the year. The Seal comes in the Christmas colors, red and green. The double barred cross is the emblem of the citizen tuberculosis organizations—an emblem of hope.

Too Rich to Be a Communist.

Questions of doctrine continue to trouble Communists—both pundits in high places and the simple minded faithful in the villages. Heretical conduct, as well as heretical opinion, is ground for excluding men from the party.

The story is told of a humble and sincere Communist rural family, where the wife was an enterprising woman of the thrifty, "managing" type. She gradually accumulated a pig, some fowls and some rabbits, which multiplied until by selling part of them and a few household belongings she was able to buy a cow. Thus eventually she developed a little stock farm.

However, the family's unusual standard of well being was looked upon with suspicion by the husband's fellow Communists, who decided to exclude him from the party. In the course of his trial for heresy the delicate point came up as to just how many turkeys changed a Communist into a bourgeois.—Living Age.

The Service Must Go On

The addition of $30,200,000 worth of new equipment to our plant in Pennsylvania in one year is a stupendous undertaking. Switchboards, cables, wire,—the elements which make up the telephone system,—are living things, alive with conversation. While new telephones are being connected, wire switchboards are being enlarged, while wire and cables are being added, there must be no interference with the service of our 800,000 telephones already in service in Pennsylvania. The Bell System in this state is being expanded with staggering amounts of new telephone equipment. The plant must keep pace with the traffic, which is now 3,800,000 calls a day. It is estimated that in 1924 this volume will increase to 4,200,000 calls per day. But there are no "growing pains"—no evidence to the user of the service that back of his telephone in the Central Offices, in the streets and along country roads, millions upon millions of dollars are being added.
