In the domestic orchestra it's the "eternal triangle" that makes the music. To one about the community—but the opinion?

SURGERY FOR THE ANIMALS

Operating Table for Horses Has Been Opened in University of Pennsylvania.

Horses, cows and mules can now be given surgical treatment for tumors, wounds, laryngitis, ruptures, broken bones, severed tendons, distortions and many internal diseases that formerly made it necessary to shoot them.

Such operations are being performed every weekday in the year, not only for the purpose of getting information concerning rare diseases that may be of value later in treating human beings, but to save and prolong the lives of the animals and to increase their usefulness, says the Scientific American. And the same facts apply to dogs, cats and other pets, including rabbits, goats, canary birds, parrots, monkeys and even the pungent skunk. They apply also to barnyard fowl—chickens, geese, ducks and turkeys.

What might be called the other side of the antivivisection story was brought to public attention quite recently in Philadelphia by the announcement that there had been set up in the University of Philadelphia veterinary hospital the first operating table ever built for the accommodation of horses and other large animals. The machine was designed by Dr. John W. Adams, professor of veterinary surgery and obstetrics at the university and chief operating surgeon at the hospital, which is run in conjunction with the school. It was conceived after several years of experience and after all existing apparatus had been found unadapted to the peculiar needs of the veterinary surgeon.

MUSICIANS ARE LONG LIVED

This Seems True Especially of English Organists Who Have Obtained Good Positions.

Usually the clergy are supposed to live longer, on an average, than the members of any other profession.

Certainly doctors do not take a foremost place. The dangers of their work lower their average life. Men in the higher ranks of the law, judges particularly, are proverbially long-lived, but many fall by the way in the lawyer's busy calling.

A claim is now being made for those who obtain a comfortable position in the world of music, and instances are given. Sir Walter Parratt, the organist of St. George's chapel, Windsor, England, has been at his work for 69 years, beginning as a boy of eleven, and he varies music with the most trying of all games, chess.

Sir George Elvey, the organist at Windsor before Sir Walter, held the post for 47 years. Sir Frederick Bridge, late organist at Westminster abbey, retired when he had held his post 44 years, and he followed an organist, James Turle, who had served the abbey 56 years.

Barking Sands.

At certain points along our seacoasts "vocal sands" are found in patches, exhibiting a phenomenon that has never been very satisfactorily explained. The beach at Manchester, N. H., is famous for them.

These sands, when dry, yield a peculiar sound if struck by the foot, or even when stroked by the hand. At the same time a tingling sensation is felt by the fingers or by bare toes.

The sound resembles the distant barking of a dog, and it may sometimes be heard at a distance of 100 feet.

The most remarkable "singing sands" are found on the island of Kauai, one of the Hawaiian group. By clapping them between the hands a faint hooting noise is produced. But the hostile sounds are greatly intensified by putting a quantity in a bag and slamming it about.

No Cause for Worry.

The late Henry Clews, the famous New York banker, was an economical man despite his great wealth and he had a horror of wastrels.

There is a story about a banker who once said to Mr. Clews: "My boy Scattergood is a frightful spendthrift. I dread to think that all my money will one day be left in his hands."

"Oh, don't worry," said Mr. Clews grimly. "It won't stay there long."

Growth.

The teacher told us there was a little girl who had just been promoted to the first grade. But on the first day she got homesick for her kindergarten teacher, so she was allowed to visit the kindergarten for a few minutes. She looked over the crowd of new pupils in their little chairs, and then she looked up at the teacher with a tender and amused smile.

"Aren't they cute!" she whispered.

Had Reason to Fear It.

"You are an educated man," said the judge. "but this is a disgraceful crime you have been found guilty of. Have you anything to say before sentence?"

"Only this your honor," replied the defendant. "Whatever the sentence may be, for heaven's sake don't end it with a preposition."—Boston Transcript.

He Certainly Was.

Tom's wife was commenting at length upon a love passage in the novel she was reading. She hesitated and then tentatively spoke.

"We've you embarrassed when you proposed to me, dear?" she inquired.

"Yes, darling," replied her husband. "I owed over $500."
