"The Safety Razor of the Fields"

The A-M-F Sickle is called the "Safety Razor of the Fields." When a blade is broken it can be replaced in a minute's time, without riveting. Instead of changing the whole bar you simply change the blade that has given way. Every farmer realizes what a wonderful convenience this means.

The A-M-F Sickle does not rest its entire claim on interchangeable blades. The construction of the entire unit is of the very highest standard. Each and every blade in the A-M-F Sickle is keener than any you have ever tried before.

We are giving away these 100,000 sickle bars through dealers and charging the cost up to Advertising.

How This Sensational Plan for Demonstrating the "Safety Razor of the Fields" was Suggested by One of the World's Foremost Safety Razor Manufacturers—

The American Machine and Foundry Company wanted to spread the story of the "Safety Razor of the Fields" so that it would win the same confidence among farmers that the interchangeable blade principle has won for safety razors. One of the biggest manufacturers and merchandisers of safety razors in the world was approached on the best way to do it. Here is what he has to say:

"I am a safety razor manufacturer. When they showed me the A-M-F Sickle it looked pretty good to me. When they asked me how to introduce it to farmers in a convincing way, I refused to answer the question. What I said was: 'There are a hundred thousand perfectly good farmers right in this section. Why not give a hundred thousand sickles away to these farmers and let them spread the story for you. If the A-M-F Sickle is what you honestly believe it to be—the best thing ever manufactured for the benefit of the farmer—it won't be long before every up-to-the-minute farmer in the United States and Canada hears about it and gets one for himself.'

The A-M-F people said the idea of proving this sickle through a hundred thousand real boosters was an excellent one, but that they would not make a gift of the whole outfit. They said that the farmer usually wants to pay for what he gets, especially if it is going to save time and thereby make money for him.

So we compromised. The plan agreed on was to give to 100,000 farmers what corresponds to the "razor" part of the implement—the part he keeps. He would pay only for the blades. This seemed to be a sensible solution and one that shows that the manufacturer really believes in his product and will back it to the limit."

The American Machine & Foundry Company feels that this plan is right. In presenting it to the thinking farmers of this section, therefore, it is with the hope that all will realize that its result will benefit the entire agricultural fraternity of America.

A-M-F Sickle Blades can be changed as easily as in a Safety Razor.

What You Can Do With an A-M-F Sickle

- Change blades in the field without removing knife from machine.
- Keep all cutting edges sharp by carrying extra blades.
- Sharpen dull blades individually without trouble.
- Save money by eliminating reserve sickles.
