By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

"MUMMY, won't daddy ever come "Never again, dear."

"But he's not dead, mummy?" Clara signed. How was it possible to make little Jim understand that his father was dead to them for ever? Clara had often put it to herself what she should do if Henry begged 2:00 P. M. You are cordially invither to take him back. Her pride would never permit it. No, everything

> But little Jim couldn't understand. He was always crying for the father who used to carry him on his back. The worst man shows the best side of his nature to a child. And, after all, there were good points to Henry.

> However, in a few weeks she would be free. She would go away somewhere with the child, and there he would learn to forget.

Still, it was all very embarrassing, St. Mark's United Brethren Church and little Jim very miserable, longed for his father. He would wake up with a start in the middle of the night Morning Worship and sermon by and cry for him. That was the hardest thing to bear-the boy's thinking that his father had come home. Junior and Intermediate Christian

And then there came a wonderful day for Jim. It was on his way home from school, and there, standing outside the candy shop, was his father! He could hardly believe that he was real, until he had run to him and hugged him. Then he knew that he

Such a kiss and a hug, and they two walking hand in hand, men together, as in the old days.

"But you mustn't tell mother, or she'll never let you meet me again," his father had insisted. "If you tell her you'll never see me again." And little Jim, wondering very much, had given his promise. It was so hard to keep. But two or three times a week he found his father outside the candy shop. Then there came a day when Henry, haunting the place for a sight of the little son whom he loved so dearly, falled to meet him coming home from school. And the next day it was the same, and the next and the next.

He dared not go to the house, though he knew where it was. That was for Clara's sake. But he stood far off and looked at it, and saw the doctor's car drive up and drive away again. And

Inside the house the child, stricken K. L. C. E. Sunday evening 6:30. with diphtheria, raved and tossed on his cot. "He keeps crying for his father,"

Strangers are welcome to these said the nurse. The mother felt a lump rise in her throat. That memory persisted through everything.

"No possibility of getting the father?" asked the doctor, who knew all about the domestic tragedy. "No one knows where he is."

"He's standing in front of the candy shop-in front of the candy shop on the way to school. Wiv a bag of candy in his hand. Don't you see him, The Choir will meet at 7:30 P M "Something must be done," said the doctor, shaking his head. "Daddy, I want you to come to m love you. Come daddy!"

Distracted, Clara fled from the room. There was only the slightest chance that there was anything in the child's story. But she ran into the darkening street, and to the candy shop. And Henry was standing there, but there was no bag of candy in his hand. "He's calling for you. You must come!"

back to the house. The child was toss ing on his bed and crying. "Here I am, Jim," said Henry, kneeling down at the bedside. And the child knew his father's voice, and stretched out his little hands

After that came the long days of convalescence. Little Jim was very

"The doctor says you've saved his life. Henry," said Clara. "And now"-he gulped-"I'll have to have me here, although I wish it were possible for me to stay and try to atone for the past-" "But Jim wants you, Henry," answered Clara. "Suppose we let him have the casting vote?"

Needed the Combination. A couple of visitors to the Hebrides tumbled out early on the morning of their arrival and began to fish in a nearby loch. After the passing of an hour or two their lack of success led them into a discussion about the pronunciation of the word "loch." "Is it 'low' or is it 'lock?' " asked

"I understand it is 'low,' " said the other, "and I sincerely hope that is

"Because if this is a 'lock' we haven't the combination."

Little Bluebelle. "My, my, but these judges are particular." "What now, Bluebelle?" "I see a judge threw a man's case out of court because he did not come into court with clean hands.' She Ought to Know.

Baseball Is Here Again

LOCAL MERCHANT IS CONFIDENT THAT 1924 WILL BE GREATEST YEAR FOR THE SPORT. SOME FACTS THAT INTEREST.

Spring is the time when the thoughts of the young man are supposed to turn to Love. Taybe that is right, possibly the fine spring evenings and the moonlight nights do have their effect, but we have a hunch that some of the thoughts of every red-blodded young man are for baseball.

"Baseball is the sport of the masses—the National pastime," said H. S. Newcomer, of the local Winchester Store to-day
