Cleanup Week Will be April 14 to 19

(Continued from page 1) For flies. The avowed aims of the state wide drive are announced as health protection, fire protection and forest protection.

In setting the third week in April as the cleanup period, the state officials explain that they selected that seven day period because it falls in the week that housewives throughout the state generally devote to spring housecleaning.

A program providing for a certain type of cleanup work on each day of the week has been formulated by the state officials in charge of the drive. Thus, Monday is proclaimed as "street and alley day" with the work of the day set forth as cleaning streets, sidewalks, gutters, ditches and sewers.

Wednesday is fly and mosquito day. Cesspools, stables, pig pens, chicken coops, stagnant pools and garbage cans are to receive the attention of the citizen cleanup army on that day.

Friday is Truck day and it is recommended that trucks be employed then to haul away the refuse of the four day's cleanup work.

The appeal to local authorities and welfare organizations suggests that a meeting be called to outline the work of the week.

"Call a meeting and start the ball rolling," the letter reads. "Numbers of strangers motor through your town each day. They notice and remark about it; whether they remember your town, because it looked so well or whether they can't forget it, because it was so untidy, depends upon you."

The cleanup drive this year is the second held under state auspices. One of the features of the program will be the broadcasting of "cleanup" talks each night during the week from Station WDAK, near Harrisburg. The week's radio program will open on Saturday April 12, with Rev. C. Waldo Cherry, of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church, of Harrisburg urging his invisible audience to aid in cleaning up the state.

Preachers throughout the state will also be asked to appeal to their parishioners to aid in the work by means of pulpit talks on Sunday, April 13.
