Are Dissatisfied With Milk Prices

INTERESTING MEETING HELD AT DONEGAL SPRINGS ON FRIDAY EVENING BY MILK PRODUCERS

A determined effort has been launched by farmers who produce milk in several sections of the county to alter the conditions under which they have been forced to dispose of their product to the local distributors.

At Quarryville a slumbering local of the Inter-State Milk Producers Association has been revived and in the Elizabethtown-Mount Joy section about forty farmers signed contracts in the same organization and established a local that will surely be heard from.

Without any organization with which to form a contract with the distributing agencies, the local farmers say they cannot obtain simple justice as individuals from those through whom they are compelled by circumstances to dispose of their milk.

A variety of prices, that are cut without notification, prevail on the different routes for the same grade of milk, so it is said.

Several Different Rates
At a meeting held at the home of David Zook, Donegal Springs, last Friday evening, after "swapping" experiences, the farmers found that at least six different prices prevailed, in the making of which the producer had no voice.

At this meeting they organized a local branch of the Inter-State Milk Producers Association. Another meeting has been arranged for Tuesday evening, July 8 at the warehouse of the Mount Joy Farm Products Co. on Frank street in this place. Representatives of the Inter-State Milk (Turn to page Four.)
