BARN OF THOS. HALBLEIB AT COLLINS, DESTROYED

Fire early Friday morning completly destroyed the back barn on the Alice Collins farm near Collins station. Thomas Halbleib, who is the tenant on the farm, was awakened about 3 o'clock by the shouts of "fire" by a passing automobilist who did not stop. The loss is about $5000. Halbleib and his daughter sucseeded in rescuing the live stock from the flames but this season's erop of hay was lost in the fire. the cause for the blaze is not known.

The road which passes the collins farm is much travelled but the early hour in the morning brought few travellers and the fire had made great headway before discovered. The buildings in the vicinity of the barn were saved by the tenants.

AUTO LICENSE PLATES TO BE MADE IN PITTSBURGH

Pennsylvania's automobile license plates, manufactured for a number of years at the Huntingdon Reformatory, will be made hereafter at the Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh, it was announced Tuesday.

Plans for the erection of a license plate factory at the Western Penitentiary were announced by Warden John M. Egan, who said that the plant probably would be ready for operation in time to turn out the 1925 tags.

More than 100 prisoners will be employed in the plate plant and will receive a nominal compensation.

SON HELD FOR DEATH OF PARENTS ON APRIL 16, 1910

On a charge of murder alleged to have been committed in Lancaster on April 16, 1910, Benjamin F. Dorsheimer, of Atlantic City, was arrested in Coatesville Friday night. Dorsheimer is charged with having killed his parents, Peter L. and Annie E. Dorsheimer, at their home 444 East King street, Lancaster. When the two were found dead the supposition was that they died from asphyxiation by gas.

The man arrested is at present a prominent real estate dealer at Atlantic City.
