SAVE SOME CORN FOR SEED - SHORTAGE LIKELY THIS YEAR

A probable shortage of good seed corn in some sections is predicted by the United States Department of Agriculture in consequence of the unusually late spring and continuous cool weather, factors which have caused corn to be very late. Much of this year's crop may not mature enough to make the best seed before a killing frost. Then too, many farmers have had to replant their spring planting, drawing heavily on their supply of old seed corn. The higher prices being paid for old corn at the present time are tending also to deplete this supply of corn from which seed could be selected in an emergency. It is suggested that before selling or feeding old corn apparently good seed ears be picked out. These should be saved for testing later in the event that corn does not mature this fall. The best seed corn is that which has matured on the stalk. Corn gathered in the milk stage, if carefully dried and handled, will germinate under favorable conditions, although it will not have the vigor that mature corn would have. Satisfactory seed corn can be selected, however, any time after corn is in the hard-dough stage. The same points should be observed in selecting seed from immature corn as would be observed under ordinary conditions. Select seed only from normal, vigorous plants; avoid smutted plants, stalks that are down, and those that are prematurely dead. Corn which contains much moisture must be handled very carefully. It should not be put in piles or stored in such a manner that the ears touch each other. Hang the ears separately in a loft that is well ventilated and where the temperature will not reach freezing. Even if not of the best, using early selected seed of a strain known to be good will be safer than having to buy seed of unknown adaptation and productiveness. Most communities are in touch with reports from the Weather Bureau to such an extent that a coming frost may be known somewhat accurately. At the first suggestion of frost, therefore, it is urged that farmers make at least a small selection of seed. If frost holds off longer and seed can be selected from mature corn, the immature seed can be used for feed, the only loss being the labor of gathering and drying it.

Investigations by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that a central depot or warehouse where trucks delivering farm products to cities may secure return loads is of great benefit to both farmers and truckers. A large number of trucks enter each of our cities daily bringing milk, garden, and other farm products. Most of them return empty, so that half of the mileage traveled is without profit. Many have attempted to secure return loads by giving cheap rates and going to various points about the city to collect shipments. In some cases this has proved worth while, but in others it has been abandoned, as the profit did not justify the time and expense. In the city of Baltimore a number of motor-truck operators are maintaining jointly a central freight depot, which, according to all of the truck operators who make use of it, is a great success. Any freight or merchandise to be delivered to farmers in the surrounding territory may be delivered at this station through the delivery system of concerns from which purchases are made. A truck from the country after delivering the incoming load calls for the freight consigned to points along its route. This plan does away with the hit-and-miss system of collecting merchandise all over the city from many different business and manufacturing concerns. One operator who has kept a record of his expenses and profits has found that his truck earned in one year a net profit of $2,362, of which fully 65 per cent was due to return load earnings.

Active in Improving Livestock Ohio leads all other States with 2,874 farmers participating in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, conducted by various States and the United States Department of Agriculture. Kentucky is second with 2,589, Virginia third with 2,258, and Nebraska fourth with 1,502 members. Virginia formerly held second place. These figures, revised to July 1, with those of other States, are given in a summary of results issued by the department. Plans are now under way to get additional facts and dependable estimates on a number of other practical questions. It is on this proposed work that suggestions are especially invited. Such information, it is believed, will greatly advance the work of livestock improvement. Communications should be addressed to the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Fruit, Feed and Vegetable Markets

Feed Markets The feed markets are quite and prices are generally lower than last week. There is no pressure of wheat feed offerings from the West, but jobbers have withdrawn bids because of a pathetic attitude of interior trade. Hominy feed is dull, offerings are small and the demand light. Gluten feed prices are reduced $2.00 with offerings exceeding the demand. Linseed meal market firm, with offerings well absorbed by mixers. Cotton seed cake and meal declined about $1.00 per ton on diminished export and domestic demand.

Fruits and Vegetables Receipts of fresh fruits and vegetables were light on the Philadelphia wholesale market last Thursday morning. The demand was about moderate and trading fairly active. Sweet corn and sweet potatoes were light in supply and prices advanced. Peaches and sweet potatoes were slightly stronger, while tomatoes held about steady. Offerings of practically all commodities except cantaloupes and onions were rather light on the carlot market. Apples held about steady and the best stock met a moderate demand. Bulk cabbage moved slowly and the market was steady with New York state stock selling at $12.00 to $15.00 per ton, with a few sales higher. Pennsylvania celery was steady and the supply light with the majority of the stock coming from Tioga County.

Peach Shipments Light Pennsylvania supplied 13 of the 72 cars of peaches rolled on September 17. New York moved 4, Jersey 6 and West Virginia 4. The large Eastern markets were steady and the demand was slow. Prices for Pennsylvania Elbertas ranged from $2.50 to 2.85, with 6-basket crates selling at $2.50 to 3.00. The Cincinnati and Chicago markets were firm and Pennsylvania A grade Elbertas brought $3.00 to 3.40 with U. S. No. 1 selling at 3.00 to $3.25. The total shipments of all commodities from Pennsylvania on Wednesday amounted to 35 cars. These shipments consisted of 19 cars potatoes, 9 tomatoes, 3 celery, 1 cabbage and 13 cars of peaches.

Pennsylvania Potato Movement Lehigh, Lancaster and York county potatoes were offered on the Philadelphia market last Thursday morning and met a moderate demand. The market was steady with round whites in bulk selling at $1.40 to 1.60 per hundredweight. Near-by stock in 5-8 bushel baskets brought 55c to 57c. The market in New York and Baltimore was weak and the demand was slow. Pennsylvania 150-lb sacks of round whites sold mostly at $2.25 while long whites brought $2.00. Jersey Cobblers ranged from $2.10 to 2.37 1/2 with Giants selling at $1.75 to 2.10. Pennsylvania Cobblers were offered on the Pittsburgh market but the demand was slow. U. S. No. 1 were quoted at $2.40 to $2.50 per sack, with similar stock in bulk selling at 1.60 to 1.65 per hundredweight. Maine Cobblers made up the bulk of supplies on the Boston market and there were 190 cars on track. The demand and trading were moderate and the market was weaker. Cobblers in 100 pound sacks ranged $1.25 to 1.35. The movement for the county on Wednesday amounted to 838 cars, of which number Pennsylvania rolled 19, Maine 154 and New Jersey 69.

COUNTRY MAKES HEADWAY AGAINST ANIMAL T. B. The work of eradicating tuberculosis from the cattle herds of the country has been going forward so satisfactorily in recent years that it is predicted by those in charge of the work for the United States Department of Agriculture that within eight years it is probable that as many as 30 States may be free of the plague. This will permit the consolidation of the veterinary forces so that work may be carried on more rapidly in the remaining States where the extent of infection is greater. The systematic plan of eradication has been going on in earnest since 1917. According to figures compiled from reports received by the department from field forces in the various States, about 3 1-3 per cent of the cattle in the country are tuberculous. In many of the States, of course, the infection is much more extensive. The progress made in the work during the fiscal year terminating June 30, 1924, was greater than in any previous year. The accredited herds increased from 28,520 to 48,273. A better indication of progress, however, was the reduction of the plan where, such as counties, have been in one whirlwind campaign. Last year the number of counties adopting this plan was 198 to 317. During the year more than 5,000 head of cattle were eradicated.

PENNSYLVANIA BANKERS

That bankers in all parts of Pennsylvania are awake to the great importance of agriculture and are anxious to cooperate in every way possible to improve farm conditions was amply shown by the recent tour of western Pennsylvania in which bankers from 25 or more prominent agricultural counties took part. Each year these bankers who compose the agricultural committee of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, make a trip through a section of the state. Last year southeastern Pennsylvania was visited and this year the southwestern section of the state. The purpose of this tour each year is to get acquainted with the problems of real farmers and to stimulate the local organization of bankers to better serve agriculture. This year farmers and bankers in Bedford, Somerset, Fayette, Washington, Allegheny, Beaver, Lawrence and Mercer counties were visited. The fact that farmers were visited who started under a heavy mortgage, raised families and have successfully worked themselves free of debt by hard work and improved methods, was an especially appealing feature of the tour, said Frank P. Willits, Secretary, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, in commenting upon the type of farmers visited. The bankers' agricultural committee has for its goal the stimulation of a closer farmer-banker cooperation in every agricultural county of the state. The committee recognizes the importance of working with existing agencies such as the county agricultural agents, the Pennsylvania State College and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Much assistance has already been given in the development of a live-stock program and in encouraging boys and girls club work. The farmers cooperative movement is also profiting from the advice and assistance accorded by bankers. That the banker has become an important service agency rather than a mere money-changer is the spirit underlying this banker-farmer movement. It is hoped that by getting better acquainted with farmers and their problems, service can be rendered which will break down the ill feeling that too often exists between farmers and their local bankers. Secretary Willits and John M. McKee, Deputy Secretary, were both present throughout the tour and came away greatly impressed with the earnestness with which the bankers are endeavoring to more adequately serve the farmers of Pennsylvania.

THE BIG LANCASTER FAIR WILL BE HELD NEXT WEEK The cry of the gateman will be heard for the first time this year, at the opening of the 15th Lancaster Fair next Tuesday and which will continue October 1st, 2nd and 3rd. The four days will be crowded with excitement, laughter and real education for every visitor that enters the gates. The management has spared no time or money to make this the greatest Fair they have ever had and patrons of past years are sure to be surprised at the size and quality of the exhibitions and entertainment offered them. Every known stitch will be on exhibition in the Fancy Work Department. Pies, cakes, bread, preserves, etc. competing for prizes fill the exhibition buildings until it has become a problem where to put them. Machinery Avenue is over a mile long and full of the latest developments in farm and home machinery. Automobile Row will see all of the old faces back with many new ones all showing the almost sensational features in motordom that have been developed this year. There is a big free show provided by the management at a cost of $11,000 in front of the grandstand daily and the wire and equestrian acts, the comedians and animals are sure to furnish each spectator with enough thrills and laughter to last a long time. Music will be furnished by Wallace's Singing Orchestra - old favorites - and the American Legion Band of Lancaster. There will be four harness and two running races on the fast Fair grounds' track. Enthusiasts are sure to be surprised at the speed and hair-raising matter what day it is. The great new Greater Lancaster Fair 425 people and many more. Every age group is sure to have a good time.
