

WIDENING WHITE HORSE PIKE NECESSITATES MOVING POLE LINE

The post-hole digger which was the chief means employed in the moving of the pole line, consisting of one hundred and thirty poles and approximately fifty miles of wire. This device pulled the poles up out of the ground, dug the holes at the new locations and placed the poles.

Uprooting, swinging and placing thirty-five foot poles is the work of a few seconds with the hole digging and pole placing equipment that was used to move back the pole line along White Horse Pike between Berlin and Acoo, New Jersey. The machine, which is the property of the Bell Telephone Company, is mounted on a truck with a powerful crane and a huge hole digging auger and does the work about eight times as speedily as the old hand pole method.

In order to provide better motor traffic facilities, the New Jersey State Highway Commission started to widen the pike, making it necessary to move the pole line back on fact. The pole line is the joint property of the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph and Telephone Company and the Electric Company of New Jersey and the work was done by the "digger" and the linemen of the Electric Light Company.

The post-hole digger simply picks up the pole and pulls it out of the ground by means of the crane. The truck carrying the pole and crane then moves forward or back to the new location, digs the hole and the crane operated by the driver sets the pole.

In the majority of jobs of this kind it is not even necessary to untie the wires on the poles, the entire line being moved with everything intact and with no disturbance to the telephone service.

Interesting Notes From E'town College

NUMBER OF EXTENSION CLASSES IN PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION ARE BEING ORGANIZED—COLLEGE LECTURE COURSE COMPLETED

The first sermon preached in the College Chapel for the school year was preached by Rev. James A. Sell, of Holidaysburg, Pa. Rev. Sell is a very splendid speaker, and although he is seventy-nine years of age, he is young in spirit. He is poetically inclined, and has written several hundred poems, some of which he has compiled in a book, which he sells at a very nominal figure.

The College Quartet, consisting of Profs. Baugher, Schlosser, Meyer and Royer, rendered three selections during the program of the Sunday School Conference held in the Methodist church at Bainbridge on Sunday afternoon. Very many favorable comments were heard, showing evidences of appreciation which their audience had for their excellent service. The members of the Quartet, together with a number of other folks of Elizabethtown, report a very excellent address delivered by Dr. William T. Ellis, a noted Sunday School writer and lecturer. The evening session was well attended, at which Miss Martha Martin, of the Bible Department of the College, rendered a practical address, followed by Mr. Frank Keller, the popular grocerman, of Elizabethtown. The closing address of the evening was given by Prof. H. K. Ober, president of the County Sabbath School Association.

On Tuesday morning the sad intelligence of the death of a warm friend of the College was announced to the students at the Chapel exercises, in the passing away of Elder George Weaver, of Manheim, Pa. Some of the faculty are planning to be present at the funeral services, which will be held on Friday afternoon at the Fairview church.

A number of extension classes in professional educational subjects are being organized in different parts of the college territory. A class in General Physics will be started on Saturday, October 4th, at 8 A. M. The work consists of two hours lectures and recitations and two hours laboratory work per week. Six semester hours College credit will be given for the work. A laboratory fee of twelve dollars will be charged in addition to the regular rates for extension work. This offers a fine opportunity for a number of people to earn different college credits as well as adding to their future equipment for teaching. A number of classes in extension work are expected to start at the following places: Elizabethtown, Middletown, Stewartstown and York. The Senior members of the faculty are assigned to these classes, which gives exceptional opportunity for greater interest, while serving as teachers during the week. The supervising of practice teachers has kept Prof. J. I. Baugher quite busy in these opening weeks of school. He reports good interest in all his work in his large class of prospective teachers.

Mrs. Sally Holsinger moved her household goods on Thursday, to the College Cottage on the campus, preparatory to resuming her duties as head cook for the College dining-room.

Miss Mary Martin, of Baltimore, called on a number of her friends who are attending the college, while on a visit to Elizabethtown, preparatory to taking up her work at Washington, D. C.

The arrangements for the numbers of the college lecture course are completed and particulars will be ready for publication in a few days. The lecture course consists of three lectures and three musical numbers. We hope the details will be ready for next week's readers.

RIVER BRIDGE DESTROYED TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS AGO

Yesterday marked the twenty-eighth anniversary of the destruction of the old-covered wooden bridge that carried the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad company between Columbia and Wrightsville. During the night, September 29, 1896, a violent wind-storm broke over Columbia and vicinity and at an early hour on the morning of September 30, the wind raised the roof of the structure. The sides then fell in after which the roof dropped upon the pile of debris crushing the floor causing the entire structure to drop into the river. The destruction occurred at an hour when there were no trains, teams or pedestrians crossing the bridge.

TELEPHONE COMPANY GIVES AID AT FIRE

Truck Rushed to Scene of Fire in Norristown to Extricate Workmen.

When the Ford Street bridge in Norristown, Pa., was recently destroyed by fire, a call to the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania brought a telephone truck to the scene, equipped with a derrick to raise the burning ferry house on the Norristown side of the river under which it was thought several men had been pinned.

Volunteer firemen who had been swarming on the bridge during the fire before it collapsed and several of them were carried with it when it fell into the river. The roof and walls of the ferry house on the Norristown side also collapsed with the bridge and it was at first thought that several men were engulfed in the mass of burning timbers.

Norristown police headquarters immediately called the telephone company and S. H. Lear, District Line Foreman, recruited an emergency crew of telephone men composed of W. J. Kilenert and F. P. Fulmer, Motor Vehicle Inspector, both of whom lived in the vicinity. Fifteen minutes later a telephone truck equipped with a derrick was at work lifting the ferry house clear of the water by means of a winch, cable, derrick and block and fall.

In spite of the prompt assistance, however, one man, Lohb, was found to have been caught beneath the burning ferry house and was dead when finally reached.

SILAGE-MAKING HINTS BY UNITED STATES SPECIALISTS

Corn silage is best prepared when the corn is cut at a stage containing 65 or 70 per cent moisture, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This may be told when the lower leaves on the stalk are turning brown, about 90 per cent of the kernels are denting, and 75 per cent are so hardened that no moisture can be squeezed out.

The length to which the silage is cut should be from one-half to one inch. Silage cut this short will pack better and the silo will hold its maximum tonnage. Also the chances for the silage to spoil are considerably reduced.

In filling the silo, packing is essential. The common practice is to keep the sides slightly higher than the center and to tramp the whole surface thoroughly.

If the silage is too dry to pack well, water should be added. This is best done by directing a hose in the blower. Well-packed and moistened silage is less likely to mold.

When the silo is filled the silage should be covered to prevent spoilage. A layer of cut corn or sorghum stalks from which the ears or grain have been removed do this effectively.
