Sweden Birthplace of Early American Artist

Gustavus Hesselius has been called "the first painter of recognized merit known to have practiced his art in this country," but he was not an American by birth. He was born in Folkarna, Sweden, in the province of Delecarlia, in 1682. He came to America in 1711, to the Swedish colony on the Delaware river, landing at Christina—now Wilmington, Delaware. He soon went to Philadelphia where he made his home and where he died May 25, 1756.

On September 5, 1721, Hesselius received the first public art commission known to have been given in this country, "to draw ye history of our Blessed Saviour and ye twelve apostles at ye last supper" for the altar of St. Barnabas' church in Queen Anne parish, Maryland. The contract was fulfilled, but the church was destroyed in 1773 and the painting with it. A number of portraits by him survive, however, and are said to be "of decided merit."

Hesselius' son John, born in Philadelphia in 1728, was also a portrait painter, and was the instructor of Charles Willson Peale, who painted the earliest original portrait of General Washington which exists.

Flavor of Food Not Affected by Years

Not many people have eaten, and enjoyed, a cake fifty years old, as was the case at a golden wedding banquet at Hollywood, but the record for ancient fare probably belongs to the Brussels antiquary who a few years ago invited some of his colleagues to a remarkable feast.

The bread at the Brussels banquet was made from wheat found in one of the Pyramids, believed to have been there three thousand years, and it was buttered with butter made in the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

Wine served centuries old, recovered from a vault in Corinth, and included in the menu were apples 1-800 years old, discovered among the ruins of Pompeii.

A few years ago some members of the Zoological society of Ireland sampled eggs brought from China fifty years previously, which they declared to be quite good and of a delicate flavor—in parts.

Royalty on Show

The elaborate pomp that always attended France's former royal families is shown in "Versailles: Its Life and History," by Cecilia Hill. Devised to impress their subjects, it extended even to their meals, and the royal appetites received a publicity that became offensive. In the Salon du Grand Convert, a long room, connected with the king's dining-room by a small door and narrow passage, "the queens of France," said Miss Hill, "ate their meals in incredible pomp, each dish, each drink being attended with almost as much ritual as the king's, and watched too by the public, anybody who was decently dressed being admitted to watch royalty eat. Energetic people did the round; watched the king as he ate his soup, were in time to see the queen eat, and hurried to the other side of the palace to gaze at princesses with dessert. Marie Antoinette, the bird in the gilded cage, found this custom so intolerable that she abolished it. But then, Marie Antoinette was a revolutionary."

Needs Human Skill

All the best china is still made on a potter's wheel and requires the skill of the human hand to give it the desired shape. After the potter places the lump of kneaded clay on his rapidly spinning wheel, he shapes it into a cup, saucer or plate with his fingers. Handles and other attachments are made separately and placed on the dish forms while the clay is still soft. From the potter's wheel the formed dishes go to the gas furnace for the first rough firing. They must have even heat and must not be placed so they will adhere to each other. The firing process lasts about three days. Three more days are required for the dishes to cool. This cooling off must take place slowly or the dishes crack.

Naked Truth

"This is a cynical world, when viewed through the eyes of the modern child," said David Starr Jordan. "Children have a way of presenting the truth about their elders with ghastly clarity."

"Quite recently, when I boarded a train in San Francisco, a family group took the two seats in front of me. They spent several minutes in adjusting themselves but at last were settled. At this moment the little girl of the family stuck her head out the window and said to a group of friends on the platform: "We'll be gone in a minute and then you can talk about us and we'll talk about you."

Jutland in History

Jutland, a part of the kingdom of Denmark, was the home of the ancient Jutes, a Teutonic people akin to the Saxons. In early times many Jutes, like the Saxons, crossed to England and settled in the southern part of the island. It was off the coast of Jutland that on May 31, 1916, was fought the principal naval battle of the World War, resulting in the German high seas fleet being compelled to flee back to its protected base. This great fleet did not come out again until it came to surrender according to the terms of the armistice of November 11, 1918.

Want Crossing Eliminated

The Public Service Commission at Harrisburg has been asked to wipe out the "death trap" at Stony Brook, York county. This is the double crossing where so many people have been killed.

Education Vs. Taste

Decoration is matter of education. Taste alone is an unsafe guide, for what you once thought the acme of perfection sometimes becomes the relic of an immature age.

HISTORY IN CAKE

This replica of historic Independence Hall in Philadelphia is a fine example of the baker's art. It was made by the chef of one of Philadelphia's leading hotels to advertise the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition which will open in that city June 1 and run to December 1 to celebrate the 150th anniversary of American Independence. The "State House" stands on a table at the entrance to the main dining room of the hotel.

—This Year Don't Make This Costly Mistake
Plan this year to keep your cows in the barn, on a Larro ration, until you know you can turn them out without sacrificing profit. Too early pasturing is costly—it will cut milk production, pull down the condition of your cows, and damage the pasture itself. By all means use your pasture when it's ready, but right now your best bet is Larro.
