Now—Put Your Cows on a Full Schedule This is the time to put your dairy cows in condition to produce all the milk they can next fall and winter, when prices are highest. Every pound of Larro fed now will be paid back at a premium with milk in later months. Put your cows today, on a full Larro ration, and they'll start the heavy milking season in condition to work on full schedule. DANIEL WOLGEMUTH FLORIN, PENNA.

Home Health Club WEEKLY LETTER WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE BULLETIN BY DR. DAVID H. REEDER SANITARY SURVEYS: From time to time the Home Health Club has been called upon to make sanitary surveys for farm buildings, factories and even villages. Not long ago one of these requests came from a rural home where there had been a great deal of sickness without apparent cause and it is a most instructive study to seek out the underlying cause and a very gratifying thing to be able to remove that cause. The climate in that locality is typical of the central states and the soil is that rich, black loam, which delights the heart of a practical stock and grain farmer. As usual, where this black soil is found, the surface of the land is almost level. When the heavy rains come in the spring the water remains in pools or runs off so slowly that the ground is kept moist for long periods. Tilling is necessary to successful farming and all of the farm had been successfully tilled, except about ten acres immediately surrounding the house and barns. In the barn yard I found the Milch cows and other cattle wading in a slimy mud that was partly made up of rotting straw stock with horse, hog and cattle manure mixed in. The land seemed to be so rich that the manure had not been hauled to the fields where it should be and the cattle and hogs wallowed in the accumulation of several years. At one side of the barnyard was the well. Not very deep, as it was dug when they first settled there and an abundance of splendid, clear, soft, water had been found without the expense of digging very deep. I did not drink any of it. I have a good nose and it would have given me timely warning, even if my powers of observation had not already done so. Not over 80 feet away I found also where the privy had been built over an open vault or pit, that was dug at the same time as the well. The vault was 6 feet deep and had never been cleaned. The well was 36 feet deep and was a very natural drainage for the vault as well as for the barnyard. I ordered all water from the well to be boiled before using and even then the well must be filled up just as quick as a new one could be driven and properly safeguarded. The new well for the stock only to be 100 feet away from the old one and 50 feet from the barnyard fence. Chloride of lime in liberal quantities was thrown into the privy vault and it was then filled up. An aseptic tank or receptacle was built for the privy and another well driven on that side of the house, opposite from the barn and the pump installed in the kitchen. The women were delighted with this part of my plans, as they had always been compelled to carry most of the water 180 feet for domestic purposes. Other improvements were inaugurated and in less than three months a sickly family and the cattle as well as other live stock all began to show the result. A BLACK BABY WAITS IN VAIN By J. ROY MARTIN Florin, Pa. Ah! There's a sad, sad heart somewhere tonight, And no doubt you wonder why So, I'm going to tell you about it, But I hope you will not cry. 'Tis a story from real life, dear reader, A tragedy, by the way, And perhaps there's a little black kitten Which now does not frisk and play. This faithful cat, and her little black kit, Lived so happy together. But, you can't figure "sure" these modern days, Especially this kind of weather. In order to bring home a mouse each night, Coins with fate she was tossing, And she met her doom on a foggy night, Upon a railroad crossing. As I gazed on that prostrate, lifeless form, My heart was pierced by a thorn. For, I thought of that little black kitten Awaiting for her next morn. How could this sad news be broken to her, "Mother faithful to the end"? So she could know why she'd never see more Mother—her very best friend. No more will this mother return each morn, To that cottage by the way, But, Baby still waits just the same for her Not knowing where Mamma can stay. Perhaps it is well that she cannot know, Of tragedy such as this, And forget all about that dear mother, And live on in perfect bliss. And nightly now as I hear this kitten, With its plaintive mournful cry, I wonder and wonder so very much, Why any creature must die. Maybe its the lot of all living things Some real sadness for to know, And some hearts are aching with grief tonight, There by the fireside's glow. No doubt a suggestion is due, right here, Regardless of how it sounds, Who knows but that they may both meet again, In those "Happy Hunting Grounds". This may not appeal to present day folks, They may not care to feel sad, Especially in this fast age of ours, With most of us "pleasure mad". But, perhaps some aged and gray Grandma, While busy with her 'nittin', May feel sympathy and real compassion— For—this little Black Kitten.

Popular Russian Dish Elaborate and Tasty Of Russia's many national dishes, Soljanka is perhaps the most popular. This is a much more elaborate preparation than Vienna snitzel or Hungarian goulash. It is rich and piquant without being unduly heavy or greasy, as are most Slav dishes. To make it the Russian housewife takes 2 pounds of cooked beef, veal, ham or chicken, either singly or in combination, 2 pounds of boiled cabbage, 1/2 teaspoonful flour, 1 onion, 2 pickles, 10 olives, 10 pickled mushrooms, a few truffles and 1/4 pound butter. The onion and cabbage are chopped fine and fried in butter until soft. The meat is cut into thin slices. Then the cook truffles a deep pudding dish, making it inch deep with alternate layers of meat and cooked cabbage. The top layer should be of cabbage, and on this is placed slices of pickled mushrooms, olives, truffles and pickles. White sauce or brown beef sauce is then poured over all and the dish is baked in an oven for one hour and served hot in the same pudding dish, with a sprinkling of chopped parsley on top. Choose Right Storage Squashes, pumpkins, and sweet potatoes need a dry location, but also need to have a temperature between 50 and 60 degrees. Shelves in the furnace cellar are good places to store these vegetables. Foods ordinarily pure and wholesome such as cheese and sugar will, if confined in an air-tight space, generate gas which becomes dangerous to humans.

CALF WITH TWO HEADS LIVES HALF AN HOUR A Guernsey calf with two heads was born Thursday at the stables of Arthur Meyers, of Myertown. The calf lived thirty-five minutes. Both heads were perfectly formed and protruded from the neck like a slingshot fork. The calf bellowed a half dozen times, both mouths opening at once and the noise resembling the sounding of two horns. Meyers declared he will have the calf's body mounted. AUTOISTS KILL DEER ON STATE HIGHWAYS As Milton Kester was driving along the highway near Beach Haven, he ran into a herd of four deer, two buck and two doe, that ran out in front of his machine. The deer came out so suddenly, that one large buck was killed, the machine swerving off the road and into a pole and turning over.
