VALUE OF OPINION
There will always be differences of opinion between the governments of the world, an eminent man has declared, but there will unlikely ever be such differences of opinion as will be worth a war to settle.

NUT TO CRACK
Millions of American housewives reading about the apple growers of some states giving away apples by the carload, will wonder why they cost a nickel each in town. If you can explain this riddle, you can solve the most pressing problem of agriculture.

CONSTRUCTIVE POLICIES ESSENTIAL
No nation in the world uses so profusely of the products of its metal mines and oil wells as does the United States, because no people enjoy luxuries which these industries provide. That is why we should all be interested in a constructive and encouraging governmental policy toward these industries.

LOOKING BACKWARD AND FORWARD
Suppose 30 years ago we should suddenly have had placed before our vision the panorama of hundreds and thousands of automobiles, an increasing number of them fine ones, that greet our eyes today? What would have been our impression then as to the financial condition of the country?

RED TAPE
A gun collector recently sought to buy some obsolete war material, for museum purposes. Some of it dated back to the Civil War; all of it is old and as little usable as witch charms. It was for sale. But it took days of time of officials to whom the government pays thousands of dollars a year, to negotiate the sale of three dollars' worth of stuff. A private company would have handled such an order between mails. This incident has a lesson for those who wish to learn.

WE SURE NEED IT
Either some one is going to "show up" the crowd who contemplate building that new bridge over the Susquehanna river at Columbia or they mean business themselves. While they are dilly-dallying over legalities, along comes a crowd who contemplate building a bridge above Columbia at a point where the Susquehanna is not near as wide as farther down.

THE WAGE EARNER
The increase in wages and the still greater decrease in prices of commodities during the past six years are cited by Secretary of Commerce Hoover in his recent annual report as demonstrating "One of the most astonishing transformations in economic history." This he attributes to elimination of waste and other contributing factors.

Roadside Trees
Success in roadside tree planting, says the United States Department of Agriculture, depends on properly locating the plants along the highway, selecting suitable varieties, and adequately protecting them from thoughtless persons, roving stock, and insects and diseases. The best effects in roadside planting are usually produced by giving the predominant place to the common plants of the neighborhood, using introduced plants in subordinate positions. Next in desirability are plants from regions having similar growing conditions either in this country or abroad. Oaks are more generally useful for roadside planting than any other kind of tree. There are species of this tree native to nearly all parts of the country.

brought to a happy ending by some one who knew how to apply a spark of real humor. For instance, when someone asked Eddie Cantor, the popular comedian of Jewish birth, what he thought of the Klu Klux Klan, he said: "well, if it ever gets on a paying basis, I think the Jews will take it over." Neither is humor cure-all. When we have real troubles like the man and his family mentioned above, we can't help but worry and feel a bit weary with the load of our burden. Nevertheless, there are many times when a real sense of humor can be a powerful factor in chasing away gloom and dull care. It also acts as a wonderful safety valve when we feel like blowing up. Thackeray calls humor "A mixture of love and wit." Our movie comedians seem to think humor is a mixture of custard pie and mud throwing. Most of us prefer Thackeray's version. Because, when our humor is mixed with "love and wit," it cannot help but brush the cob-webs of worry from our brain and at the same time open the window of our heart so that the sunshine of good fellowship shines in.

The Baby Beef

Under favorable conditions there are several advantages in producing young beef for market rather than mature beef. Young cattle make larger gains than older cattle on the same quantity of feed, yearlings being able to make 25 to 40 per cent more gain than mature cattle on the same feed. Furthermore, by raising and fattening calves the money invested can be turned over in a short time. Young beefs offer greater choice in the date of marketing because they hold their bloom longer. This is a decided advantage if the market is unsteady or weak. Cattle with inferior form and poor quality are not suitable for the production of desirable beef. To produce young beef, grain must be fed in considerable quantities from time of weaning or even before to the time of marketing. When the feed consists chiefly of roughage, no attempt should be made to feed out calves. Calves to qualify for this purpose must have quality and finish. One of the best breeds (Shorthorn, Hereford, * Aberdeen-Angus, and Galloway) should be used in the production of young beef. The tall coconut palm tree helps supply mankind with butter, soap, candles, candy, butter, sugar, paper, rope, baskets, brushes, mullage, and many other articles. To the savage it supplies all earthly needs, building materials, fuel, sleeping mats, food, drink and medicine.
