Pole Cat Sole Resident of Town That Was to Be Lofton, Texas—The sole resident of Lofton is a polecat; the sole structure of the "city" is a white sign bearing the word "Lofton" reared high over the plains.

But despite this paucity of citizens and absence of buildings Lofton appears on all good Texas maps; is on a good railroad, has a first-class highway at its front door and is distinguished by a grassy lawn that covers the whole town.

The town, in fact, is one of those lost hopes that sometimes spring from the coming of a railroad. The ground was laid off as a townsite, but the town never materialized. That was 13 years ago. The railroad was built, the highway was constructed, the town was named, but nobody settled there except the beautifully striped cat. This animal has been there so long that he is accepted as an institution and remains a solitary ruler of his domain.

Yodling Lost Art in Switzerland Mountains Lucerne—Yodling is a lost art in Switzerland. Shepherds and farm hands look astance at American tourists who ask them to yodle. A party of tourists visiting Switzerland repeatedly asked natives for a yodle or two. None responded. They all looked puzzled. Suddenly, just around a bend on the main road, came the thrilling notes of a perfect yodle and the visitors hurried to get a glimpse of the performer. He proved to be a lusty American tourist.
