Making a Thorough Job
"Dear Harold," wrote his ex-sweetheart, "as you are probably aware, I am to be married to Mr. Blank the coming month. I shall, therefore, appreciate it if you will burn all the little notes I sent you, assuring you of reciprocity with regard to those you sent me."
"Dear Dorothy," he replied promptly, "I shall certainly comply with your request at once. And, incidentally as your fiancé holds a few notes of mine, I shall deem it a great favor if you will induce him to burn them with the rest."

World Always Good to Man Who Laughs

The mere fact of laughing heartily does one good. It makes the world seem a kinder place and it draws one closer to one's fellows. To be entirely engrossed in oneself and one's problems induces a morbid state of mind but as long as one can laugh with others and thus blow away the cobwebs from one's brain, one is safe from the isolation of despair and egotism. Of course I mean laughing that is free from either superiority or bitterness which is certainly a tonic to the whole spiritual system. Laughter clears the air, and the very fact that a man can laugh heartily is a sign not alone that he can enjoy life but that he has a sense of proportion about life. The capacity to laugh is much more than a capacity to see the funny side of things. It is really a sign of sanity. People who take themselves too seriously cannot laugh simply; people who are too overwhelmed by existence cannot laugh naturally. To laugh is not to be callous, it is to be balanced. And true laughter, being the expression of a simple emotion, is thoroughly healthy and sound. It is the outcome of a sense of humor, and a sense of humor arises primarily from a sense of values.—Exchange.

Monarch Mixture of Courtier and Buffoon

Of the famous manners of George IV of England many stories are told. Once when riding he happened upon a man pilloried for issuing a libel against the ruler and wrote an apology "for the seeming indelicacy" of taking advantage to view him. Again he took the old Lady Clermont to her carriage and begged her to take her time and not hurry, for gallantly said he, "If you tumble, I shall tumble with you." The ruler, who achieved more by charm than character, in the estimate of Shane Leslie, a recent biographer, also was a famous mimic. On a journey to Hanover he convulsed the sovereign of the Netherlands by mimicking the old Stadtholder during his visit to Carlton house. The "Granville Papers" give a peep behind the scenes of 1805 when he was prince of Wales; "Lord Abercorn is furious with the prince. The prince takes him off remarkably well lying along the bench with his arm across looking very fierce and stretching out his legs as though he was trying to kick Lord Granville."

One Thing to Live For

Mrs. Nagser had married a wealthy husband and as a consequence had spent much of her married life in travel. At home she had had her every wish gratified almost instantly. In fact nothing interested her any more. She was bored with life.
"Sometimes," she said one afternoon to Mrs. Holland, who had dropped in for tea, "sometimes I feel I have nothing in the world for which to live."
Mrs. Holland shook her head sadly, then suddenly brightened.
"Well, there's spite, my dear, there's spite."

Value of Courtesy

Courtesy is the one medium of exchange that is always accepted at par by the people of every country on the globe. Courtesy radiates a spirit of good feeling and suggests that we are not working entirely for the material return of work, but for the friendly human associations as well. Life is not too short, and we are never too busy to be courteous.
Courtesy is the outward expression of an inward consideration for others. It is always an effective lubricant that smooths business and social relationships, eliminating friction.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Spiders Love Music?

Do spiders enjoy music? A London organist has noticed that every time he starts to play the organ a spider swings down over the keyboard by a single thread of its web.
As soon as the music stops he disappears. Either very soft or very loud music also causes the spider to disappear.
During a concert at Leipzig, a spider seemed to like violin music. During two violin solos, he dropped down from a chandelier by its web, went back up again when the violin music stopped.

Tale of a Tail

During the summer a certain number of American visitors endeavored to smuggle dogs into England when they landed at Southampton, remarks the London Post.
One day an official encountered a lady whom he had every reason to suppose was infringing the law.
"Madame," he told her, "it is contrary to the regulation to bring dogs into this country." The lady protested that she had no dog. "Then, madame," said the official coldly, "I am to understand that the tail hanging down below your coat is your own!"
