WOMEN IN TELEPHONE CO. LEARN PRINCIPLES OF HEALTHY LIVING

A class of young women receiving instruction on keeping fit in the general health course.

Health is recognized as an all-important ingredient of happiness and contentment by The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, and everything possible is done by the company to make healthy living an everyday matter.

Not only is there a medical department maintained by the organization, but two rest homes, as well. These homes are located in the country, and provide a place where young women may go to recuperate after any serious illness. The fee charged is nominal, and competent supervision and attention is given those who are at the home. At the present time a course of instruction in how to gain and keep good health is being given by trained instructors. It consists of a series of lessons, talks and lectures, as well as practical instruction, about how to safeguard against illness and how to treat illness when it occurs. Classes are open to all women employees, and are conducted without charge. Attendance, although it is voluntary, is of such volume as to prove that the opportunity of learning is not passed up by many who have it.

The course outlines every phase of keeping fit, and also includes methods of rendering first aid and treatment in various emergencies. The students not only learn how to care for themselves, but are taught how to care for others, as well. Methods of treatment for all less serious maladies is given so that in case of sickness the right thing may be done for the person who is ill.

When the course is finished, the students attend a graduation exercise, at which those who have completed the course are given a certificate. Officials of the company state that since the beginning of the course, many less cases of illness have been reported than were noticed before the instruction began. This indicates they think, a very definite reward for the trouble and expense to which the company has gone.

Bank Vaults Flooded to Outwit Burglars
Remarkable and elaborate defenses are included in the rebuilding of the Bank of England. It is possible, in case of invasion or other emergency, to flood the vaults from three points—one in the bank, one elsewhere in London, and one ten miles out of London.

The walls are constructed of reinforced concrete blocks, six feet long by two feet wide by two feet thick. The reinforcement is made from old steel-wire ship cables, which are separated into single strands.

These steel wires are interlaced in to panels six feet by two feet, and placed in the mold, one on top of the other, until the mold is full of steel-wire matting. Liquid concrete is then poured in the mold, and the whole is slaken to work the concrete into every crack and corner.

All these concrete blocks have "keys" at each end to interlock them when in position. There are also semicircular grooves at the ends of the blocks. Two blocks together form a circular groove up and down which pass electric wires. Any attempt to displace a block breaks these wires and an alarm is immediately sounded.

Give Lawn Good Bath
