

OWL-LAFFS
BY O. W. L.
(On With Laughter)

The other day a fellow stopped at John Dillinger's tire shop and asked John if he charged more for changing one tire than another. John said: "No, I have a flat rate."

A certain youngster at an up town home saw the family cat lying lazily in the sun on a window sill. He ran and exclaimed: "Mother the cat went to sleep and left his engine running."

I asked a certain fellow how long he has been working at the shoe factory and he said: "Ever since they threatened to discharge me."

Roy Sheetz sez: "She was only a soldier's sweetheart, but now she's an officers mess."

Down at the county jail the warden asked a prisoner, "Are you here for manslaughter?" The prisoner replied: "Naw, I

... told that fool judge twice it was a woman I killed."

Up at Ellis' pool room the other evening one of the fellows said: "I have a suit for every day in the week." The fellows all looked at each other when out of the silence came these words: "And this is it."

Overheard an argument the other night and now I'm convinced that women live longer than men. You know paint is a great preservative.

Back at school the other day a teacher in one of the grades asked a pupil to name all the flowers she knew and here's what she said: "Wild, tame and Collie."

A lot of girls in this town must be mourning the loss of their sweethearts. I see so many of them wearing their hose at half mast.

One of the sales ladies over at Hauer's said to a man yesterday: "Could I interest you in some underwear?" He said: "I'll say you could."

I heard a fellow brag about going to Lancaster on a bicycle but I knew a fellow once who went to Atlanta, Ga., on a sentence.

There was an old man named Sidney. Who drank till he ruined a kidney. It shriveled and shrank. As he sat there and drank. But he had a good time of it, didn't he?

While bathing down at Maple Grove recently a young lady from town said to the life guard there: "Would you save my life if you had the opportunity?" He replied: "Of course I would."

Then she replied: "Well then get me a drink."

Next week I'm going to make some person a present of a furnished coffee pot if they will tell me the correct meaning of the word boob spelled backward.

You know some of our young fellows' hearts remind me of those Ford coupes that Clarence Newcomer sells. There's always room for one more.

They're telling a good one on a certain fellow from town who went fishing recently. When his crowd got to the river this fellow was supposed to furnish the bait and he didn't have anything but a pocket full of apples. He handed each of the fellows an apple and said: "They're full of worms."

A horse dealer not so far from here sold a farmer a horse. The first day the man had the animal it deliberately walked into almost everything, so he took it back and told the dealer the horse was blind. The dealer said: "Oh, no, he isn't blind; he just doesn't give a damn."

There's a certain road house in this section that boasts of so many antiques so I went there to see and by golly one of 'em waited on me.

They served chicken and waffles and right then and there I learned exactly what a waffle was. Waffles are non-skil panakes.

A certain chap went to Undertaker Roy Sheetz and asked him what it costs to fix up a corpse. Roy said he embalms 'em for $50 and freezes 'em for $25. The fellow said: "Well there's a corpse at our house but I guess you only need freeze him from the knees down be-

PENN STATE STARTS 69TH YEAR NEXT WEEK

The sixty-ninth year of instruction at the Pennsylvania State College is to start next Wednesday, September 14, at formal exercises in charge of President Ralph D. Hetzel. The enrollment will again be at capacity, the 3700 students expected during the year including 1000 freshmen. These freshmen arrive at State College this weekend to participate in the third annual Freshman Week program, a daily schedule of instruction in all phases of college life and study the college has found to be a great time saver in getting new students off to a good start. There are no new academic buildings to be opened and only one major faculty change has been made. Dr. David F. McFarland, for seven years head of the department of metallurgy in the School of Mines, has been made acting-dean of that school. E. A. Holbrook, former dean, went to the University of Pittsburgh on the first of September.

Insect damage to forest trees can be reduced by cutting at the proper time of year and by utilizing lightning-killed trees without delay.

Better-Sires Campaigns in Kentucky

The improvement of domestic livestock in Kentucky is going forward under a system of better-sires campaigns, the purpose of which is to replace scrub and grade bulls and other male breeding animals with purebreds of good breeding. During July such campaigns were held in Gallatin, Owen, and Grant Counties in Kentucky, according to a report to the United States Department of Agriculture from Wayland Roads, State field agent in animal husbandry. The department cooperates by furnishing literature on animal breeding and also farm signs carrying the statement "Purebred sires used exclusively on this farm."

Several thousand persons have attended the meetings held in connection with the better-livestock campaigns. Scrub-sire trials and picnics, at which well-bred animals are shown, are features of the occasion. Similar campaigns are to be held in at least seven additional counties during the remainder of the year.

Clothes in Country and City

Contrary to the commonly accepted idea that farm families spend much less for clothing than their city cousins, an investigation by the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture indicates that clothing allowances are approximately equal in the two groups. Only in families having incomes well above the average is there a wide difference, with city families spending more. In 1,337 farm families covered by the survey the average total expenditure was $1,559 of which $225 was spent for clothing. City families with about the same total expenditure averaged $238 for clothing.

ELEMENTS LACKING IN AVERAGE DAIRY RATION

Calcium and phosphorus, two elements likely to be lacking in the average dairy ration, are important bone builders, says United States Department of Agriculture. Feeds that furnish a considerable amount of calcium are properly cured legume hays. Cowpea hay ranks first in calcium content, but alfalfa, soybean, and red clover hays are close seconds. Any of these hays, if well cured and fed in liberal quantities, will furnish the calcium needed by dairy cows. Phosphorus can best be supplied by feeding considerable amounts of wheat bran, cotton seed meal, soybean, or linseed oil meal in the grain ration.

Use Good Apples for Cider

Use sound, clean, mature fruit of late varieties for making apple cider. Unripe apples have less food value and are more sour because of higher malic acid content. Partially grown, odorless, flavorless early windfalls, in which starch has not been changed to sugar, are worthless for cider making.
