

Donegal Society Holds 20th Reunion

(From Page One)

The afternoon address was delivered by Hugh M. North, Jr., Esq., of Lancaster, who gave a historical address on the Boggs family, one of the early families in the history of Donegal church. The president was in charge of the three meetings.

Other officers elected are: Vice Presidents, Miss Arabella Redsecker, Columbia; Dr. James Ziegler, Lancaster; B. Frank Hiestand, of Marietta; B. F. Hoffman, of Bainbridge; Secretary, Samuel C. Slaymaker, Lancaster; Treasurer, John P. Schock, of Marietta; Historian, Miss Josephine Buchanan.

Executive committee: Clarence Schock, Mt. Joy; Mrs. Edward S. J. McAllister, Mt. Joy; Miss Bertha Heisey, Rheims; Samuel Redsecker, Sinking Springs; Horace E. Heisey, Marietta; Miss Virginia Clark, of Lancaster; Mrs. S. R. Slaymaker, Columbia; John P. Schock and Rev. C. Benjamin Segelken, of Mount Joy.

A truer appreciation of the work of the early colonists and a plea for peace among nations was the basis of Colonel McCain's address.

The methods of some modern historians in attacking the Colonial leaders was flayed by Colonel McCain, who declared that at one time these writers would be called "nuckrackers." He said that these men, in writing disparagingly of our national histories, were pretending to hide behind the cloak of what they term to be the truth.

The politician of Chicago, who has stirred up a great fight over the question of British propaganda, alleged to be spread surreptitiously in this country, came in for an attack by McCain, who pointed out that there can be no lasting peace between nations, until all misunderstandings has been wiped away.

He praised the efforts of Secretary Kellogg in endeavoring to bring together the major powers in a pact which would outlaw warfare. "There must be an end to the jealousies among nations," he declared, in summing up his plea for world peace.

McCain paid tribute to Ann Galbreath, an early member of Donegal church, who, when her husband was nominated for a place in the state assembly, mounted her horse and visited the voters in her district, to win their votes for her husband. On election day, he said, Mrs. Galbreath, again mounted her horse and led 200 voters to Lancaster, the voting place, where she addressed them and asked them to vote for her husband.

"There is nothing new under the sun, not even women in politics," Colonel McCain declared, in paying his tribute to Mrs. Galbreath, who, he said, was one of the first women politicians in this state, if not in the entire United States.

"She had no vote, but she had a voice," he said and added that woman's voices have been a powerful factor in many historical events.

He refuted the charge that the early Quakers had used the Scotch-Irish pioneers as a buffer between themselves and the warlike Indians. He praised the Scotch-Irish for their courage, industry and religious tenets, which they held, in the thickest of the pioneer life which they lead in this country and county.

Colonel McCain is a lecturer and for 40 years has been an editorial writer for Philadelphia papers. He has traveled extensively throughout the world and has crossed the Atlantic ocean 30 times. He is the friend of many men prominent in the life of the state and nation.

During the business meeting of the society, a resolution of respect was paid to two late members of the society, T. Burd Zell and John Summy, of Marietta, who died during the last year.

The committee on the cemetery fund gave a report, indicating that plans were being shaped for a campaign to raise $5,000, with which the society proposed to keep the Donegal cemetery in good condition. Clarence Schock is chairman of the committee.

In the morning, Harry Stark and Mrs. Mildred Hoffstadt sang solos, accompanied by Miss Mildred Huss, at the piano. In the afternoon, there was a selection by a quartet composed by Mr. Stark, Mrs. Hoffstadt, Stanley W. Kemmerer, of Easton; and Miss Jessie Reinhold. A number of selections were rendered and were well received by the audience.

Rev. Segelken, pastor of the church gave the prayer at the morning service. Rev. Frederick C. Fowler, pastor of the Marietta Presbyterian church gave the prayer in the afternoon.

A luncheon and supper were served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the church at Zook's farm, near the church.

The nominating committee was composed of the following: Dr. Jas. Ziegler, chairman; Mrs. S. R. Slaymaker and Mrs. Clarence Schock.

Still a Prohibitionist—Head line. Well, there are still those who have done more to induce people to stop trying to drink liquor than almost any other agency one might mention.

General Wrangel, once the leader of the Russian White Army, is dead, but the Soviet slogan would seem to be, long live general wrangle.

MARKETING HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

The sour cherry orchards of New Jersey and Pennsylvania are laden with fruit and there is a fairly plentiful supply on the local market. Wholesale prices are reasonable and will probably be lower as the season advances, according to the Pennsylvania and Federal Bureau of Markets.

Sour cherry season is comparatively short and now is the time to get ready for canning and preserving. Many different containers are used to ship these homegrown cherries to market but the 32 quart crate is about the most common. Baskets holding fifteen to eighteen pounds are also common and are desirable for canning. Retail prices as a rule average lower when your dealer can sell in the same package in which he receives the product. In this way he saves time and loss which always occurs when a large quantity of produce is weighed or measured out into smaller units.

Most of the commercial growers pick the cherries with the stems on and this prevents spoilage and crushing. When a basket of cherries stands for considerable time it is likely to heat and under these conditions decay will soon start. There is a great variation in the size of the cherries but it generally pays to buy the larger ones, since the larger ones have a greater percent of flesh to seed.

The New Jersey strawberry season has just about reached its height and there is an abundant supply on the market. The receipts from Pennsylvania are increasing but the supply from Maryland and Delaware is much lighter than a few weeks ago. Berry prices are not quite as low as they were a few weeks ago but they are still selling at attractive prices.

New Jersey and Pennsylvania berries are marketed soon after they are harvested. They are placed in quart baskets and packed in crates holding 32 quarts. The baskets are well filled which insures proper carrying with a minimum amount of bruising. Many of these berries reach the retailer in from ten to sixteen hours after they are picked.

RESULTS OF COMPULSORY INSURANCE

In a recent address, Clarence C. Wysong, Insurance Commissioner of Indiana, astutely considered one angle of the compulsory automobile liability insurance question.

"Honesty, intelligence and financial standing cannot be legislated into mankind," said Mr. Wysong. "The very moment the state demands that a citizen carry one kind of insurance, then the long march has started and if it be logical to demand that insurance of one kind be carried, then it is just and proper that it be carried upon every risk and liability, and there would be no end to the kinds of insurance that we must carry."

"In the face of such a demand it is obvious that if people were compelled to carry insurance upon each and every liability for which the average man might be held, then the next demand would come from the people that this immense risk be underwritten by the state and that the cost thereof be paid by the people as a whole in the form of taxes for this purpose."

"As a result we would have an automobile fund, and all of the other funds, so that the individual would be lost sight of; incentive for thrift would be wiped away; the government would be in business and the ideals of our national structure would be swept away."

FLOWERS

By Irene F. Shatto

I love the flower kingdom,
The pansies' velvet gowns,
I love the fragrant hyacinth,
Carnations of renown.

I love the golden buttercup,
I'd love to have a sip
Of nature's golden sunlight
To soothe my parched lips.

The slender waving peony,
The dahlia by its side,
The beauty of the daffodil
Can never be denied.

Mignonette, and heliotrope,
Early in the spring,
E're the blossoms care to peep,
Or birds are on the wing.

Oh, bowing, nodding daisy,
You make such little show,
Though I would not forget you,
In legion you may grow.

The sweet old fashioned holly-hocks
Our mother loved so well,
Oh, for a sight of those again,
Which grew hard by the well.

The lily of the valley,
The rose of Sharon too,
All these are gifts from heaven,
Refreshed by heaven's dew.

Save Young Alfalfa

New fields of alfalfa should not be pastured. If the alfalfa has been seeded alone and the weeds become numerous, the field can be cut high when the alfalfa plants are just coming into bloom. Do not cut the alfalfa if there are only a few weeds.

Enroll Ton Litters

If you have good prospects for a ton litter and have not placed the litter in nomination get in touch with the county agent at once. June 30 is the final date for enrolling your porkers this year. Help keep Pennsylvania first in ton litters by growing one yourself this year.

Exposure to dampness, rain, or cold weather after shearing predisposes sheep to catarrh. Lambs with little wool are also susceptible. Continued exposure to bad weather, nasal affections, and parasites in the head may produce a chronic catarrh. In acute catarrh the discharge begins as a clear fluid, which later becomes thick, stringy, and yellowish. It may plug the nostrils by drying around the openings. The eyes also may become congested and show a discharge. In chronic cases a yellowish, fetid discharge continues from the nose and is especially marked after exposure to bad weather. In treating such cases the nostrils may be washed out and sprayed with cresol or coltar disinfectant in 2 per cent solution. Weak animals may be given a stimulant, such as sweet spirits of niter. Powdered, carbonate of iron, 2 teaspoonfuls, and powdered gentian, 2 teaspoonfuls, may be given night and morning in the feed. It is desirable that the sheep be housed or sheltered in bad weather.

Speaking of model husbands, we will bet the Portland, Oregon, woman who can shoot a score of 94 out of a 100 with a revolver has got one.

The busier the New York stock exchange is, and the less time a man has to sit down, the more he has to pay for his seat.

PENNSYLVANIA AT WORK

PENNSYLVANIA'S AUTO TRAFFIC MOVES WITH FEW FATALITIES

Deaths From Auto Accidents Per 100,000 of Population Rate Computed by U.S. Commerce Dept.

Eighteen is Pennsylvania's automobile fatality rate, according to the Commerce department tables. This means that 18 deaths may be expected annually from automobile accidents for each 100,000 of population.

New York's rate is 33.9 and that of Maryland 9.7. California has a rate of 33.9. Connecticut's rate is 19.1 while that of New Jersey is 21.5.

Regulation of automobile and pedestrian traffic to curtail the number of accidents is a problem that is puzzling to officials in all sections of the country. The Commerce department is working to try to solve the puzzle through several national organizations and a group of experts. These traffic engineers have come to the conclusion that the successful solution of the problem lies chiefly with the regulations that are adopted by local and state authorities. They are studying Pennsylvania's success in the reduction of fatalities.

ADVERTISING

Advertising and not competition is now the life of trade, according to the advertising experts who met to attend the International Advertising Association convention. The delegates at this meeting heard a number of interesting things. Among these was the statement by Charles Stelzle, New York expert, to the effect that if churches do not advertise their "ware"—spiritual upbuilding and moral betterment for both the individual and humanity—they cannot hope to arouse interest among the masses and fulfill the obligations placed upon them as parties to the general spiritual movement.

Another speaker declared that "advertising is greater than any single moral force we know of today. Advertising brings about changes for the betterment of life itself, changes which fuse into the social and political life of the nation."

It is now generally admitted by economic forces everywhere that advertising is the most important development of modern business. And it is also coming to be realized that newspaper advertising is the best kind of paid publicity. In the convention just mentioned the delegates who were advertising experts, agreed that newspaper advertising affords the best publicity medium for the churches and all church activities.

Advertising is no longer a theory. It is a science. And it pays.
