GET AUTO PERMITS
Examining units of the State Highway Patrol during the month of March examined a total of 19, 148 applicants for operators' licenses, of which 14,732 passed and 4,416 failed.

The patrol examiners directed that the lighting equipment be corrected on 3345 cars in which applicants presented themselves for examination, and the position of the registration plates changed on 2133 cars.

This makes the total examinations for the first three months of the year 37,750, with a record of 29,400 people having passed and 8,350 failed, and the correction of lighting equipment on 6976 cars and the adjustment of registration plate on 4182 cars.

Six Employees of Bell Co. to be awarded Vail Medals

Five Men and a Woman Cited for Conspicuous Public Service During 1928, and Eight Others Receive Honorable Mention

Top row, left to right: Edward Cannon, Jenkintown; Mary Elizabeth Lindsey, Hollidaysburg; Allard Joseph Davids, McKeesport. Bottom: Andrew John Rauh, Jenkintown; William Anthony McGowan, Bryn Mawr; and Huber Nordeck Fleegle, McKeesport.

Six employees of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, one of whom is a woman, are to be awarded Theodore N. Vail medals for conspicuous acts of public service in emergencies during 1928, it is announced by Leonard H. Kinnard, president of the company.

Four of the awards are to be made to Bell employees "for initiative and conspicuous proficiency in the application of first aid, resulting in the saving of human life."

The awards will be made at special presentation exercises. Those to be awarded medals are:

Mary Elizabeth Lindsey, operator in charge of the Hollidaysburg central office; Edward Cannon, cable splicer, and Andrew John Rauh, cable tester, both of Jenkintown; William Anthony McGowan, cable splicer, Bryn Mawr; and Allard Joseph Davids, installer-repairman, and Huber Nordeck Fleegle, installer, both of McKeesport.

Those cited for honorable mention are: Roy William Grassmyer, combination man, Hollidaysburg; Charlie Grover Hixson, installer-line man, Latrobe; Miss Mary Elizabeth Oger, operator, Latrobe; Miss Hazel Irene Johnston, operator, Latrobe; William Ellsworth Grimm, chief switchman,

Altoona; Miss Adeline Martha Duffy, night chief operator at the Tacony central office, Philadelphia; Glen Conrad Sebring, repairman, Rochester, Pa.; and Miss Margaret Ruth Kleckner, operator, Tamaqua.

The Vail medals were established as memorials to the late president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and are awarded annually to employees of the Bell System for acts or services which conspicuously illustrate Mr. Vail's ideals of public service.

Cannon and Rauh saved the life of a man and a woman critically injured in an automobile accident in Philadelphia, while Davids and Fleegle are credited with saving the life of a small boy hurt in a crash at Wilmerding, near McKeesport.

McGowan is to be awarded a Vail medal for clinging to a pot of blazing paraffin rather than risk dropping it upon the head of a helper on a pole directly beneath him. He suffered severe burns through his sacrificial act.

Miss Lindsey is to be honored for her courage and efficiency when fire broke out in the Hollidaysburg central office. Despite choking smoke and grave personal danger, she remained at the switchboard to handle emergency calls.

Expert in Another State Opens Safe by Telephone

Listens to Sound of Falling Vault Tumblers Over Long Distance Wires and Issues Instructions to Girl, Who Manipulates Combination

The etching illustrates how a lock expert in Weiser, Idaho, succeeded in directing the opening of a safe in Baker, Oregon, by use of the telephone.

Not so many years have passed since long-distance telephone conversations were sometimes marked by a certain degree of difficulty in catching the varying inflections of the human voice.

Telephone users are now accustomed to the transmission of their voices to points thousands of miles away without the slightest loss of tonal volume.

Several recent events have served to bring out with unusual effectiveness the clarity with which the voice and other sounds are flashed across many miles of telephone circuits.

A lock expert in Weiser, Idaho, listening over the telephone to the muffled sounds of falling tumblers in the door of a safe at Baker, Oregon, uttered directions that lead to the opening of the strong box. A girl placed the mouthpiece of a telephone against the safe door in Oregon, and manipulated the dial of the combination. The safe expert listened to the resultant sounds and then proceeded to give instructions which enabled the girl to open the safe within five minutes.

The venerable H. Bickford Pazmor, noted composer and teacher of voice, recently used the telephone to give his daughter, Ridiana, a half-hour singing lesson—although he was in his studio in Oakland, Calif., and she was in her apartment in New York.
Pazmor had composed a song for his daughter's New York recital and his instructions to give her eleventh-hour coaching prompted his recourse to the long-distance telephone. The composer told newspapermen that Miss Pazmor's hitting contralto had flashed over the 3000 miles of telephone wire with the utmost clarity and that she had heard his instructions with equal ease.

Then, there is the case of the theatre owner in a suburb of New York, who wanted to have a certain type of organ installed in his playhouse as quickly as possible, but who first desired a demonstration of its qualities. A salesman explained that the nearest organ of the kind in question was in a conservatory in Chicago. At the owner's suggestion, the theatre owner called the school on the telephone and listened half an hour to the organ's resonant strains. At the close of this novel demonstration he signified his anxiety to close the deal.
The salesman still further established his high-pressure modernity by escorting the theatrical man to a nearby airport, and flew with him to Chicago, where the contract for the organ was signed.

Sitting in his office in Pittsburgh, Howard Heinz, president of the H. J.
Heinz Company, addressed the firm's British branch managers in session in London by making use of the trans-Atlantic telephone service. In commenting on the service, Mr. Heinz said the connection was just as distinct as if it had been made between two points in Pittsburgh.

The farm population of the United States is now the smallest in twenty years, according to the U.
S. Department of Agriculture. It is estimated that on January 1, 1929, there were 27,511,000 persons on farms, as compared with 32,000,000 in 1909.

Provide up-to-date hives for the bees—that is, hives with movable frames in which the bees can build their combs. Keeping bees in boxes, hollow logs, or straw "skeps" is unprofitable and unprogressive.
