PRODUCE & LIVE STOCK MARKET

CORRECT INFORMATION FURNISHED WEEKLY BY THE PENNA. BUREAU OF MARKETS FOR THE BULLETIN

The local potato market was dull today with a limited demand. New Jersey Cobblers sold mostly at $5 per 150 pound sack but there were a few jobbing sales at $5.25 to $5.50. Eastern Shore of Virginia and Maryland Cobblers sold at $4.50 to $5.25 per barrel, according to the Pennsylvania and Federal Market News Service.

Tomatoes were irregular with early sales somewhat higher than yesterday but later in the morning prices declined. Most sales ranged from 50c to $1.00 per 5-8 basket with a few sales at $1.25 to $1.50. There was a good demand for fancy corn but ordinary stock sold slowly. Most sales ranged 50c to 75c per 5-8 basket with a few fancy lots bringing 85c to $1.00. Golden Bantam sold at $1.25 per bushel.

Lima beans were steady at 50c to $1.50 per 5-8 basket while green string beans sold at 50c to $1.15. Beets were dull at 1c to 2c per bunch and carrots at 1c to 2 1/2c. Onions were firm and Pennsylvania yellows sold at $1.40 per 50 pound sack. Peppers sold slowly at 50c to 75c per 5-8 basket while egg plants sold at $1.00.

Peaches were dull and met slow demand. Nearby stock sold at 50c to $1.00 per bushel. Nearby cantaloupes sold slowly due to the competition with liberal receipts by truck from Maryland and Delaware. Most of the New Jersey stock sold at 60c to $1.00 per 5-8 basket. Apples were steady but the demand was rather slow. Gravenstein brought 75c to $1.25 per 5-8 basket while Wealthy and Haglo brought 75c to $1.00.

Blackberries sold at $3.00 to $3.75 per 32 quart crate while huckleberries brought $5.00 to $7.50.

MARKET: Slow, beef steers compared with week ago 25c to 50c lower, none quotable above $14.00, bulk to sell $13.00-13.75. Bulls, she stock and cutters steady, bulk medium bulls $10.25-11.00. Heifers $11.25-12.00, butcher cows $8.50-9.25, cutters $5.50-6.50. Stockers and feeder demand very narrow, closing price 50c lower than a week ago, spots off more, bulk of sales $9.50-10.50. Calves steady at week's 50c to 75c decline, top vealers $17.50.

HOGS: Inactive, tending steady.

Behind the Green Curtain

By KATE EDMONDS

IT WAS a fashionable bazaar at the beautiful country home of the Forbes family, who were known about charitable affairs. All the world of society was there, among them Boyd Mercer, one of the richest young men in the country, and one of the best! Everybody liked him, and many schooling mothers thought of him as a desirable husband for young daughters, or, possibly, daughters not so young! Boyd had met a thousand girls, and not one had raised more than a thrill of admiration in his stony heart.

Boyd was here today at the Forbes charity bazaar, and as usual he was wandering around, finding friends and a welcome at every turn. He bought flowers and distributed them to older women, he bought sweets, which he also distributed. He took all sorts of chances and had phenomenal luck, and then, suddenly bored, he wandered off by himself, admiring the soft lighting of the different gay tents. In one tent he noted the smell of fresh violets and was not surprised to discover a great crystal bowl filled with the purple flowers. Within this tent a pale green curtain separated the crystal gazer from her clients, who waited in the outer part of the tent until they were summoned behind the curtain where the "seance" took place. Boyd stood there in the outer tent, gazing down at the bowl of violets, and hearing the sound of a gentle voice nearby. Suddenly he was aware that it must be the voice of the crystal gazer and he listened eagerly, shamelessly, for he was fascinated by the sweetness of the tone with its occasional lift. Then the voice ceased and he heard a girl's soft laughter, and a merry good-by, then utter silence. At last, a slim mulatto girl in swappings of eastern draperies glided toward him and salaamed. Then as she straightened herself, she swept one arm in a graceful gesture inviting Boyd to enter behind the second green curtain.

Boyd found himself in the presence of a woman, a straight, slim figure, clad in a long medieval gown of jade green with the lower part of the face hidden in a swathing of white.

The woman lifted such wonderful eyes to Boyd Mercer that for the first time in his carefree bachelorhood, he felt a peculiar agitation in the region of his heart. "Hold it!" he told himself savagely, "the rest of her face is most likely hideous. Eyes are deceiving."

"Eyes are the windows of the soul," came the lilting voice of the woman in green, as she sank into a straight, high-backed chair that was a fitting throne for her medieval figure. Her voice had followed so swiftly upon his mental conclusions, that it was just as if she had read his mind.

As she pulled toward her on the green-covered table a crystal ball, she looked up and caught his intense gaze with the snare of her unusual eyes. Then she dropped them swiftly and murmured, "Now, I will gaze into the heart of the future and read fortune's gifts for you."

"Well done," Boyd was thinking. "Very well done. I should like to know that girl."

"Deep in the well of silence lie the great secrets. Think not—concentrate on nothing—the future will be revealed," came the voice of the crystal gazer.

Boyd lost himself in thoughts of what she was doing, gazing deep, deep, into the crystal's heart. He sat tensely trying to think about nothing—a difficult task for an amateur. Then came the voice again, strange, faraway, as if her mind was in the future and her voice was in sympathy with it. "You have wealth—all the wealth of the world could not make you richer if you were not the poorest man in the world! You have not the love of any woman who is not related to you—you have looked in countless eyes—and looked away. Always you will be alone, surrounded by friends who are fond of you. Your face is here in the crystal, but you are always alone. Fame you may have, for you are talented. Go forth and seek the love of a woman for no fortune teller can tell the fate of a man who—"

Noislessly Boyd Mercer crossed the rug and stood on the other side of the table. He, too, leaned over the crystal gazer's great ball and their faces were reflected together in the dark surface.

"Who says that I cannot love, oh, gazer of crystals! Tell me who you are in real life, where you have been all your days that I have never met you before?"

At the sound of the tension in his subdued voice, the crystal gazer sighed deeply, then murmured lightly, "I have always lived in California. When my people took a trip around the world they left me with your cousin, Mrs. Hilton, who was my godmother! I am Grace Allen. Your interview is over, sir. A silver dollar for sweet charity's sake!" And then the brown maid was bowing him out, perhaps with subdued laughter in her eyes.

Of course, Boyd Mercer sought and found his cousin, Myra Hilton, and heard about her friend, the crystal gazer. And later, when Grace Allen came from her tent, laughing, radiant, ly lovely, she held Boyd's cold heart in the hollow of her little warm hands. And she never gave it back to him!

Commencement at State

Plans for the sixth annual commencement of the Pennsylvania State College Summer Session, when more than 100 students will be awarded degrees by President Ralph D. Hetzel, were announced by W. S. Hoffman, college registrar. Dr. Earl Barnes, well known educational lecturer of Winstean, Connecticut, will be the commencement speaker.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

WEEKLY LETTER WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE BULLETIN BY DR. DAVID H. REEDER

HEALTH IN THE GARDEN: There is more than one way in which health may be found in the garden. First and most important is the value of the fresh green vegetables—better than all the mineral dope and poisons ever collected in the largest drug store, better by far because it is safe and pleasant to use. Next in importance is the value of fresh, outdoor air and sunshine that one gets while "making garden" and then comes a factor of which I presume most people never take account; the elimination through the pores of sweat glands of poisonous waste matter that is brought about by vigorous work during the hot spring days.

There is no way of getting this matter out of the system that is so effectual as by active exercise in the open air, exercise that will cause free and copious perspiration.

The tired business man in the city knows the value of good sweat, so he goes to a Turkish bath and lies in a stifling hot room until the water comes from every pore of his skin and while he feels greatly benefited, especially after the thorough massage and the shower, and a plunge in the swimming tank which follows, as a matter of fact he has not received one-half the actual benefit he would have received by a discharge of vastly less water that is thrown out during exercise.

All of these things can be accurately and scientifically proven by a simple chemical analysis of the exudate.

Take a sample of the water thrown out from the pores of the skin while in the Turkish bath and it will be found to contain less than half the impurities and waste or poisonous matter that will be found in the same quantity of sweat that is thrown out during active exercise. Then again the open air as against the heated air of the best ventilated bath house in the world and the garden has ten to one the advantage.

There is an element in the free outdoor air that cannot be had indoors. There is something that helps life to be stronger, freer and more worth while. Just as there is more life and health in the fresh ripe fruit and the fresh raw vegetables than there is in the best cooked meal that was ever served by a great chef.

By all means have a garden and pick the fresh crisp vegetables just before you are ready to eat them. The city man cannot buy such a luxury; they must come direct from the bountiful hand of mother nature. A recent farmer's bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture at Washington, especially emphasizes this point in regard to sweet corn, showing how some of the finest varieties lose most of their delicate and delicious flavor in from twenty to thirty minutes after being picked, but when at once cooked and eaten are delicious. All readers of this publication are at liberty to write for any information upon the subject of health at any time. Address all communications to Dr. David H. Reeder, Mainway Bldg., 31st & Main St., Kansas City, Mo. giving full name and address and at least six cents in postage.

Rats appear to have a strong aversion for certain odors, such as cresote, carbolic acid, and other coal and wood-tar derivatives, kerosene, and peppermint and wintergreen oils, and this may be taken advantage of in protecting stored grain from the rodents, or in preventing reoccupation of old rats burrows. Flake naphthalene scattered on the floor and over the bags of sacked grain will keep away the rats and won't injure the seed. Non-odoriferous compounds that rats avoid can be used where an odorous material would be objectionable, as where foodstuffs are kept. Among these are powdered sulphur, lime, lye, and peppers. Sulphur particularly has been found to be excellent in protecting stored grains from the ravages of rats.

Eggs are scarce on most farms during the fall and winter because the chickens do not get enough protein for rapid growth during the summer. An egg, aside from the shell, contains 13.4 per cent protein, while poultry flesh contains 21.5 per cent protein. A mixture of corn, wheat, and other grains contains only about 10 per cent protein and should be supplemented with a mash containing high-protein feeds. Proteins from animal sources are generally better than those of vegetable origin. Meat scrap, fish meal, milk, and tankage are good sources of animal protein. Such feeds not only increase egg production but lower the cost of production.

WEEK SEES 22 MILES OF STATE ROAD LAID

The state department of Highways announced Wednesday that twenty-two miles of concrete were constructed last week, bringing the total for the year up to 194.46 miles. There are 196 contracts now under way in all sections of Pennsylvania.

Flock of White Cranes
State police and game wardens are seeking the miscreants who fired upon a colony of more than 20 rare white cranes which have been making their home in the vicinity of the H. L. Shank farm, near Lancaster.

Another FINE FEATURE.. Plymouth has Oversize Tires

YOU will find on Plymouth the largest tires of any car in the low-priced field. Real oversize balloons—4.75—more than ample for this full-size car.

That is why the improved Plymouth, with so much else to talk about, devotes an entire advertisement to oversize tires.

Larger tires mean riding on more air, which in turn means greater buoyance and comfort. Then, too, larger tires wear longer, add much to appearance and, most important of all, give the car greater traction, a firmer grip on the road which means safety.

From tires to roof, from radiator to gasoline tank, Chrysler engineers have endowed the improved Plymouth with qualities and abilities never before available in a car of low price. Make your own comparisons in your own way.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER OF GREAT VALUE ACCORDING TO STATEMENT OF NOTED EDITORIAL WRITER—PROVEN BY FACTS

Arthur Brisbane, one of the best minds of the time, says:

"H. Z. Mitchell's 'Sentinel,' published at Bermidjii, Minn., wins the prize as best weekly in the National Editorial Contest. This is a good time to remind the public in general, and national advertisers in particular, that country weekly newspapers are the most important organs of public opinion and protectors of public welfare.

"And, their advertising per mill line, is not excelled by any publication, of any kind.

"The reader of a country weekly buys everything from shingles on the roof to cement in the cellar floor, and every advertiser has in him a possible customer."
