SOME CANINE PARASITES ARE DANGEROUS TO MAN

Dogs and cats, favorite household pets as they are, are attracted by more species of parasites than most animals. In a recent article written for the Veterinary Alumni Quarterly, Dr. Emmett W. Price, of the United States Department of Agriculture, says these two animals have been reported as hosts for about 475 species of parasites, some of which affect both, and some only one of the animals.

"Aside from the high mortality in dogs due to parasitic infection," Doctor Price says, "there are other points which should not be minimized. Some of the species which occur in dogs may also infest man, either in their adult or larval stages such infestations frequently proving fatal."

Several varieties of fleas are known to be carriers of bubonic plague, Doctor Price says, and one of the tapeworms of man passes one stage of its life cycle in dogs. Fleas are also believed to be carriers of infantile Kala-azar, a tropical protozoan disease. The dog is also infested by a lung fluke which may be identical to the species causing fatal illness in man.

The present-day practice of shipping dogs from one part of the country to another for shows or for competition in field trials affords an excellent opportunity for the spread of canine parasites, Doctor Price points out. For some of the parasite infestations of dogs and cats, veterinary science has developed effective remedies. For many, however, no remedy is known which will kill the parasite without killing the host as well.

Market Cull Hens—Pennsylvania poultrymen may kill two birds with one stone by selling their "boarder" hens during August. This will reduce the feed bill and contribute to more profitable egg production. The price for hens is usually higher in August than September.

Bud Fruit Trees Now—This is the best time of the year for budding fruit trees. Do the work now before the bark begins to "stock."

Wilkes-Barre — $635,000 headquarters building being erected on South Main Street by Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Sun baths should be given to all well children to keep them well and to many sick children to help make them well. They should, however, be given carefully at first, exposing only a small area of the child's skin to the sunlight until he is used to it and has acquired a protective coat of tan.

Kill weeds in lawns and along fence rows before they go to seed. A great deal of hard work later will thus be prevented.
