THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER OF GREAT VALUE ACCORDING TO STATEMENT OF NOTED EDITORIAL WRITER—PROVEN BY FACTS

Arthur Brisbane, one of the best minds of the time, says: "H. Z. Mitchell's 'Sentinel,' published at Bermidji, Minn., wins the prize as best weekly in the National Editorial Contest. This is a good time to remind the public in general, and national advertisers in particular, that country weekly newspapers are the most important organs of public opinion and protectors of public welfare. "And, their advertising per mill line, is not excelled by any publication, of any kind. "The reader of a country weekly buys everything from shingles on the roof to cement in the cellar floor, and every advertiser has in him a possible customer."

EDUCATING THE MOTORING PUBLIC

VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR MOTORISTS FURNISHED THE BULLETIN BY LANCASTER AUTOMOBILE CLUB

Lancaster Automobile Club Warning to motorists to beware of the menace of carbon monoxide in the closed garage was issued today by the Lancaster Automobile Club.

"Several thousand lives are snuffed out in the United States each year by this poison," said S. Edward Gable, president of the Federation, "and with the increased number of automobiles in use this death list will increase if motorists do not exercise more care. The simplest and safest precaution is never to run the motor unless the garage door, or at least one window, is open. An engine running in a closed garage of ordinary type will produce enough carbon monoxide gas in a few minutes to cause death."

Monoxide gas is harmless when there is sufficient fresh air to counteract its effect, the Auto Club head stated, but deadly when there is not enough oxygen. "This gas claims most of its victims in garages that are closed, with no means for the inflow of fresh air," he explained. "Often the blowing shut of a door will close off the necessary ventilation and lead to disastrous, perhaps fatal results, but this danger can be guarded against if a stone, a stake or hook is used to hold the door in place."

"Sudden headache usually is a sign to the motorist working in a garage with the engine running that there is carbon monoxide present in dangerous quantities," Mr. Gable said. "When that signal is evident the wise motorist will get into the open air at once, for carbon monoxide is colorless and odorless, and difficult to detect."

"Suppliment care for thoughtlessness in the garage, and in the home, and the fight against this deadly monster is won. Remember that in this crusade fresh air is your most effective weapon. A bit of care and caution on the part of each car owner in this respect will result in cutting the toll of carbon monoxide victims to a minimum."

Keystone Automobile Club The greatest single cause of automobile accidents in Pennsylvania in the last nine months was the operation of motor vehicles on the wrong side of the road.

This disclosure is made by the Keystone Automobile Club, in a tabulation of accident causes based on reports received by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. Fifty-seven persons lost their lives in such accidents. There were 4233 non-fatal crashes, making the total from this cause alone 4290.

"We believe it is important to call attention to this class of accident," says a statement by the Club, "because the average driver is unaware of the peril he subjects himself to when he deviates from the rule of keeping to the right. Grade crossings and other spectacular accidents usually carry their own moral, but it is safe to say that very few motorists give any thought to the seriousness of violating this cardinal rule of the road. "The law is specific in its requirement. Upon all highways of sufficient width," says the Vehicle Code, "except upon one way streets, the driver of a vehicle shall drive the same upon the right half of the highway, and shall drive as closely as possible to the right-hand edge or curb of such highway, unless it is impossible to travel on such side of highway, and except upon overtaking and passing another motor vehicle, subject to the limitations applicable in overtaking and passing set forth in this act."

"Another clause in the Code which many motorists ignore, and which, incidentally, has bearing on the present subject, is that requiring vehicles making a right turn to keep as closely as possible to the right-hand curb. It is the custom of thousands of drivers in making a right turn to swing to the left before entering the intersecting highway. Many accidents have been due to this practice, drivers of following vehicles assuming the car ahead was about to turn left, only to discover the real nature of the maneuver when too late to stop."

Rigid Rules Laid Down for Wifely Department

Wifely comportment of the standard of 1929 is outlined in an excerpt from "The Goodman of Paris," recently translated into English for the first time by Eileen Power. The author, a Paris merchant, was sixty years old, his wife fifteen:

"When you go to town or to church you should be suitably accompanied, according to your estate, and especially by worthy women, and flee suspicious company . . . and as you go, bear your head straight, keep your eyelids lowered and still look straight before you about four rods ahead and upon the ground, without looking nor turning your gaze upon any man or woman to right or top left, nor looking up, nor glancing from place to place, nor laughing nor stopping to speak to anybody on the road. And when you have come to church, choose a secret and solitary place before a fair altar or image, and there remain and stay without moving thither and thither, nor going to and fro, and hold your head upright and keep your lips ever moving saying orisons and prayers."—Kansas City Star.

Child Behavior Merely Reflection of Parents'

There is no mystery about children. They are puzzling, often, but they are never incomprehensible. At least, they are not incomprehensible to old folks and I think they need not be to parents.

Fathers and mothers are themselves the keys to their offspring. A disorderly father should be able to understand why his image will not put away his toys. A quick-tempered mother should not have to call a doctor for her daughter's tantrums; he can only advise self-control—in the mother.

The mystery is about parents, young parents, busy with their own affairs, too preoccupied with their future to think of the present of their children and to recall how it was with them when they were young.

"Run away, now, and play. Papa is reading his newspaper." Parents say that, not grandparents. Grandparents do not consider the news so important as parents do. Grandpa has time and memories, some soft knowledge, some sense of proportion. —Lincoln Steffens in the North American Review.

Puss Expert Fish Catcher

Cats, in their primitive state, are born hunters and fishers and on tombs of ancient Egypt appeared representations of cats accompanying their masters on fowling expeditions. One of the most interesting accounts of cats as fishers, found in the Plymouth Journal, relates: "There is now at the battery, on Devil's point, a cat which is an expert catcher of the eel, being in the constant habit of diving into the sea and bringing up the fish in her mouth and depositing it in the guardroom for the use of the sailors. She is now seven years old and has long been a useful cat." —Detroit News.

By Installments

All the morning she had been trying to teach her small pupils the mysteries of simple addition. One small boy seemed far behind the others at grasping even the simplest ideas. "Look here, Bobby" she said, for the fifth time. "Let's suppose your father saves $5 every week for four weeks. What will he have at the end of that time?" Bobby had his answer ready. "A phonograph, a new suit, a wireless set, and new furniture for the house," he replied, proudly.

Disseminates Knowledge

The National Geographic society was founded in 1888. The object of the society is to obtain and disseminate geographical knowledge. This is attained in the first instance by members' undertaking distant travels at their own expense in some cases, and in others assisted by the funds of the society or grants from the government; and in the second instance by lectures delivered and works issued under the auspices of the society, or by papers read and commented on at periodical meetings.

Snakes and Prairie Dogs

It is often said that rattlesnakes live in prairie dog colonies, where they dwell in peace with the prairie dogs and with burrowing owls. "The peacefulness of this relation," says Dr. Karl P. Schmidt of the Field museum in Chicago, "is certainly open to question, in view of the rattlesnake's fondness for small mammals as an article of diet." The belief that snakes and prairie dogs live peacefully together is in all probability untrue.—Pittsburgh Magazine.

Use Winter Vegetables

Parsnips and salsify are often left in the garden over the winter and used in the early spring. Why not dig these vegetables in the fall, store them in shallow pits, and have them available during the winter also?

TO THE LOVERS OF GRIDIRON SPORTS

MOUNT JOY ELEVEN LOST A RAGGED GAME TO REAMSTOWN HERE ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

Fumbling the ball on direct passes, as well as on forwards, together with girlish tackling, gave Reamstown a victory here Sunday afternoon 13 to 0. It was about the poorest exhibition the locals have given this season.

The game started and Mount Joy marched toward their opponent's goal without much resistance. A fumble gave Reamstown the ball. They were held for downs and the locals started another march. After gaining 29 yards on line plunging they fumbled. That was the end of real playing on the part of the locals during the first half.

Inability to break up forward passing enabled Reamstown to score two touchdowns, the score at the end of the half being 13 to 0. During this half Russ Halbleib made one of the most beautiful tackles in open field that has been seen here this season.

Between the halves Coach Brown gave the boys one sweet lecture and there was a marked improvement in the playing during the last half. There was no scoring although the locals were on the 6-yard line twice but they lacked the necessary punch to put the ball across. "Toots" Mantee was the most consistent ground gainer. Shiffer also made several good gains.

CASH INCOME FROM STATE FARMS TOTALS 261 MILLION

The cash income in Pennsylvania the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service of the Department Federal-State Crop Reporting Service of the Department of Agriculture.

Approximately one-third of this income resulted from the sale of milk while the sale of chickens and eggs accounts for about one-fifth of the total.

The leading sources of cash income in order of their rank are milk, eggs, cattle and calves, hogs, chickens, potatoes, and wheat.

The importance of the livestock industry is indicated by the fact that while the gross value of crops produced was $240,720,000 only $82,083,000 resulted from cash sales, a large proportion of the remainder being fed to livestock. The income from livestock and livestock products was approximately twice that accruing from the sale of crops.
