Wanamaker's Store Head Says: Business and Advertising Must Carry On Without Curtailment If the United States Is to Keep Its Prosperity

MUCH TOBACCO IS UNSOLD HERE

23,000,000 POUNDS STILL HELD BY FARMERS, THE SURVEY SHOWS

Approximately 23,000,000 pounds of tobacco harvested in 1929 remains on the farms of Lancaster County, according to representatives of the Meads Tobacco Company, Red Lion, who have made a careful survey of conditions in this section. Most of the tobacco, representatives of the company say, is not fit for use as leaf in the manufacture of cigars.

At the same time the company announced that it has purchased from Lancaster county farmers 1,487,623 pounds of 1929 tobacco at prices ranging from two and a half cents to fifteen cents per pound. Every pound will be subjected to a special treatment and exported to foreign countries where it will be ground up and blended with tobacco from other countries.

Charles F. Hess, of New Providence, a veteran tobacco man, has been buying most of the tobacco in Lancaster county and the company is still in the market for all crops that are yet for sale.

"The tobacco outlook has not been so hopeful from the farmer's standpoint for many years as it is right now," a representative of the Meads company said today. "If Lancaster farmers can produce a good crop of tobacco next year they will receive good prices. Manufacturers must keep two to three years ahead of their needs and much of the tobacco produced this year is not fit for leaf because of cold, dry weather that prevailed during the growing season."

"We feel that the best possible thing is to get rid of the unit tobacco and get it out of the country as fast as possible. The plan will clear the market and leave the way open for good tobacco if it can be produced in the approaching growing season."

Some of the tobacco purchased by the York county concern was delivered to its warehouse on Harrisburg avenue while approximately three quarters of a million pounds were delivered to the Red Lion warehouses.
