Mighty Title Borne by Many Unworthy Rulers

Caesar was a title assumed by Octavianus, adopted son of the great dictator, Julius Caesar, and was by him handed down to his adopted son, Tiberius. It continued to be used by Caligula, Claudius and Nero as members, either by adoption or female descent, of Caesar's family; but though the family became extinct with Nero, succeeding emperors still retained the name as part of their title, and it was the practice to prefix it to their own names, as Emperor Caesar, Domitianus Augustus. When Hadrian adopted Aelius Verus, he allowed the latter to take the title of Caesar, and from this time, though the title Augustus continued to be confined to the reigning emperor; that of Caesar was also granted the second person in the state and the heir presumptive to the throne. After the death of Nero, his name was adopted as a kingly title by succeeding Roman emperors. This practice continued, and the same title was used in modern times, as in the case of Kaiser and czar.

Source of Fabled River Styx Merely Waterfall

Solos, a village on the slopes of Mount Helmos, not far from Akra in the division of southern Greece known as Achae, is near the supposed site of the fabled River Styx. In Greek mythology the Styx is a mighty river, the tenth part of the water of Oceanus, which flows in the lower world. It is described by Homer and Hesiod as the terrible black water falling from a high precipice and dashing itself upon a lofty rock, through which it passed and then fell into the Crathis.

The fabled waters of the Styx have been identified by students of antiquity as the two slender cascades falling over a high perpendicular precipice of Mount Helmos, near Solos. After winding among a labyrinth of rocks the water unites to form a mountain torrent which eventually joins the River Akra (Crathis). Superstitious feelings of dread still attach to the water, which is considered of a peculiarly noxious character.

Pliny Stirred to Wrath

Those who have watched some volunteer fire companies in action will be amused by the fact that Pliny got all wrought up about this matter of fire-fighting back in 106 A. D., writes Joseph T. Armstrong in the New Orleans Item-Tribune. In a letter to the Roman emperor Trajan, Pliny described a fire at Nicomedia, which consumed several homes, the town house and the temple of Isis.

Pliny indignantly blamed this damage in part to "the indolence of the people, who manifestly stood idle and motionless spectators of this terrible calamity." He said there were in the town "neither engineers, buckets nor any single instrument suitable for extinguishing fires," and recommended that a company of 150 firemen be formed.

White House Baths

"Charming Dolly Madison" one of the most gracious of White House mistresses, set aside rooms for bathing, and instituted the first Presidential bathtubs. These bathtubs remained in the White House only until the entrance of Andrew Jackson, first plebeian President, who promptly chucked them out of doors for representing something decidedly undemocratic, and therefore offensive to the common people. However, the bathtub returned with the fastidious Fillmore to remain evermore enshrined, although the Fillmore tub has long since been replaced.

Too Big to Lose

Billy Brown was dreaming of the glorious game of football he was going to have as soon as he got out of school. He wasn't a bit interested in the elephant, which was the subject of the lesson to which he ought to have been listening. The teacher saw this and pounced on him. "Brown, where are elephants found?" he demanded sternly. Billy was staggered for a moment but rose gallantly to the occasion. "Please, sir," he stammered, "elephants are so big that they're hardly ever lost!"

Mental Test

An agent recently called on a north side mother trying to interest her in a set of books. Junior was peering through the pages so the caller showed him some pictures under "Mental Test." One picture was that of a wagon without the "handle." After asking Junior several questions the woman enlightened him by saying that the wagon didn't have a handle. Turning to a picture of a pig without a tail the youngster studied it intently for a few moments and said, "Why, the pig doesn't have a handle, either." —Indianapolis News.

Great Names for Small Towns

That many Americans have traveled in Europe might be deduced from the trails of European names throughout the United States. Paris and Berlin are each to be found in 15 states, while seven undeveloped Londons, ranging in size from 100 to 4,000 population, might be visited in a domestic grand tour. Arkansas is the proud possessor of all three, and in addition has a Peking. Peking is to be found in four other states also. —Cleveland News.

Pittsburg — Work will start soon on improvements to Pittsburg-Wheeling line of Baltimore & Ohio railroad, involving expenditures of $1,200,000.

Harrisburg — Zembo Temple's $850,000 mosque dedicated at Third and Division streets.

Gaysport — Antler Annex sold to D. Edgar Sellers.

INFORMATION FOR MOTORISTS

(From page 1) North Duke Street, between East Liberty Street and East King Street, will be for southbound traffic only.

North Queen Street, between Penn Square and Liberty Street, will be for northbound traffic only. Market Street, between West Marion and West King Streets, for southbound traffic only.

Christian Street, between East Chestnut and East Vine Streets, for southbound traffic only.

Don't Park Here Parking will be prohibited at all times on the south side of East King Street, between Penn Square and Plum Street, and on the north side Square and Market Street. Likewise there will be no parking on the south side of East Orange Street, between Duke and Shippen Streets. On North Queen Street parking will be prohibited on the west side in the three blocks between Penn Square and Walnut Street. This revision of the present regulation of parking on the west side of North Queen in the first two blocks, and adds another block to the one-side parking area.

Watch The Markings Other new parking and limited parking areas will be plainly marked by the city police department, so that motorists should have no trouble if they comply with the regulations as marked on the signs to be placed throughout the city.

The new regulations were drawn up and passed upon by a Traffic Conference comprising the Mayor, members of City Council and representatives of business and civic organizations. Subsequently with a few minor changes, they were embodied in an ordinance which goes into effect July 1st.

LEGION CONVENTION IN HARRISBURG

Announcement was made today by the American Legion Convention Committee, in charge of attractions for the thousands of Pennsylvania Legionnaires who will meet in Harrisburg for the annual State convention on August 21, 22 and 23, that an air circus will be one of the most thrilling attractions connected with the series of events. It will be held at the new Harrisburg airport.

World famous pilots have been invited to the meet, where daring acrobatics, group and individual parachute jumping, balloon busting and many other events are planned. Lieutenant Fred Nelson, Air Corps Reserve, who is a legionnaire and the manager of the new airport, will cooperate with the Legion Convention Committee in making the afternoon spent by the former soldiers, sailors and marines at the airport one they will long remember. Not only will the cream of the American civilian pilots be on hand for the show, but efforts are being made to have squadrons of attack, pursuit and bombardment aviation from the army and navy air stations along the eastern seaboard.

Prizes will be offered for the races planned for various types and sizes of airplanes. The airplane show is only one of the many attractions planned for the Convention, at which time the Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial Bridge at State street will be dedicated.

LACK OF FUNDS FOR NEW SPAN

(From page 1) Langlotz, assistant engineer of District No. 7, State Highway Department, at the site of the bridge. The span, owned jointly by the two townships, joins the two counties and is in need of repairs.

Both townships claim that they do not have sufficient funds to erect a new concrete bridge, which it is estimated will cost about $14,000. The State's share on the construction from State reward funds would be approximately $7,000, but officials of the State Highway Department claim the allotment is restricted to $4,000 because of the limitation of funds.

Commissioners of Lancaster County take the position, it is stated, that if the State pays its full share of $7,000 then this county will assist Mount Joy township in financing the project. Dauphin county commissioners do not favor the erection of the new bridge with enthusiasm because of the heavy land damages suffered in Conewago township if the present plans are carried out. The two townships, it is now believed, will repair the present structure and petition the State again next year for the reward funds to finance the erection of the proposed new bridge.
