THE ENGLE CLAN HOLDS REUNION

BODIES OF EARLY SETTLERS MAY BE MOVED FROM THE FAMILY PLOT ALONG THE SUSQUEHANNA

That some of the early settlers of the Engle clan may be moved from the Engle homestead cemetery located on the late John Engle estate along the River road between Marietta and Bainbridge near the Wild Cat Falls which was secured by the Pennsylvania Railroad company for railway purposes, was indicated in a discussion at the fourth annual reunion of the Engle family association at Elizabethtown college Thursday afternoon.

Should the railroad company decide to change their lines, they will probably pass through the cemetery, it was pointed out, and would result in the removal of the bodies of the Engle settlers to another point. President J. R. Engle, of Palmyra, appointed a cemetery committee to care for the cemetery until the removal. A cemetery fund was started with a collection of $30. The committee consists of H. H. SMALLER TOWNS ARE OUT OF LUCK

ONLY TOWNS WITH POSTAL RECEIPTS OVER $40,000 TO GET BUILDINGS DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCES

The treasury and post office departments at Washington will not be able to include in its new public building program which will cost $40,000 annually, it was learned Wednesday.

This means that a number of towns near Lancaster for which new buildings were contemplated when Congress passed the $230,000,000 Elliott bill last session will go over until additional appropriations are authorized.

It also means, however, that other cities in the $40,000 class and above in receipts, those known as first class offices, will have a much better chance of being included in the new program which the two departments will submit to Congress in December.

The cities which are thus favored include Upper Darby, Conshohocken, Jenkintown, Schuylkill Haven, and Shenandoah.

Cities and towns in the $20,000 to $40,000 class will be included in the program (Turn to page 4.)
