EDITORIAL

RECIPE FOR HIGH TAXES

The notion is general that anything can be got through the government. And along with this runs the fallacious idea that what the government does for a group or a locality costs nothing.

The government reaches down into the pockets of the people and takes out the money to do the job the people, or a part of the people, want to put upon the government. The government plant grows but it sucks its nourishment from the resources of the people. Taxes are its sap.

SUCH IS LIFE

A Mount Joy man who says he has moved ten times in the past ten years believes that there is a very distinct advantage in owning one's home. The moving in each instance has cost him $50, and his rent has cost him an average of $1 a day, a total of $360 for the year or $3,600 for ten years. "And all I have to show for it," he says, "is a pile of rent receipts, and scars on my furniture." It does seem that a person should have something more than that to show for an expenditure of more than $3,600.

UP TO THE INDIVIDUAL

Slack times are mostly the result of a mental attitude on the part of the public, good times are probably never as good as people say they are and quiet periods are never as bad as reported.

The money difference between good times and bad times is only a small fraction of the total trade of a community. The best way to keep employment normal is to have necessary work done when activity slows up.

This is a matter for the individual. And if each of us is determined to do our part we are likely to keep a pretty level employment situation.

PROSPERITY IS RETURNING

The prospects for business revival are encouraging. It is recognized everywhere that the past two weeks has had a good effect on business. Capital is being slowly released and employment is gradually increasing. Normal business conditions are returning gradually. They will come slowly as the depression came. By early fall, every indication points, there will be much improvement in the general business conditions.

A year ago the stock markets were a cheap factor in business. The whole country were engaged in activities that were little short of gambling. The volume of stock trading today shows that the public has deserted a game at which it was decisively beaten.

Instead money is being used in legitimate business, and the latter will shortly show the effects of such constructive effort. The country's prosperity is being rebuilt. When the project is undertaken seriously it is only a short time until results become apparent in the reduction of unemployment and a more healthy tone in all kinds of useful commerce.

VICIOUS ANIMALS ARE A MENACE

We cannot understand the point of view of the good citizen who will keep on his premises a vicious animal to menace the persons, and even possibly the lives, of others. We say "good citizens" advisedly. We know there are perfectly fine people, good neighbors and friends, who do that very thing. Any person proceeding about his business in a public place, or entering upon the property of others for legitimate purposes, should not be subjected to the attack from an ugly dog. No owner thinks his dog is vicious, that is a condition to be recognized. The real dog lover, while willing to consider complaints regarding his children, is sure his dog has a perfect disposition. He believes that in the face of evidence. We are all familiar with the old speech of Senator George West of Missouri who described the dog as man's most faithful friend. That is more or less true. That does not make it reasonable that human beings be made liable to attack by animals large enough in some cases to kill a grown man. It seems to us that even a threat by a dog against a person going about his business should be all that is required to call for the permanent removal of such an animal. A dog which actually bites a person except under a state of extreme provocation cannot be excused, and sooner it
