STORY OF THE PLAY

The object of this arrangement of "Hansel and Gretel" is to provide a practical abridged acting version of Humperdinck's charming opera, keeping so far as practicable its sequence, procedure, music and story.

Hansel and Gretel are supposed to be doing chores while their parents are at work. The mother, upon returning, finds them playing and dancing. She scolds them severely and sends them into the woods to gather berries. They gather a basket full and then proceed to eat them. They attempt to gather more but it is too dark and they are lost. They are put to sleep by the sandmen and are guarded by the angels.

In the morning they awake in front of a beautiful cookie house. While they are picking at the good things on the house, they are captured by the wicked cookie witch. By strategy they manage to stick the witch in her own oven and thus free all the other children she had captured. Their father and mother come along and all ends well.

ACT I—Interior of cottage.

ACT II—In the forest.

ACT III—In the forest with the cookie house.

this country and abroad, including the largest water wheel driven and steam turbine generators in the world. He has been granted more than 100 patents for his work.

Mr. Reist is a past vice president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; past president of the Society of Engineers of Eastern New York; a former member of the New York State Board of Licensing for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors; past president of the Schenectady County Historical Society; a fellow of the A. I. E. E.; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; member of the Mohawk Valley Historical Society, the Pennsylvania German Society and the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He belongs to the Mohawk Club, the Mohawk Golf Club and the Adirondack Mountain Club. His membership in honorary engineering and scientific societies include Tau Beta Pi and Sigma Xi. For a number of years he has been a member of the Schenectady Park Board and is now president of that body.

Mr. Reist is a student of botany and horticulture, of Chinese history and Chinese language.

Mr. Reist, it will be remembered, offered Mount Joy a $50,000 library last year, provided the town would support it; but when the matter was submitted to the voters it was defeated.
