BETTER LAW ENFORCEMENT
The dry law enforcement gang asks for $25,000,000 to work with. While the prohibition law should be enforced, wouldn't it be far better just at this time to give the same amount or more to the unemployed and destitute and do a real act?

NOT PRESENT WORRY
In times past, statisticians predicted that the normal increase in world population would eventually bring about starvation conditions, and now economists are figuring out how long it will take to get up world supplies. It kind of looks as tho one shouldn't worry too much about figures and prophecies.
If we must cry about business, let us all sit down on the curb and have a good cry together, and we will have enough water to relieve the drought.

THE LOVELIEST WOMAN
A great-grandmother of eight living in Minneapolis, has been awarded a $1,000 prize in a field of 20,000, as the "loveliest woman." The award was made by a board of experts, on photographs alone. Her face as it appears in the public prints, is lovely, and from it shines out a lovely soul. Many young women are pretty, but the truly lovely women are those who have passed the half century mark. The older they grow the lovelier they become, and that loveliest of all love, mother love, enhances their loveliness.

THE SILVER LINING
Not that we care whether skirts go up or down—we'll not much, anyway—but it's interesting to learn that about 400,000 women, members of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, have been on strike against long skirts. The Garment Retailers of America heard this the other day from Mme. Helene Volka, who is official stylist for the women's federation—and a great light broke over them. "We have refrained from buying new frocks," said Mme. Volka, "as a protest against having foisted upon us styles becoming only to the young and slender." So it appears, women are now to make styles, instead of styles making women. If the styles "dictated by Paris" don't suit, the girls will go on wearing their old dresses a bit longer—and that's something a veteran husband and frock-provider can cheer.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR TREE-SITTING
To Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina goes the credit for the most, and perhaps the only constructive substitute for the idiosyncrasy of tree sitting. He says:
"I doubt if history records a stranger device for the entertainment and pleasure of those participating. I venture the belief that this startling new activity—or rather complete absence of activity—is symptomatic of nothing more serious than complete and spiritually devastating idleness and boredom. Now how much better it would be if, instead of becoming 'tree-sitters,' our boys and girls would become 'tree-sitters,' and thus contribute something to the beauty, livableness and comfort of their homes."
Governor Gardner's suggestion is unanimously adopted. How to carry it into effect is another matter. If such brainless wonders prefer to sit in the top of a tree instead of live in their own homes, how in heaven's name could they grasp such a conception as beauty, livableness, to say nothing of comfort in connection with a home?
Our own theory is that this latest phenomenon proves Darwin was right. There never was a clearer demonstration of revision to type. Our greatest fear is that to plant more trees would be only to invite more tree sitting.

WHERE HAS BUSINESS GONE?
There isn't any Santa Claus. Some local business men have just discovered that truth. And they are all hot and bothered about it. For years "the stockings hung by the fire-side" have been filled with satisfying regularity and liberality. People came in constantly and bought without argument. Everybody was having a wonderful time.
But something has happened. And the bewildered ones are asking each other, "Where has business gone?"
Well, where has business gone?
The plain truth is that business hasn't gone anywhere. It is right here in town. Always has been. Always will be. But business nowadays is operating on the "cafeteria" plan. You've got to "help yourself." The chap who sits around waiting for "table service" is doomed to disappointment—and lots of it.
As John Wanamaker used to say: "There is always someone, some place who wants to buy—and CAN buy—what you want to sell." If

Those who attended the "two-some" Club meeting were: Misses Anna and Clara Hinkle, of Mount Joy; Miss Myrtle Heistand, of Salunga; Miss Dorothy Overdeer, of Middletown; Mr. Paul Erb, of Rheems; Harold Overdeer, Middletown; Henry Danner, Manheim; "Benny" Willman, Middletown; Miss Dorothy Peters, Middletown; Mr. Mark Kline, Elizabethtown; Miss Anna Winters and Miss Ruth Kaylor, of town.
Ladies Were at E'town
Miss Edna Martin, accompanied by a number of High School girls of town, namely Misses Evelyn Baker, Mildred Zink, Fannie and Helen Dillinger, visited the Elizabethtown Tri High Y Club on Friday afternoon.
There is no better way to boost your business than by local newspaper advertising.
This "someone" no longer walks in the front door, it is plainly up to us to go out AFTER him. Find him! Tell him! Sell him!
We have no patience with Pollyanna platitudes and baseless bunk. Let's face the facts. Nobody is going to hand us anything. The folks who go after the business intelligently and earnestly will reap the rewards. The waiters and waiters are on the way out. This is the day of Doers.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

WEEKLY LETTER WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE BULLETIN BY DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Night Coughs: One of the most persistent and trying of all symptoms with which sufferers have to contend takes the form of coughing instead of sleeping. When every other sign of illness has been removed this coughing in the night will often remain and apparently baffles all remedy. There may be no difficulty in breathing, or much expectation, or indeed, anything to account for the restless cough; yet there it is, and its effects are at least distressing, if not wasting to the patient. The first question that should present itself to one in such a case as this might be: What causes the trouble after other illness has been overcome? Probably it may be found in some very simple matter which happens not to be known. For instance, the idea may exist that all coughing is necessarily produced by something wrong with the lungs.
Perhaps there is no knowledge of a whole system of nerves, the state of which causes severe coughing without expectation or anything of a nature that can be thrown off in that way. Even though something is known regarding that system of nerves, there may be profound ignorance or forgetfulness of certain conditions sometimes existing in the nerves of the stomach, which, by reflex action, makes their presence known by violent coughing.
There may be inflammation of the bronchial tubes; a hot bran poultice is immediately applied to the back, between the shoulders, and a cold cloth placed on the chest. The result is immediate relief. But there is no consideration taken of that state of the stomach and diaphragm which causes whooping cough when there is no inflammation anywhere. There is a state of the sympathetic nerves which irritates, the nerves that supply the breathing muscles, and causes severe coughing without any inflammation. The treatment which suits bronchitis will not help a patient who has an irritated condition of the system of nerves. You are exceedingly disappointed when you see the treatment: which readily brought relief in an inflammatory attack give none for this coughing, which is usually severe at night.

But you must think more carefully of the case and try to understand its real nature. It will very likely be one in which the cloth should be applied to the back and not to the front of the chest; it may be one in which a very simple remedy will relieve if not cure.
Make a little "match paper" by dipping a piece of paper in a strong solution of saltpeter and dry it at the fire. When thoroughly dry take about four inches square of it in a saucer. Set fire to the corner and let the patient sit where he can inhale the smoke, but not so near as to cause inconvenience in breathing. This, in some cases will cure; in other cases it will only give relief for a time; but in all cases in which it relieves you may be pretty sure you have irritation of the sympathetic nerve to deal with and not bronchitis or anything of an inflammatory nature.
This will teach you how to treat a night cough. When the patient is so very weak that it is impossible to utilize an outward application it may be well to resort to the smoke of niter, as above described.
I consider this subject of coughs important at this time of the year that I will prepare another paper next week, giving more detail information for the treatment of various conditions of that nature, including whooping cough.
All readers of this publication are at liberty at all times to write for information pertaining to the subject of health. Address Dr. David H. Reeder, 3 E. 31st St., Kansas City, Mo. with at least 6 cents postage.

INTERESTING LECTURE ON PALESTINE BY REV. KNITTLE

The lecture on "Palestine" in the Sunday School room of the United Brethren church on Friday evening was given to an appreciative audience.
Rev. Knittle's slides were very interesting, instructive and some very amusing. He spent one week covering the town of Palestine by automobile, visiting very important Biblical points, and very ably gave the lecture.
The time of the year the tour was made was in the month of February, several years ago. Members of the touring party picked flowers, while this country, no doubt, was shoveling snow.
The pictures portrayed the natives there as still living in a backward country, although in some sections improved farm implements are being used.
Woman, as has been the custom for hundreds of years, is the slave, doing all the work in fields and at home, carrying water jugs, baskets, most everything on their heads. All these people walk very erectly, due to balancing their burdens on their heads from childhood.
All the inns, tombs, mountains, roads, seas, etc., mentioned as important in the life of Christ were shown.
Many pictures of the blind were shown. The narrow streets, no sidewalks, the filth and unsanitary conditions, along with the limestone walls, roads, etc., which makes a brilliant glare, when the sun shines, is the cause of most blindness. Dark glasses were worn during the tour.
The 23rd Psalm was beautifully illustrated by different highly colored slides, as were also the different kinds of trees and their blossoms. The flowers of Palestine were also shown. The Rose of Sharon and the lily, which are mentioned in the Bible, were shown, the former resembling our narcissus.
