SHED AND THE CROP DESTROYED BY FLAMES

Fire destroyed a tobacco shed and its contents, and threatened other buildings on the farm of Phares H. Rohrer, near Lancaster Junction, shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Mr. Rohrer said he believes an overheated stove pipe caused the blaze. The farm is tenanted by Charles Bestand.

Fire companies from Manheim, Landisville and Salunga responded, but were unable to save the structure, or any part of the crop of eighteen acres of tobacco that was hanging in it. A steam engine in the shed, was also lost in the blaze.

The fire spread to the gable end of a barn which is situated near the site of the tobacco shed, but prompt action of firemen prevented any serious damage to the building, although a quantity of corn on the cob in it was damaged by water.

The total damage to the building is estimated at approximately $5,000, all of which is covered by insurance.

RABBIT HUNTERS GO TO KANSAS

EXCHANGE SAYS FARMER AND TWO SONS BAGGED 462 IN ONE DAY.

We have known, on several occasions, that men here actually killed more rabbits than they could carry. That seems like stretching the truth a bit, so we'll get down to facts.

The writer accompanied Dr. A. F. Snyder to the Pocono district some years ago when our good friend proposed that he would carry the game if the writer shot it. If the doctor will permit the comparison, our pack horse lasted half a day, after which he vouched he'd never again make or try to fulfill a similar proposition.

Several years prior to that time one Samuel H. Miller, the local Edison representative, accompanied the writer and Mr. Harvey Sheaffer on a hunting trip to Juniata Co. Mr. Miller, not very ambitious for the slaughter, presumably because he couldn't bear the "smell of blood," proposed carrying the game if we killed it. In four and a half days the slaughter included 98 rabbits, together with a lot of other small game such as 46 quail. (From page 5)

COLLINS PLEADS GUILTY, WASSER NOT TO BLAME

Jacob Collins, of near Silver Springs, pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing and possessing liquor and was sentenced to the county prison for nine months and fined $200 at Court Saturday. Collins is well explained by District Attorney Hester, who was hired to take care of stock on a farm tenanted by Monroe Wasser during the latter's absence. While Wasser was away, the district attorney stated, Collins set up a still on the place. When Wasser returned he ordered Collins to get rid of the illegal paraphernalia but a raid was staged on the property by County Detective Weller before the still could be removed. A case against Wasser was ordered not pressed by Mr. Hosterman when it was learned that he had no part in the liquor law violation.

FORMER POLICE CHIEF SUED BY LOCAL DEALER

Charges of operating a motor vehicle with license other than those issued were preferred against former Chief of Police Robert W. Fitzwater, of Elizabethtown.

According to the complaint by P. Franck Schock, of this borough, Fitzwater is alleged to have obtained an automobile from him for the purpose of "giving it a tryout" several months ago, with the understanding that he would purchase the car should it prove satisfactory. A down payment was so made upon the car, which is valued at about $200 and the remainder was to be paid on the easy payment plan.

The dealer, alleges however, that no further payments have been for coming from Fitzwater and that he has been operating the car with license plates issued for another car.
