OWL-LAFFS

See by the papers that the Government has contributed eleven million dollars to enforce the Prohibition law. Gee whiz, if those bootleggers would only behave for a while and Uncle Sam could keep that money, they could knock that much off our taxes.

If the Federal authorities decide to run those 27,000 barrels of high power beer they found at Ricker's Lancaster Brewery, into the sewer, a lot of our fellows hope they'll wait till Summer—then they will all go swimming in that city's sewer outlets.

In all his screen stuff Tom Mix, always gets the best of everything but when the owner of the 101 Ranch Show sued him for damages and a jury awarded the show man 90,000 smackers, it was just too bad. It will take a little actin, on Tom's part to make that up.

Over at school in English class the teacher assigned a composition to be written and it had to obtain 250 words. The next morning one boy was asked to read his.

This is what he had written: "My dad was driving his new car one day and he had a puncture. The other 236 words are not fit for publication."

You will remember that last Fall Ab Weaver, from Drytown, won an Austin automobile and only had it a few days before he sold it. I never knew just why he got rid of it so quick but now I know. When he was bringing it home he got stuck on the level concrete road below town and when he discovered the trouble, some one had thrown a wad of chewing gum away and the little car stuck to the highway.

Ab says just before that happened it suddenly got so dark he thought he was going thru a tunnel but when it got light again, discovered he had run under a Greyhound bus.

One of my Gravel Hill friends was out for coons during the latter part of the season and he heard an old mother Raccoon say to her children: "Now, remember, dears, you must always watch your step, because you have the skin the college boys love to touch."

Instead of Walking
The other day a young lady walked into an accessory shop and asked if she could buy a parachute.
The clerk asked her what she wanted with a parachute.
"I have a date with an aviator," she replied.

A woman from over near Lawn fasted for forty days. Afterwards she received offers of marriage from thirty Scotchmen.

Over at Maytown a teacher asked a pupil the meaning of the word dimple. The girl said it was a lump inside out.

Roy Sheets tells me that some one from a nearby high school basket ball team called him by phone and asked if he would come there and pick out the stiffs, then possibly they could win more games.

After you're thru eating one of Roscoe Hassinger's rabbits you don't have to eat a dog just so you have a chaser.

Two little boys were talking. One said to the other: "Aren't ants funny little things? They work and work, and never play."
"Oh, I don't know about that," replied the other. "Every time I go on a picnic they are there."

After they arrested a man at Lancaster for robbery, the man whose house he had robbed went to the Police Station and asked to see the thief. When brought face to face he said to the robber: "How the thunder did you get into our house that my wife didn't hear you?"

"Rufus, did you go to your lodge meeting last night?"

"Nah, sub. We dun have to postpone it."

"How is that?"

"De Grand All-Powerful Invincible Most Supreme Unconquerable Potentate dun got beat up by his wife."

Met a certain lady at Lancaster Saturday night. I said: "What's the idea?" and she replied: "I frankly admit I am looking for a husband." I said: "I thought you had one." She said: "I have and I spend most of my time looking for him."

A lady at Forin has a plump little son and I asked her if he is still so stout.

She said: "Heavens yes; He had the mumps three weeks before pap and I found it out."

"There was a blow. Somebody fell. We got up. Turning upon our antagonist, we succeeded in winding his arms around our waist, and by a quick maneuver threw him on top of us, bringing our back, at the same time, in contact with the solid bed of the printing press. Then, inserting our nose between his teeth and cleverly entangling his hands in our hair, we had him!"

Told of Lincoln's Safety

The phrase, "plumes delivered, nuts safely," was a secret code which was sent to Harrisburg, Pa., when Abraham Lincoln had arrived in Washington soon after his election to the Presidency. His original route of travel, which had been through Baltimore, had to be abandoned because of the bitter feeling against the Union in Maryland. Mr. Lincoln went from Harrisburg to New York secretly and took a through train from there to Washington. Several books of Lincolniana state that the code had no special significance other than that those words had been chosen to mean Lincoln's safe arrival.

Coueurs Des Bois

The coueurs des bois, later called voyageurs, were, literally, forest rovers. During the French regime immense forests covered Canada, which teemed with fur-bearing animals. Hunting, therefore, and the consequent fur trade with the Indians appealed to some adventurous spirits more than farming, and as a result, a large number took to the former life and became an important factor in the pioneer development of new Canada. They figure picturesquely in early Canadian history and in subsequent fiction.

Lobster's Speed

One unacquainted with the lobster would not give it credit for much speed but it is a graceful swimmer and possesses the power of shooting with great rapidity through the water. That is accomplished by the broad plates at the end of its tail. These, put in motion by the powerful muscles connecting them with its body, strike the water with immense force, enabling the lobster to project itself many feet. Observation has shown that one stroke is sufficient to propel it from eight to ten yards in a second—the speed of a fast sprinter.

No Standing Still

To reach the port commonly known as "Success" we must sometimes sail with the wind, and sometimes we must sail against it. Conditions determine his matter. But the outstanding thing is that we must sail, not drift nor lie at anchor.—Grit.

A PEACH OF A TIME

IN this era when it's fashionable to be feminine, sweet, going things who used to think a griddle had something to do with the varsity grid-iron, are seeking the kitchen—and their swains are seeking admittance along with them. Men love to get in the kitchen, anyway. Psychanalysts would probably discover in this male characteristic the result of a repressed desire harking back to the days when they were constantly being shooed out of the kitchen because they were little boys who wanted a finger in every pie.

Parties and Parties
So away with repression. Fling wide the portals of the pot-and-pannery and the very next time the gang follow you home from the theater, or from a moonlight drive that ended too soon, lead them all into the kitchen—every mother's son as well as daughter. But speaking of mothers, if you want to continue in the good graces of your parents, the morning after the party, be foresighted and see that you have the necessary cans and leaves on the shelf—and eggs, oh, by all means eggs and bacon, so that the morrow's breakfast will not be sans eggs, bacon and amiability.

Have a colored apron and a mission for each one in the crew—whether it's chopping ham, beating eggs, or introducing these two loves to a new mushroom combination and thus providing a triangle in the skillet. You'll find that the more work you supply the less you'll be distracted with ukeleles and things. And you may be surprised to find that many a mediocre law-student is a good cook some wrong, and that an only average dancer can often concoct a perfectly excellent cup of coffee.

Scatter your forces if possible. Make space in the dining room for your chafing dish operations—a lobster and mushroom Newburg is a job for at least three persons, and the electric toaster takes two to operate, one to watch the toast and the other to burn it.

Then while everyone is as busy as can be, slip into the breakfast nook, or some other informal place and set the table in its merriest mood. A colored peasant cloth, say, in blue and orange, orange candles to flicker their radiance into bright blue glass goblets, quaint, inexpensive ash trays of foreign origin, and some of those delightful cats and dogs and owls and creatures whose caricature appearance belie their real salt and pepper purpose.

Bring on the Eats

The best part of this midnight supper is that your duties as hostess cease the minute you enter the kitchen, and so do your responsibilities. It isn't your fault if the coffee boils over or the rare bit is a bit too rare. Anyway, they'll all have a peach of a time—and so will you. But if you want to provide a perfect ending for your perfect party—here's a tip. Prepare one dish in advance—one dessert you know is going to be simply gorgeous—say, a Sweet Peach Pie for your peach of a party. Here are other suggestions worthy of thought:

Lobster and Mushroom Newburg
Buttered Toast Triangles
Stuffed Celery Stalks
Green Olives
Sweet Peach Pie
Cocoa

Lobster and Mushroom Newburg: Slice one can of mushrooms and sauté with four tablespoons of butter for five minutes in a chafing dish. Add four tablespoons of flour and stir until smooth. Add gradually two cups of milk and stir until thick and creamy. Add one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and a few grains of nutmeg. Then add one 6-ounce can (1½ cups) of lobster meat which has been left in large pieces. Last, add two slightly-beaten egg yolks and two teaspoons lemon juice. Heat only enough to cook the egg slightly, but do not boil. Serve on toast triangles.

Sweet Peach Pie: Sift together one and one-half cups of flour, one-third cup sugar and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Rub or cut in one-half cup shortening. Add one egg, beaten, and then one tablespoon cold milk. If the egg is large and makes the mixture too soft, omit some or all of the milk. Chill the pastry. Roll out like ordinary pie-crust and fill the pie tins. This amount should make one generous-size pie shell! Bake in a hot oven (500 degrees for 10 minutes). Fill, when ready to use, with well-drained canned sliced peaches (from a No. 2½ size can). Sprinkle grated nutmeg over the top, and cover with one cup of sweetened whipped heavy cream. This serves six persons.*

FORD SMOOTHNESS

The new Ford has more than twenty ball and roller bearings

EVIDENCE of the high quality built into the new Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all—an unusually large number. Each bearing is adequate in size and carefully selected for the work it has to do.

At some points in the Ford chassis you will find ball bearings. At others, roller bearings are used regardless of their higher cost. The deciding factor is the performance of the car.

The extensive use of ball and roller bearings in the new Ford insures smoother operation, saves gasoline, increases speed and power, gives quicker pick-up, decreases noise, and gives greater reliability and longer life to vital moving parts.

Other outstanding features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, three-quarter floating rear axle, Rustless Steel, the extensive use of fine steel forgings, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.
