CAREFUL CHECKS ON CHILD HEALTH AID DEVELOPMENT

Dr. J. Bruce McCreary, deputy secretary of health and chief of the bureau of child health, today advised parents of children in large centers of population to have them examined that they may be physically fit for the beginning of school next year. "With the arrival in the field of mobilized health units for the purpose of having discoverable defects corrected in children who will for the first time enter school next autumn the important fact suggests itself that parents living in cities having children of school-admission age should interest themselves in this very vital check-up," Dr. McCreary said.

"There is absolutely no excuse for any child, no matter how humble its living conditions may be, for not having a physical survey at this time to discover the existence of defects which may definitely handicap its career in school next autumn.

"The Pennsylvania State Department of Health controls 142 well baby clinics in various sections of the Commonwealth and in addition 308 are supervised by it, though directly controlled by such agencies as the Red Cross, Tuberculosis Societies and so forth.

"In suggesting to parents in cities that this investigation should be made, I wish to emphasize the fact that none of the clinics treat conditions. Their duty is limited solely to locating defects and then diverting the patient to the private practitioner.

"No parent will have fulfilled his obligation to the prospective student until this check-up is completed and corrections remedied if discovered."

The manufacturers have been required to make replacement with pillows that conform exactly to the specifications under which the bid was accepted according to a report to Dr. A. M. Northrup, Secretary of Labor and Industry.

The Government specifications on this order called for all gray goose feathers. The analysis showed "65 per cent. goose feathers, 35 per cent duck feathers, trace of second-hand feathers."

THE TETANUS ANTITOXIN DISTRIBUTORS IN THE CO.

Doctor Theodore. Appel, Secretary of Health, today issued a list of tetanus antitoxin distributors which covers the distributing plan for the entire Commonwealth.

In this connection Doctor Appel said "Tetanus is a definitely preventable disease. Doctors do not need to be advised as to the necessity of prompt treatment of all explosive wounds resulting from the Independence Day celebration. Physicians well know that every blank cartridge wound and every dirty punctured and contused wound should be immediately opened, cleaned and the patient have administered to him a preventive dose of antitoxin.

"The difficulty is that many persons who receive blank cartridge wounds or other types of skin abrasions which carry dirt into them do not fully realize the possible danger involved. They consequently attempt to treat these wounds themselves and not infrequently become victims of tetanus, or lockjaw, solely because they did not put themselves in the hands of a physician immediately, who would render the very essential anti-tetanus treatment.

"If all persons who will be unfortunate enough to suffer from such casualties will seek medical advice, the Department of Health has seen to it that fresh tetanus antitoxin is in the locality, and consequently can be applied by the physician.

For the advice of the physicians, the following are the locations and names of the distributors in Lancaster Co.:

Bueher, W. L., Columbia.
Crippled Children's Hospital, Elizabethtown.
Garber, E. W., Mt. Joy.
Libhart Drug Co., Marietta.
Moyer, L. N., Lititz.
Ruhl, H. F., Manheim.
St. Joseph's Hospital, Lancaster.
Stever, J. C., Dr., Bainbridge.

COMMISSION ADDS TO GAME HOLDINGS

Over 12,000 acres of ideal game territory has been purchased by the Game Commission and include tracts in three counties. In Columbia county 1580 acres adjoining State game lands No. 58 were purchased. A tract of 2770 acres to be known as State game lands No. 63 was acquired in Clarion county. The largest tract, consisting of 8142 acres, was purchased in McKean county and will be known as State game lands No. 61.

The tract in Clarion county was once the site for many old iron furnaces. In the early days Clarion county was known as the iron county and at the height of its industry over thirty-one furnaces were in blast.

Lewis Orders War On Illegal Signs

(From page 1) such a manner as to resemble in form or appearance the official markers.

Many signs on private property will disappear during the drive. The procedure to be followed is for the highway employe to inquire of property owners whether permission has been granted for the erection of such signs near the roadway. If not, workers will remove the signs. When permission has been granted and the signs are not within the legal right-of-way they cannot be disturbed.

The most noticeable improvement expected as a result of the campaign is removal of tattered, weather-beaten and neglected signs that have outlived the agreement under which they were originally placed. With cooperation of the property owners these will be pulled down and the blemishes removed.

Cardboard, cloth, tin, steel and wooden signs, commonly called the "snipe" signs, are the center of the wholesale campaign to clean up the roadside. Every variety of unsightly daub and tattered blurb will fall before the army of highway workers.

Last year's drive against illegal and unsightly advertising resulted in removal of 32,000 signs.
