PRESIDENT GABLE URGES MOTORISTS TO DO THEIR FULL SHARE IN MOVE TO REDUCE SCHOOL CHILDREN TOLL

Nearly one-third of all motor fatalities occur in October, November and December, according to S. Edward Gable, president of the Lancaster Automobile Club. In a statement issued today he urged added care in driving at this season, stating that caution on the part of the motorist will go far toward reducing the toll of death and injury on streets and highways.

"Out of a total of nearly 33,000 motor fatalities in 1930," Mr. Gable said, "there were 10,350 in the last three months of the year." He pointed out several things that car owners should keep in mind as follows:

"Children have returned to school in all parts of the county, after months of freedom in the open, and are not inclined to exercise as much caution during the first few months of school as they do later in the year. It therefore behooves the motorist to use particular care in driving on streets or highways near schools.

"Due to the presence of children on the streets and the consequent delay at intersections, longer time will be required to drive on city streets. Therefore, the car owner should allow himself more time to get from one point to another, particularly if he is driving through a town or city.

"Darkness comes early at this season and careful watch should be kept for children and others walking along highways, or riding bicycles home from school.

"Falling leaves on wet streets and highways offer a serious traffic hazard and too sudden application of brakes will cause skidding with resultant dangers."

"If motorists will bear these things in mind," the Auto Club president stated, "we can cut down materially the number of accidents on the streets and highways of Lancaster county during October, November and December this year."

Hailstones Make Ice Cream
Billings, Mont.—The terrific hailstorm which destroyed crops along Indian Creek southeast of here recently, was not without its benefits—at least that is the opinion of the farm children. The high wind which accompanied the storm, drove the hailstones into drifts which lasted for some time, and the farmers' children used the ice, which nature had provided, to make ice cream.

Fifty Plants Make Alcohol From Wood

DISTILLING ALCOHOL IS STILL A MAJOR INDUSTRY, ESPECIALLY IN NORTHERN PENNSYLVANIA

Distilling alcohol, and high grade alcohol at that, is still a major industry, especially in northern Pennsylvania, where fifty plants are normally in operation. This distillation industry is entirely legal, however, and the product manufactured is the wood alcohol of commerce.

The hardwood distillation industry is common in the beech, birch, and maple forests, known as the "North Woods" of Pennsylvania, New England, and the Lake States. Pennsylvania leads in the number of plants operated, which consume in the neighborhood of 250,000 cords of wood annually, representing the annual wood crop of 250,000 acres of forest.

Although lumbering and wood using industries generally are unavoidably wasteful in the utilization of raw material, modern hardwood distillation as practiced in Pennsylvania is considered notable for the small amount of loss in manufacture. Even the bark of trees is used.

John W. Keller, deputy secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, cites the hardwood distillation industry as one playing an important part in the conservation of timber supplies by prolonging cutting operations as a result of the close utilization practiced.

The chemicals derived from wood distillation have great commercial value in the manufacture of paints, varnishes, fertilizers, soaps and medicines. The average yield of one cord of wood is 45 bushels of charcoal, 100 gallons of acetic acid or vinegar, 200 pounds of acetate of lime, 55 pounds of rosin, 4 gallons of solvent oils, 2 gallons of creosote oil, 10 gallons of fuel tar, and 10 gallons of wood alcohol.

rival of a wrecking crew, Walker died in a Harrisburg hospital.

Move Switch for Troop Train
The accident was caused by opening of a main line switch by File under the misapprehension that the fast-moving express train was a troop train bound for Mount Gretna. Instead, the express was headed for Harrisburg and should have been permitted to run on the main line.

Borland said testimony during the investigation showed that Brakeman File had been instructed to go to the main track switch, watch for the troop train and let it into the yard for movement to Mount Gretna.

File claimed he did not open the switch until the express, running at a speed of 60 miles per hour, was within about 780 feet. When the train was about 100 feet away, he said, he noticed it was not the troop train and started for the switch, but could not reach it in time to set it for the main line movement.

proving around the barn on his farm, at Cordelia. Returning to the house Ibaugh secured a shotgun and fired twice at the fleeing intruders. Both Ibaugh and a neighboring farmer heard one of the men scream, as if seriously injured by one of the shots, before the pair disappeared in the darkness.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock Ibaugh had occasion to go out to the pump, which is near the barn. As he approached the pump, Ibaugh told police, a man darted through the barn door and started across the field. Ibaugh ran back to the house and got his shotgun.

As he pursued the prowler through the field, another man, carrying a flashlight, appeared in the cornfield, Ibaugh asserted. Seeing he was out-distanced and out numbered, Ibaugh brought his shotgun into play and fired two shells at the fleeing intruders.

After the second shot, Ibaugh said, he heard a scream. Howard Habecker said he also heard the shots and the scream. Habecker joined Ibaugh in the search for the suspects, but the trail was lost in the darkness.
