His report on the battle waged since 1927 to prevent the exclusion of Sumatra wrappers used by manufacturers to blend with long Pennsylvania fillers, declared that the battle would have been lost but for the influence and opposition of the county growers' association. Since it was the growers who won the fight and the manufacturers and buyers will be the first to receive the benefits thereof, it was resolved at the meeting that the latter should show their appreciation by paying a just price for the 1931 crop, declared to be the best crop grown, here since 1917.

The jury divided the costs between Martin and the prosecutor, Abram L. Hoffman.

Martin was charged with fraudulently taking six tons of hay and two tons of straw from a farm in East Donegal township, which he tenanted in violation of a lease he had with the manager of the farm.

The charge was brought by Abram L. Hoffman, manager of the farm for his sister, Mrs. Emma H. Detwiler, the owner. Martin leased the farm in January, 1930, and lived there about a year.

Martin, it is claimed moved the hay and straw from the farm in March, 1931, and hauled it to another farm where he planned to move. Guy F. Hoffman, a nephew of the owner and the manager, testified he saw Martin removing the hay and straw.
