Mistakes Will Happen

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS
(Gift by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

NOTHING could have been simpler than the original error made by the newspaper man who had the stand at the corner of Broadway in the seventies. He had confused two of the books ordered by patrons and delivered them that morning to the wrong apartments.
Nancy Cromer received a recent novel entitled, "Heartstrings" in place of "Ever Ready" and Owen Stanley got the latter instead of the former.
And Nancy being an omnivorous reader, decided to gobble up as much of "Heartstrings" as she could before the mistake was rectified. The plot unfolding was fearfully exciting and the book itself was a gem of the binding art. Exquisite mauve leather with letterings of old silver. The author was a new one even to Nancy's well-posted brain. She couldn't recall having read anything by Owen Stanley and knew it must be a first attempt.
"Stanley-Owen Stanley, you've got a small fortune and a reputation in 'Heartstrings', she thought. 'Especially if one Nancy Cromer can persuade you to let her do the scenario for the films.' Nancy was not really conceited but she knew her value as a writer. Her first two scenarios were undoubted successes.
And Owen Stanley, a trifle annoyed that the mistake had been made, wrapped up "Ever Ready" and took it back to the book stand. The lovely volume he had especially bound was to be presented to Cora Masters, the young lady who he hoped would accept him now that he had promise of being successful.
"You could get your own book if you just call at No. 19," the book man informed Stanley. "I'm sorry I mixed them up."
And Stanley, because he really wanted to see his brain child in its mauve raiment, decided to stop and ask for it. He also took along the other book.
Nancy opened the door herself, the volume still in her hand.
"Oh, dear," she said when she caught sight of the book in her caller's hand. "I was hoping I could have finished this story before anyone came to get it. I couldn't sleep a wink if I didn't know how it ends."
"It must be an extraordinarily good tale," he said.
"It's one of the best I've read for ages," Nancy told him.
"Well-I don't want to be responsible for your losing sleep," said Stanley. "How long will it take you to finish it. Shall I call back about five?"
"Oh!" breathed Nancy gratefully. "It's too good of you. I will give you a cup of tea and toasted muffins when you come."
Stanley grinned his thanks and went off. His footsteps were light. Such praise as had been his was worth any amount of advertising. Somehow his heart beat less strenuously in the direction of Cora.
He had a bite of lunch, and went back to his rooms.
His telephone rang.
"Is this Mr. Stanley," came a very nice feminine voice. "I am Nancy Cromer and would like to talk about your book, 'Heartstrings', which has come to my notice in rather unusual circumstances. I was wondering if you have placed the film rights."
"Well, not exactly-though there are some film rights going on."
"I do so want to make the scenario -It's the chance of my life. I've done two-'Tiger's Teeth' and 'Shallow Hearts'-and they've both gone well."
"That's rather a tall order, considering I don't know you."
"I was hoping," suggested the girl, "that you could come over and get acquainted with me. I don't live far away-just at No. 19 on your street."
It didn't take a No. 19 on your street to figure out that the girl to whom his book had been delivered by mistake and this fair one of the telephone were one and the same. He had a sudden but definite feeling that he would never propose to Cora.
"I could run over about five," he said and smiled to himself.
"Oh, dear, I have an engagement at five. Could you come about five thirty?"
Stanley agreed, pleased that she desired to have her tea alone with the man who had asked for the return of his book.
They had a splendid tea time, chatting about things in general but mostly finding one another decidedly the very nicest person in the world. And not having thought about names or anything so commonplace Stanley took his departure promptly at five-thirty with his mauve-bound book in his pocket.
He went down in the elevator then dashed up the stairs again so as not to be a minute late for his five-thirty appointment.
Opening the door Nancy smiled. "Did you forget anything?" she asked.
"Why no," said Stanley. "I have an engagement with Nancy Cromer to talk over scenario rights to my book. I suppose you don't want to break it." And he stepped in, laughing like a young boy at his own foolishness.
"Oh, it is really true?" gasped Nancy. "How lovely."
Cora did not get the book bound in mauve.
Throws Himself
Tom-Yes, I think Molly's an awful book.
Maud-Why, has she begun to throw herself at you now?
Palmerton-John Butz opened flower store in State Bank building.
Coatesville-Mrs. A. T. Loeffler who operates dress factory in Lansdale, considering moving plant to this city.
Brookway-M. Shannan leased Logan Hotel and improving preparatory to reopening.

Have You Met The Lady Who Never Reads The Ads?

GO INTO her kitchen. The shelves are filled with familiar brands of soup and soap and foods of all sorts. Her electric iron and ice-box have been advertised regularly. So have her rugs and towels and table silver. Somebody must have been reading "the ads" asking for known quality buying the goods giving them leadership.
Few women now are content to miss the marvelous comforts of the times. Almost every one is planning to make next year easier and pleasanter than this year. You read the advertisements with interest because in them you find the freshest news and the most practical ideas about keeping house -and about all other branches of the modern art of living.
Naturally, your interest and your confidence grow when you see the same product appearing over and over again. Improved better now than ever, but an old friend, anyway. Something you can rely on to meet a need, and do a job.
Follow the advertisements in this paper carefully. They are full of interesting facts and useful ideas. They will save you time and money and bring you better things.

Garman-Keener
Daniel E. Garman, of Elizabethtown, and Miss Ruth E. Keener, of Florin, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at Christ Reformed church, Elizabethtown, Rev. E. T. C. Miller, officiating. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Zimmerman, of Lancaster.
The bride wore brown chiffon with hat to match and carried yellow roses. Mrs. Zimmerman wore green crepe and carried red roses. A reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Washington, Virginia and also other points in the south. On their return they will reside in Elizabethtown.

Don't buy water instead of oysters. Each year there are some unscrupulous oyster dealers who adulterate oysters with water. If oysters are bleached almost white and bleached, with soft, spongy flesh of little flavor and no salty taste to the meat, and if the liquor is thin and watery, they probably have been adulterated with water.
By careful placing of salt on the National Forest ranges, forest officers get the livestock spread more evenly over the grazing areas. This helps to utilize all the available feed and to prevent overgrazing of meadows and other favored areas.
