COURT UPHOLDS STATE IN CEDAR TREE DISPUTE

A recent decision of the Franklin County court establishes for the first time the authority of the Commonwealth to compel land owners to clean up sources of danger in plant pest control work, states R. H. Bell, director, bureau of plant industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The Pennsylvania Plant Pest Act of 1927 gives the secretary of Agriculture authority to destroy plants and other agricultural products if in his opinion such action is necessary to safeguard important agricultural interests.

The Franklin County case involved the removal of cedar trees on properties of twenty-two individuals as the only control for Cedar Apple Rust which was causing important loss in commercial apple orchards in the vicinity. Four of the property owners refusing to remove the cedar trees from their land, were prosecuted, adjudged guilty of a violation of the Act and fined by a Justice of the Peace. In the meantime, the trees were removed by the State. An appeal was carried to the County Court based on the constitutionality of the Act, the plea being that a cedar tree was not a plant as defined in the Act and that citizens could not be deprived of property without due process of law. The Court sustained the decision of the Justice of the Peace and upheld the Act on both points of the defendants' plea.

In rendering his decision, the Judge quoted from a United States Supreme Court case appealed from the Virginia Courts on a similar question, in which Justice Stone wrote the opinion that when forced to a choice between the preservation of one class of property and that of another wherever both existed in dangerous proximity, the State does not exceed its constitutional power by deciding upon the destruction of one class of property in order to save another which in the judgment of the Legislature is of greater value to the public.

Books for the Blind

Through American Red Cross Chapters, 3,827 volumes of novels, class books and others, transferred into usable form for blind readers, have been added to libraries in the past year. These books are to be obtained through the Library of Congress and city libraries. This activity, carried on by a great number of devoted women volunteers in Red Cross Chapters, had its inception in preparing books for war-blinded.

Tuberculosis Menace is Reported Greater

The necessity for combating an increase in tuberculosis is pointed out by Francis B. Haas, President of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College, in announcing his acceptance of the Christmas Seal Chairmanship for Pennsylvania.

Dr. Haas, who formerly was Superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction, in a message to the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society, says: "The menace of tuberculosis is being increased by the depression and it would be a tragedy if the great fight against the White Plague should be lessened.

"Unemployment and lowered incomes, with the accompanying under-nourishment and the mental and physical stress being experienced by many persons provide fertile ground for tuberculosis. Many chest clinics report an increased number of cases diagnosed as tuberculosis. One county, with a population of about 100,000, which is largely rural, reports 15 new cases of tuberculosis in two months.

"The present time is a particularly dangerous one for children. 'Citizens can aid this vital effort through the support of the 25th Christmas Seal sale which provides funds for the tuberculosis societies.'

"The germs of tuberculosis find a place in the bodies of most children. Under the strain of adult life these germs become active in many cases. The death harvest is reached in the age period 15 to 45, when tuberculosis kills more persons than any other disease.

"We must put forth every effort not only to guard but to improve the health of the rising generation. This is all the more necessary in these times when many children are under-nourished."

Weeding Out Process

The tuberculosis fight is centered largely on the child and youth. Prevention is easy and sure while cure is difficult and uncertain. These facts were emphasized during the past year by the tuberculosis societies in a special campaign. The purpose was to find the children in whom the germ or seed had already taken root and to provide them with the protective care that will forestall the disaster of tuberculosis in the productive period of life, 15 to 45. This effort will be continued in April, 1932, as part of the work carried on through the funds raised in the 1931 Seal sale.

The slogan will be: Tuberculosis Causes Tuberculosis—Every Case Comes from Another.

In Emergencies

Every householder knows that emergencies arise which make the telephone a necessity. A clogged water pipe, a broken electric wire, a stubborn heating plant all may cause difficulties that require emergency repair service. Repair men are at your elbow—if you have a telephone.

If the Operator is wanted on a re-call just work the receiver hook up and down several times. All the subscribers' telephone installations will have to be rewired and in a number of cases the telephones will have to be changed in order to take care of the common battery service.
Another improvement will be in the ringing for subscribers on four party lines, as the present straight line ringing will be discontinued and the semi selective system used, that is, the subscriber will only receive one and two rings instead of four and five as at present. This will require changes in the letter following the subscriber's number on party lines and in some cases changing of the subscriber's number will be necessary. The new directory will show all these changed numbers.
