MAXWELL SARGEN, CONSTABLE, ACTIVE IN THIS SECTION, ARRESTED FOR IMPLICATION IN SLOT MACHINE RACKET

Legal machinery being directed with new vigor and scope by District Attorney Paul A. Mueller against vice, gambling and liquor violations which have flourished in Lancaster county, extended a step further last Saturday to entangle a Marietta Constable and a convicted vice baron in the slot machine traffic.

Indications recently when the new district attorney directed the new force against slot machines that "higher ups" would be brought into the probe were partly borne out on Saturday when testimony by Mr. Thomas McFarland, of Marietta, who pleaded guilty and paid fines totaling $125 for operating the slot machines and liquor violations, implicated Constable Maxwell Sargen, Marietta, and Samuel Scalleat, the former proprietor of the Palisades Inn, near Lancaster, who was found guilty of vice charges in court recently.

Mueller immediately ordered the arrests of Sargen and Scalleat and they were taken into custody Saturday night. They posted bail for hearings Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock before Alderman John F. Brubaker, Lancaster.

Held For Court
