(From page one) this month but the damage was not serious.

Dr. Fletcher said that the amount of money appropriated for tobacco experiments is too small in comparison with the value of the crop. He urged the election of a "tobacco man" as trustee of State College. It was pointed out that Governor Pinchot's veto of the $20,000 tobacco bill was decided upon after a conference with State College officials.

Cites Olsen's Resignation Dr. Fletcher said that the resignation of Otto Olsen as secretary of the association was ordered to prevent criticism that a federal employe was an officer of a growers' organization.

In the future, he said, Mr. Olsen will devote his time entirely to tobacco experimental work and that the information will be distributed through County Farm Agent Floyd S. Bucher.

The speaker concluded by assuring the growers of full co-operation from State College. Prof. Garden spoke briefly on the same subjects and Lewis C. Creamer, president of the association, thanked the speakers for their explanations.

P. W. Baker, Landisville, expressed the opinion that the five cent cigar manufacturer needs Pennsylvania tobacco and that the farmer will find an outlet for his product.

WILL STOP SHORT WEIGHT COAL SALES

So many complaints of shortage in the weight of anthracite coal hauled by individual trucks have been received by the Department of Internal Affairs that Secretary Philip H. Dewey today directed C. J. Cullen, director of the Bureau of Standard Weights and Measures in the Department to make certain that customers get full measure for their money.

Recently, deputy inspectors in the bureau have been making tests on the highways in cooperation with local weights and measures inspectors with the result that a number of prosecutions have been instituted because the full weight to be charged for was not on the trucks. It has been learned that a number of unscrupulous dealers who truck from the mines to the homes of the consumers have been given the full weight at the mines but have sold several bushels of coal enroute, the original consumer in turn receiving a short load.

During the summer months, Secretary Dewey believes that transportation of coal on the highways of the Commonwealth will be greatly increased and accordingly he is anxious to see strict enforcement of the weights and measures laws pertaining to coal.

In discussing the situation today Secretary Dewey pointed out that consumers can aid inspectors in a big way by getting in touch with them if there is belief that they have been short weighted or defrauded. He added that complaints should be made immediately following delivery to either the Department of Internal Affairs or to the city or county inspector of weights and measures who will be ready at all times to measure the coal and determine definitely whether or not short weight has been given.

MILK DEALERS ARE REQUIRED TO OBEY STATE CONTROL ACT

"Three years last month, the Milk Control Act was passed by the General Assembly and approved by the Governor, and there is now no valid reason why all milk dealers in the State should not be complying with all its provisions," Robert F. Brinton, chief of the bureau of milk control, State Department of Health, said today.

Stating that he had just sent notices to each milk control officer in the ten districts into which the State is divided, setting forth the fact that no applications for permits were to be approved unless the applicant absolutely satisfied the control officer that all the provisions of the Milk Code were being complied with, Brinton said:

"The act was placed on the statute books of the State for the purpose of safeguarding the human health and life, by providing for the licensing and regulation of the persons and entities dealing in the milk for human consumption. It confers powers and imposes duties on the Secretary of Health, and the Advisory Health Board, which are performed by the bureau of milk control.

"Consideration for the high standard of equipment required by the act, and the fact that many of its provisions called for additional construction, changes in present methods, and added machinery, has led the bureau to co-operate constantly with all dealers who seemed anxious to comply with the terms of the legislation. That has been the plan of the State Department of Health for the first three years of the law's application.

"As we begin the administration of the fourth year of the Milk Code, it is felt that sufficient time has been given to all the dealers to meet the requirements of the law. Consequently notice has just been mailed to each milk control officer in the State indicating that new applications must not be recommended for approval unless the dealer can entirely obey the provisions of the act. Those holding the permits and not reaching the standards of the code will be notified to appear at a hearing and also show cause why their permits should not be revoked."

STOCK TRANSFER IS TAXABLE UNDER PENNSYLVANIA LAW

The Department of Revenue is calling the attention of Pennsylvania corporations and other corporations having their stock transfer offices in Pennsylvania to the fact that this State has a stamp tax on the transfer of shares of stock of Pennsylvania corporations or foreign corporations having their transfer offices in Pennsylvania. This tax is at the rate of two cents per $100 where there is no par value of the stock and in cases where the stock is of no par value, the tax is at the rate of two cents a share.

The tax does not apply to original shares but applies to any transfer whether evidenced by the actual assignment of the certificate or a memorandum or bill of sale or any other paper evidencing the transfer of a certificate from one holder to another.

A check made by the Department of Revenue during the last year reveals the fact that many corporations have neglected to see that the necessary stamps have been affixed. The Department is working in conjunction with the Federal Government in the enforcement of this tax. Commissioner M. Clyde Sheaff, of the bureau of corporation tax, as said today that he hopes that all corporations subject to the tax will check their records and see that the tax due on all the transfers has been paid and evidenced by the necessary stamps being affixed and concealed.

The Department would much prefer to have their field investigators report that every transaction subject to this tax has been paid rather than to make reports that the submission of affidavits where no such stamps have been affixed. The stamps may be obtained at the various banks throughout the state which sell them.

REPORTS ON AUTO CRASHES ARE NOT USED IN LAW SUITS

Pennsylvania motor vehicle operators who may be involved in accidents need not fear that what they state in their accident reports will be used against them, the Bureau of Highway Patrol and Safety pointed out. The State Vehicle Code not only requires operators to report accidents to the Department of Revenue but also protects them against prosecution based on their report.

The law on the subject is as follows: "Such report shall be without prejudice, shall be for the information of the Department, and shall not be open to public inspection.

"The fact that such reports have been made shall be admissible in evidence solely to prove a compliance with this act, but no report, or any part thereof, or statement contained therein shall be admissible as evidence for any purpose in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of such accidents."

Accident reports are solely for the information of the Department, and often aid in preventing accidents of a similar nature.

CARE IN MOWING HELPS SAVE GAME

The Game Commission in an appeal today asked farmers to watch carefully for nesting quail, ring-necked pheasants and rabbits when they mow their fields this summer. Too often these valuable game creatures either are killed or are badly crippled by the sharp knives and when this occurs the farmer loses a valuable ally, officials said. Many farmers, however, recognize this fact and usually keep a sharp lookout for nesting birds or animals and, after they locate a nest, mow around it, leaving enough cover to protect the eggs and young.

A "flushing bar" which extends forward in front of the knives is now available for attaching to the mowers, and it pushes off their nests any game creatures in its path. This contrivance is already being used extensively by a great many farmers and can be constructed easily.

HIGHWAY WORKERS MUST "PLAY SAFE"

Safeguarding from injury an army of workers who number from 8000 to 32,000 is a formidable job, is evidenced by a report of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways' safety engineer Samuel S. Lewis, the secretary, said. Aside from conservation of life and limb, safety regulations show a profit in insurance rate reduction.

Drawn from all walks of life, every trade and profession, many road workers found construction work a new experience. A typical payroll lists men who, until lately, were miners, grocers, accountants, salesmen, railroaders, conductors, stationary engineers, bank clerks and mechanics of varied types.

Special rules and practices were necessary to prevent this mass of employees from hurting themselves or employees, few of whom were skilled with tools and machinery. An example was the comparatively simple but laborious-operation of making small stones out of large ones by swinging a sledge hammer. Flying particles make this highly dangerous to the eyes, but 7000 pairs of goggles issued to workers eliminate the hazard. Foremen found it necessary to space the workers carefully, lest they swing enthusiastically and strike their neighbors.

Safe Equipment Accident prevention begins with the purchase of equipment. Accepted types of guards are specified with the purchase order. Motor equipment must be supplied with starters, and all older equipment owned by the department is rapidly being equipped with starters, to avoid injuries while cranking.

Strange as it may seem, some of the workers were too anxious to lift heavy materials; too alert foremen prevent them from sustaining injuries in this manner. The fallacy of hurrying is another practice carefully curbed.

Another safeguard is the rule that all nails must be removed from used lumber before storage or discard. Workers are required to protect themselves by placing signs for traffic when they are working in the roadway. This also serves as protection to motorists.

Responsibility for safety enforcement is delegated through the engineers and foremen, who are held accountable for all accidents. Workers are warned that it is a punishable offense to neglect reporting an injury, no matter how trifling it appears, and to apply for first-aid treatment.

Governor Pinchot displayed a personal interest in the workers by issuing orders that "workers must be given an opportunity to make good" and should be given time to become hardened to the work.

GOOD ROADS AWAIT FOREST VISITORS More than 1030 miles of primary State Forest roads, 1600 miles of secondary roads, and 3100 miles of the forest trail system have been put in good condition for summer traffic in the one and one-half million acres of the Pennsylvania State Forests, according to R. H. Vought, road superintendent in the Department of Forests and Waters.

Road crews under the supervision of the State Forest rangers have started work on the annual allocation of $100,000 made available by the Department of Highways for road construction and maintenance wholly within the State Forests. During the present summer these funds will be spent for road purposes principally in Bedford, Cameron, Centre, Clearfield, Clinton, Cumberland, Franklin, Huntingdon, Lycoming, Mifflin, Perry, Potter, and Tioga Counties.

In addition to maintenance and reconstruction, the State Forest road program for the summer calls for the rebuilding of eighty miles of earth roads which vary in cost between $500 and $2000 per mile, depending upon the nature of the ground and the amount of clearing which has to be done through the woods.

According to forestry officials, these roads will open many new tracts of woodland for protection and public use that at the present time are inaccessible for automobile traffic. The opening up of new forest roads into remote forest regions is essential to the efficiency of the State Forest fire organization, by reducing the time required to transport forest fire-fighting crews to the scenes of fires. These roads also make possible the use of great quantities of low grade forest products such as dead wood and trees damaged by fire that may be used for fuel, highway guard rails, posts mine ties, and lagging.
