SATISFACTION OF HOME POSSESSION

We do not believe those people who say it is cheaper to pay rent than to own a home of their own. It is cheaper to own your home if you stick to property the upkeep of which is within your means. It is a method of saving money which no one permanently located in a community should overlook. But the money saving is not the most important part of home owning. The satisfaction of possession and independence is gratifying.

THE TIDE HAS TURNED

There is every indication that the business tide has taken on a little life. Here's our reason: Monday the Carnegie Steel Mill at Braddock, Pa., resumed operations. The Colonial Steel Mill at Monaca reopened and two bar mills increased their force. A cigar factory at Strienstown reopened employing 75 men. 70 operators started at the Eagle Silk Mill at Gettysburg and soon the force will be increased to 200. The Victor Talking Machine Co. at Camden, N. J., put 15,000 on full time Monday. Campbell's Soup Co. recalled many employees and the Continental Can Co. added 200 additional employees.

These facts are our best evidence that the business lull has taken a turn for the better.

UNCLE SAM; COMPETITOR

Uncle Sam may print envelopes in competition with local printers, he can loan money, run banks, conduct commercial shipping, handle railroads, buy wheat, sell groceries, and operate mills, but there is one thing he cannot do, he cannot make any money or pay any dividends in conducting all this business. The taxpayer, who is called upon to meet all the deficits, has found this out. Just as the government is going into business, thousands of people are going out. In the meantime taxes have increased in the Federal government by 730 per cent, and those who still have a "going business" will find it hard to pay this increase in taxes, much less meet Uncle Sam's competition.

When the government eventually finds its way back to its proper sphere, when it quits competing with its own taxpayers, when it commences again to deal successfully with crime, with taxes, and other functions, and when the individual learns over again that individual responsibility represents opportunity, we will again enjoy the fruits of our labor and our inventive genius, and we will get back to our normally prosperous condition.

WILL TURN THE TIDE

As soon as business men quit looking to politicians and bankers and Washington and counting their losses, we are going to start real prosperity. We made success in the past by going after business. It is all around us, waiting to be started. Factories are waiting for orders, railroads for traffic. Buyers of everything under heaven are keen to be led. We will never start upward until the business men organize a national drive. Everything is worn out and we can get the money in circulation only by spending it. We raised billions for Liberty bonds by organization. Let the business men turn the attention of everybody to this vital fact and we will need to raise no more money for idle men. Prices will start going up as soon as demand is created. The consumers will follow a constructive, vigorous campaign.

There is entirely too much pessimism abroad, and not enough of that invigorating, inspirational courage and indomitable pluck for which the American people are noted.

OUR NEXT PRESIDENT

No one should be envious of the man who is chosen in November to serve the nation as president for the coming four years. It makes no difference whether President Hoover is reelected or Franklin D. Roosevelt is chosen, serving the country during that time will be a nerve-racking experience. This will be so even if industry soon becomes active again and prosperity actually takes a look around the corner. The problems raised by the great depression will largely remain to be worked out. In order to bring safer assurance that the country will never again be plunged into such a black financial, political and social systems-if they can now be called that-will have to be reconstructed.

Wiser practices of government and wiser laws will have to be put in force, and we will have to perfect our national and international policies.

Much of the responsibility for such policies and action will fall on our next president. His brain and nervous energy will be taxed to the utmost. Innovations are never made very welcome, and the president who suggests them will have to possess much force of character to put them thru. The next president will likely have a balmy congress to deal with, it makes no difference whether he is a Republican or a Democrat. Congressional majorities seldom work very well with their own executives.

In addition to our domestic problems, which are about as grave as can be, the coming president must direct our policies in regard to the foreign nations. Never in the history of the world has there been such a mixed-up and seemingly hopeless international situation. European nations are suffering from the depression worse than we are, with the possible exception of France, and all are in a frenzy of suspicion against each other and even us. America will remain a leader in world affairs, in spite of our desire not to get mixed up with Europe, and our president during the next four years will be forced to take a hand when crises develop. It won't be any fun for either Hoover or Roosevelt to steer our ship of state wisely and safely.

Stop Robber Bees
To stop robber bees place a bunch of grass or weeds in the entrance. This material will hinder the robbers when they try to enter the hive. If the bees persist in robbing a weak colony, remove the hive to a new location and close the entrance so that only one bee can enter.

FOR YOUR INSPECTION

The merchant and manufacturer who advertise, actually are placing their merchandise before you for inspection. They invite your most critical attention and an uncompromising comparison.

And their advertisements, so to speak, say to their products: "We have introduced you to the public—now stand on your own merits."

If the manufacturer and merchant did not have confidence in their wares, they would hesitate to call attention to them. For advertising rigidly tests the maker, the seller and the merchandise.

Business so tested, and found not wanting, is prosperous.

In the long run, you can depend on the man who advertises, as well as on his product. That is one reason why people have found that it pays to read advertisements.

It is through advertising that the excellent things of the world are brought to the attention of those who are seeking for the best and most economical way to spend their money.

Read the advertisements. They are news.
