At Marietta Theatre

On Wednesday and Thursday, Ben Lyon and Sally Eilers are co-starred in "Hat Check Girl," a swift moving romance of Manhattan. With the unique romance of a Park Avenue millionaire and a night club "Hat Check Girl" as its theme, the picture promises a good share of excitement and drama. The splendid supporting cast of Ginger Rogers, Monroe Oweley and Arthur Pierson rate the production as one of the most entertaining pictures. Pedigreed patrons of society's Blue Book held no secrets for the "Hat Check Girl."

On Friday and Saturday, including the special Saturday Matinee, Edmund Lowe is featured in "Chandu, the Magician," from the great radio mystery drama. Lowe masters the wizardry of the Yogi, performs feats of magic known only to the ancient Egyptians, holds his persecutors at bay with his hypnotic eyes, escapes from being buried alive on the floor of the Nile and introduces new tactics in the art of lovemaking. Irene Ware plays opposite Lowe in the romantic lead, with Bela Lugosi, Herbert Mundin and Henry B. Walthall. The sixth chapter of "Heroes of the West" is presented on this program.

On Monday and Tuesday, "Unashamed," a story of a girl who is pitted against her own brother in a courtroom drama, comes to the Marietta. Helen Twelvetrees plays the part of the heroine whose indiscretions force her to face the choice of sacrificing her honor or dooming her brother to death at the hands of the executioner. Robert Young, who scored in a big way in "The Wet Parade" plays the brother, the rest of the splendid cast being composed of Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, John Miljan, Monroe Oweley, Robert Warwick and Gertrude Michael.
