EDITORIAL

The postal deficit for the last fiscal year was $30,000,000, instead of $25,000,000 as in the preceding year. That's business as usual—at least postal business as usual.

A RECORD SHOW

Mount Joy's eleventh annual Community Show is now a matter of record and we feel confident it was the best yet. There were 2,000 exhibits, the largest in the history of the show, competition was quite keen, and the attendance during the three days was estimated at 10,000.

BACK TO THE FARM

There seems to be a definite "back to the farm" movement on foot. Several signs point to an increased public interest in farms and agricultural affairs. Real estate dealers from several points report an increased amount of inquiries coming from other states that have been hard hit by the business depression.

HALLOWEEN IS COMING

Altho Halloween is some days away, coming on October 31, many cities are planning on public celebrations for "All Saints" night, when ghosts and goblins walk. Mount Joy ought to stage a real Halloween festival this year. It would be an ideal time. Why not some one or more of our civic organizations undertake to stage the project? The co-operation of the merchants and public in making it a success is assured, for Halloween is always one night of the year when old and young alike can get out and enjoy a few hours of good, old-fashioned merrymaking.

ANTICIPATION

Every fisherman and hunter knows that the joy we get out of life is not the joy we aimed for but greater. The same with the good workmen who at the beginning work well that they may prosper in the end but find as the years pass that the real joy was in the labor, not labor's wages.

MAKING IT TOUGH

With the opening of the hunting season not far distant, the writer is rather anxious to learn just what will happen afield this year, but from present indications it appears as though the Pennsylvania State Game Commission is making it rather tough for the hunters.

When a man goes afield this hunting season he wants to be very familiar with the game laws and in our estimation they are rather difficult. It is almost necessary to carry a calendar and then be sure of your data.

Turkey, ringneck pheasants, the male; quail and grouse may be shot in the woods. How many hunters will pass them up if they see them in the woods? Why not wait until the hunting season closes to liberate these birds? We are of the impression that the Game Commission should quit experimenting with the game laws and instead of making them more difficult, make them simple.

TODAY'S HOUSEHOLD

Dorothy Davenport, Household Science Institute

Pity Little Vincent Grand—His Dad's a millionaire. They dine on plates of solid gold and eat the richest fare.

Yet Vincent never comes from school To find a four-y Ma Who calls the neighbor youngsters in To raid the cookie jar!

NE of the first signs of an approaching summer is the demand on the part of the children for picnics. An egg sandwich and an apple become a picnic to most children if eaten at the bottom of the garden or anywhere outdoors out of sight of the house. It is a good idea, then, to start having plenty of provisions on hand for these emergency picnics and of course that includes cookies.

Sand Tarts are a delicious novelty made as follows:

- 1 cup butter 3/4 cups self-rising flour 2 cups light brown sugar 6 tbs. granulated sugar 2 eggs 1 tsp. vanilla 2 tsp. cinnamon 1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts Cream butter and brown sugar together thoroughly; add egg yolks and beat; add vanilla and milk; add flour to make a soft dough. Roll thin and cut with a small cutter. Place on a greased baking sheet and brush tops with the egg whites slightly beaten and mixed with the 6 tablespoons sugar, the cinnamon and nuts. The cookies should be placed at least an inch apart. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375-400°F.) for about ten minutes.

Everything in these little cookies is wholesome—the butter and eggs, the brown sugar. The self-rising flour has been preleavened at the mill with monocalcium phosphate, and so provides additional and necessary calcium and phosphorus to the diet. Nuts are wholesome for all except the youngest members of the family, and a small share of the cookies might be made without this adornment.

Nov. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 11, 16, 17, 18, 23, 24 and 25—12 days. How many of the thousands of Penna. hunters can remember these dates?

Then again, a number of the counties are closed to the hunting of wild turkeys, therefore gunners want to be real careful just where these boundary lines are, no matter what you are hunting. You are just as liable to be standing in an open county and kill a turkey in a closed county.

The writer who has not missed a season afield in the last forty years predicts more violations this year than ever just on account of the foregoing difficult regulations.

Then again season for two species of wild duck was closed entirely this year and we defy the best duck hunters in the state to tell these from the other ducks either in the air or on the water. How many men will "shoot and then look" just as they have been doing on deer for a number of years?

Our experience has been that such rather inconsistent laws (whether game or otherwise) invite violations.

On October 15 the blackbird season opened and since then the writer has found wounded ringneck pheasants.

In the counties that are closed for the killing of wild turkeys, what sized army of game protectors would be required to enforce that law when men are in the mountains hunting grouse, squirrel, and rabbits.

We notice that the State Game Commission has already distributed a number of wild turkeys in some of the closed counties. How many hunters will pass them up if they see them in the woods? Why not wait until the hunting season closes to liberate these birds?

We are of the impression that the Game Commission should quit experimenting with the game laws and instead of making them more difficult, make them simple.

SIXTY DISASTERS IN 1932 ADD TO NATION'S DISTRESS

Red Cross Spends $2,760,000 To Help Victims of Catastrophes.

In a year of great misfortune caused by economic depression, in which the American Red Cross assumed heavy burdens of relief for the unemployed, the organization also responded to emergency needs in 60 disasters in the United States and its insular possessions. During the twelve months ending June 30, 1932, the Red Cross gave aid to 75,000 families totalling 338,000 individuals, with expenditures of $2,760,786. These people were in distress because of drought, flood, forest fire, tornado, snowstorm, mine explosion, or other similar great disaster.

Prolonged drought caused the Red Cross to go with help to 58,000 families in the northwest. Here in 144 counties in North and South Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Washington and Iowa the Red Cross spent $1,980,000 from its own treasury to feed and protect people through the winter and spring.

Other grave disasters were floods in southeastern states, where the organization spent $192,000 from its treasury and $66,000 local contributions to help 13,000 persons.

More than 50,000 people were homeless from floods in tributaries of the Mississippi river and again the Red Cross faced a long relief task, aiding these people. The national organization gave $108,000 and local contributions were $10,000.

The Red Cross always maintains a state of readiness to meet these sudden emergencies, and funds and other essentials to this work are supplied, in part, by the annual roll call, held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day. Every citizen can support this worthy activity through joining as a member in the local Red Cross chapter.

HOW MUCH is a dollar

Dave Harum said, "When you get hold of ten dollars get it into you or onto you as soon as you can, for there ain't no pocket in a shroud and you're a long time dead." If you had nothing but money you would be poor indeed. It is the things for which you can exchange the money you earn that set the standards of your living comforts and conveniences.

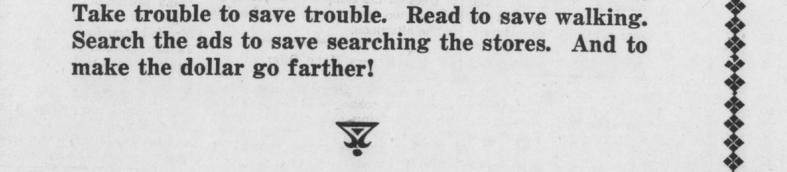

You know this. But do you know that it is you who largely determines the value of your dollars?

Many things contribute to the distance a dollar will go, but the greatest agent in "value received" is Advertising.

The advertisements in this paper tell you about the best grades of merchandise. They tell you where they can be had and for how much.

They tell you of the new things that manufacturers are producing to make your dollars of real worth to you in greater comforts, better living, more enjoyment.

Read the advertisements. Take time to save time. Take trouble to save trouble. Read to save walking. Search the ads to save searching the stores. And to make the dollar go farther!

IMPORTANT! When you ask for a product by name, as a result of advertising, you do not accept a substitute—substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.
