

The Third Girl

AMID the gayety of preparations for the Christmas season won't you pause a moment to pity the "third girl"? Among all young women who die between the ages of 15 and 30 one out of three dies of tuberculosis—a human sacrifice to ignorance and indifference. Tuberculosis is preventable and curable. Turn your pity into action and buy Christmas Seals. Your pennies help spread the knowledge that will save lives.

Last Minute Dishes

By Harriet Dean

IN the days that precede the holiday season, when presents have to be bought and mailed, the children arrive from school and the kitchen is given over to special cooking, there are times when every housekeeper longs for recipes which can be prepared quickly and are sure to be successful. It is just such occasions as these that show the new "cracker cooker" up to advantage. It eliminates the old time complications of pastry making and the fear of a soggy or tough crust. It saves time and work and is less expensive as the dishes are started with crackers already seasoned. A stuffed meat roll makes an ideal entrée on such occasions. It can be quickly made and does not have to be watched while cooking. The premium loaf pictured above is attractive on the table and will serve six. Try it with this recipe:

Stuffed Meat Roll
 2/3 cup finely crumbled soda crackers
 1/4 cup butter or suet drippings
 1 small onion, grated
 Salt and pepper
 1/2 teaspoon powdered sage
 1/2 cup hot water
 1 lb. chopped round steak
 Crumble crackers. Melt butter, add seasoning and hot water. Mix and shape into long roll. Pat meat into oblong cake and roll around cracker mixture. Bake in hot oven (475° F.) 20-25 minutes.
 For a quick luncheon dish nothing is better than corn fritters made with cracker batter. They can be fixed for as many guests as you like and if the supply runs out, more can be made in a jiffy.
Corn Fritters
 1 1/2 cups soda crackers
 1/2 cups canned corn
 2 eggs, slightly beaten
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon sugar
 Crumble crackers and mix all ingredients together. Drop by spoonfuls into small amount of hot fat in frying pan. Cook over moderate flame. Turn when browned on one side. Six portions.*

At Marietta Theatre

On Wednesday and Thursday, Warner Baxter featured in "Six Hours to Live." There is a strong supporting cast including John Boles, Miriam Jordan, Irene Ware and Beryl Mercer. The story in brief, centers about the efforts of Baxter, representing a small republic, to save his country from ruin by an unfair trading treaty which the world powers are trying to force through a session at the Peace Palace at Geneva, Switzerland. The unique manner in which Baxter foils their efforts, makes for powerful drama.
 On Friday and Saturday, including a special Saturday matinee, Zane Grey's "Heritage of the Desert," featuring Randolph Scott, Sally Blane and J. Farrell MacDonald is to be seen at the Marietta. There is a battle between the Ranchmen and the Outlaws, into which comes a young surveyor, brought by the Ranchmen to check the boundaries of their land. He allies himself with his employers in the battle and so distinguishes himself that when the feud is finally settled, he has won a permanent place in the hearts not only of the ranchmen in general, but the daughter of the ranch in particular.
 Three valuable prizes given away every Saturday night.
 The first chapter of the new serial, "The Jungle Mystery" is on this program. Also Laurel & Hardy in "The Chimp."
 On Monday and Tuesday, Marlene Dietrich is starred in "Blonde Venus." In the fine supporting cast are Herbert Marshall, noted star of the dramatic stage and Gary Grant, that promising young screen player. Miss Dietrich is in the rôle of a woman who, to secure funds to save her husband's life, ac-

How Pennsylvania Can Aid Business Revival

An effective means to promote business recovery is pointed out by M. D. Kennedy, Chicago transportation expert. Observing that transportation is one of the biggest and most rigid items in business costs, Mr. Kennedy declares that, as commodity prices move downward but railroad charges do not, these costs absorb a constantly increasing share. The cost of transportation must come down, he declares, adding: "With good roads, efficient trucks and lower wages, transportation costs by motor have declined until, but for thoughtless truck regulation, first-class freight could be transported up to 300 miles for 25 to 50 per cent less than rail rates. This would be from shipper's door to consumer's door, eliminating delivery costs at each end. But this will not be possible until there is some uniformity in truck laws of the states. For instance, a four-wheel truck 96 inches wide, 156 inches high, 33 feet long is permitted in New York and the District of Columbia; but it could not legally be driven between, because the truck is 5 feet too long for the New Jersey law; 4 inches too high for Delaware law; and 3 inches too wide for Maryland laws.
 "Again, a truck 150 inches high leaving Atlanta, Ga., for Birmingham, Ala., could not enter Alabama because of Alabama's 144-inch height limit. A 4-wheel truck 96 inches wide, 156 inches high, 33 feet long, leaving Milwaukee for Detroit, is within the laws of Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan; but unfortunately it must pass a few miles through Indiana also, where it would be 6 inches too high.
 "Legal widths for trucks range in various states from 84 to 102 inches; heights, 144 to 174 inches; lengths, 28 to 40 feet.
 Business interests in Pennsylvania, already concerned over the recent reciprocity war with neighboring states, are coming to realize how serious it would be if Pennsylvania should adopt, the coming winter, the truck limitations that were proposed at the special session last summer. These would put sizes and weights completely out of line with nearly all other states. With trucking companies already moving out of the state because of the anti-reciprocity law, it is predicted that a perfect exodus of them would follow further restrictions on weights and dimensions. "The greatest industrial state," declares the Highway Users' Conference of Pennsylvania, "is seriously proposing to amputate itself from the cheapest and quickest transportation system the country possesses. Let us get in line with other states in these matters, and get our share of the business. No Chinese walls around Pennsylvania business!"

Trees Recall Historic Spots in Pennsylvania

Trees that protected historic events of Colonial times still stand in Pennsylvania.
 At the old Donegal Presbyterian church in Lancaster county is the white oak Witness tree, where on a Sunday morning in September, 1777, an express rider told the assembled congregation the British army had left New York to invade Pennsylvania. Then, according to tradition, the pastor and congregation gathered under the tree, joined hands and pledged their loyalty to the cause of liberty.
 No less famous is the Lafayette sycamore, near Chadds Ford in Delaware county. Its branches overhang the stone house where General Lafayette had his headquarters. History relates that the French patriot rested under the tree from the leg wounds he received in the battle of the Brandywine.
 In Clinton county, in central Pennsylvania, stands the Liberty elm, also known as the Tadahton elm, where, according to the story, the "Pine Creek Declaration of Independence" was signed.

Many Communities Have Their "Old Man Jones"

Of course, you've heard the expression, "He's just walking around to save funeral expenses." Well, I know some folks who are. They don't take an interest in anything. They don't try to help themselves or anybody else. They just breathe, eat, walk, sleep and call it living. They remind me of a story told by a writer in a business magazine. Here it is:
 "A friend of mine lately went back to an old camping ground after an absence of several years, and inquired for the Jones family. An Indian told him: 'Old man Jones, he dead.'
 "My friend was greatly disturbed at this news, but when he got to his camp, 'Old man Jones' came out to get his bags. And he wanted an explanation.
 "What did you mean by telling me old man Jones was dead?' he demanded of the Indian.
 "Yes, he dead.
 "Why, he was here just this minute and carried my bags for me.'
 "Well, he dead, but he ain't fall over yet!"—Wallaces Farmer.

Paint-Buried Treasure

Although men are constantly hunting for treasure on land and in the sea, not all treasure is buried. Some of it, in the form of lost old masters, is hidden from the eye only by a coat of paint. The man who can discover a copy of the lost painting by Raphael, of a Virgin with the Christ Child clutching at her veil, is assured of a fortune. Probably it was not destroyed, but merely worked over by some Eighteenth-century restorer, who did not hesitate to repaint so that Raphael's brushwork could not be seen. Possibly some treasure hunter, armed with an X-ray, will one day find this painting.

Japan's Big Buddha

All of us are familiar with pictures of the mammoth figure of Buddha in Japan. It may be seen at Kamakura, a pleasant summer resort near Yokohama, which is also famous for its beaches and beautiful mountain-top views. The Daibutsu, or big Buddha, is the largest bronze casting in existence, and sits in state upon a lotus flower with a calm and peaceful expression. His eyes of pure gold seem to be absorbed in meditation. On his head are 800 curls, each 9 inches high, representing the snails which, according to legend, crawled on his head to shelter its bald surface from the sun's rays.
