Has a Poster 77 Years Old

MISS ANNIE BLESINGER, OF TOWN, OWNS AN ANTIQUE—ITS A POLITICAL AD OF THE TIME JAMES BUCHANAN WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT

How'd you like to look at an election poster seventy-seven years old? Well, there's one in Mount Joy and it's in mighty good condition. Of course that's back in the days when we had Republican, Democratic and Know Nothing parties.

While perusing some of the belongings of our townsman, the late Martin N. Brubaker, Miss Annie Blesinger on East Main street found a large election poster about two by three feet. It was used during the presidential campaign prior to the election of November 4, 1856.

"Gone But He's Not Forgotten"

EMPLOYEES OF JAKE HILLEGAS WERE "LOOKING THEIR EYES OUT" FOR HIM JANUARY 14, WHICH WAS TO BE ANOTHER OF THOSE "PAY DAYS."

"Gone but not forgotten." Truer words were never spoken with reference to one Jake Hillegas, promoter, who started a coal mine on Harry Haldean's farm several months ago, and who, since before Christmas is among the missing.

When Hillegas skipped the pay day before Christmas, some actually thought they would really have a pay day Jan. 14. Like the rest, that promised pay day has come and gone and no one has as yet received a cent.

The Bulletin is responsible for the news from Hillegas' home town, Berlin, Pa., that he was absolutely no good. After these facts were published very few people around here placed any confidence in him whatever.

Aside from enlightening the people of our community, our article brought a strong protest from Hillegas. This protest was in the shape of a four page letter written, we presume, by Hillegas. (Turn to page four)

Charles Musser, fifty, of Elizabethtown, was held by state police at Columbia Thursday for questioning in connection with a fire that razed a barn on his farm on the morning of January 5. The farm is located along the Elizabethtown - Lebanon highway, at Bellaire.

Musser was taken into custody Thursday morning by Trooper John McDevitt, after reports of the blaze had been filed with the County Fire Marshall Paul N. Knier, by former Fire Chief C. K. Coble, of Elizabethtown, and Irvin Kaylor, of this boro.

Suspicious Aroused

Knier said Thursday night that the suspicions of firemen had been aroused when they learned that the blaze which destroyed the barn started in a similar manner to one that razed another barn on the farm four years ago. The second barn was erected on the foundation of the first and was 54 feet by 80 feet.

Both fires, according to Knier, were started in or near the eaves. He said that the second barn was heavily insured, and that he considered the estimated loss of $14,000 unusually high under present conditions.

Pennsylvania will show a net profit on its state highway system of $23,415,000 for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1933.

This is the highest of an exhaustive study of the highway system just completed by the Pennsylvania Highway Users' Conference, copies of which have been sent to all members of the Legislature. Built at a cost of $590,637,639 over a period of twenty years, the Commonwealth today has an equity of $308,846,544 in its state highway system, the survey shows.

This "colossal, self-liquidating governmental project" is viewed as the most astute piece of business enterprise ever undertaken by the State, contributing annually 44% of State tax revenue. It was started on the proverbial shoe-string under the Sproul Act of 1911, and has been extended since to include 16,700 miles; of which 4,679 miles are township roads.

The study shows the highway system has been built and financed on the pay-as-you-go plan, taking care of (Turn to page 8)
