

Spectacular Train Takes Movie Stars Across Nation

Two-score film stars travel on this special train; (upper left) Bebe Daniels; (upper right) G-E kitchen where famous chefs prepare stars' meals en route.

A spectacular special train, covered with gleaming gold and silver and equipped with all conceivable electrical devices, as well as a replica of moviedom's famed Malibu Beach, will carry two-score movie celebrities from the Pacific to Atlantic seaboard, stopping at various cities en route, including Washington, D. C., where they attend the Roosevelt inauguration ceremonies.

The special train will resemble a flying motor as it flashes through the nights. Exteriors will be electrically lighted—the first time in railroad history that such a feat has been accomplished. Huge sun arcs, or Hollywood lights, installed in the baggage cars, will cast powerful beams into the night skies. Special equipment has been installed to furnish current for the unusual lighting and for the all-electric kitchen which General Electric was asked to construct in the train. The kitchen was installed because temperamental stars insisted that food be properly preserved and prepared. All the chef has to do, after receiving orders for meals, is to press a button and the food is cooked automatically. After the meal is served, he presses a button and the dishes are washed. Electricity even preserves the food automatically. On the observation car, a small edition of Malibu Beach, the movie colony's bathing resort, has been built, with palm trees, sand and electric sun-lamps to lend added realism.

In each city where stops are made, stars will participate in a parade and later will make personal appearances at a number of Brothers' theater. Many of them played in "42nd Street," Warner's newest movie extravaganza. The train is scheduled to leave Los Angeles, Feb. 21; in Denver Feb. 23; Kansas City, Feb. 24; St. Louis, Feb. 25; Indianapolis, Feb. 27; Chicago, Feb. 28; Detroit, March 1; Cleveland, March 2; Pittsburgh, March 3; Washington, D. C., March 4; Baltimore, March 6; Philadelphia, March 7; Boston, March 8, and New York, March 9.

Among the stars scheduled to be aboard are Bebe Daniels, James Cagney, Warren William, Joe E. Brown and perhaps Guy Kibbee, Mary Brian, Loretta Young, Bette Davis, George Brent and Laura La Plante, as well as a score of potential stars, who are said to be the most beautiful in Hollywood.

Plays for Inaugural Ball

WASHINGTON — The appearance of Eddie Duchin and his orchestra at the Roosevelt Inaugural Ball in Washington, D. C., by special command of "Big Jim" Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee and newly appointed Postmaster-General in the Roosevelt cabinet, constitutes a modern Horatio Alger story.

Eddie Duchin

Farley, a frequent visitor to the Central Park Casino in New York where the youthful Duchin nightly conducts his orchestra and entertains with special piano solos, passed the word to Admiral Grayson that he would like to have Duchin play for the Inaugural and presto, it was done.

The friendship between 23-year-old Eddie Duchin and Mr. Farley, whose magic won a Presidential nomination and election for Mr. Roosevelt, began in the days when Jimmy Walker was king in Manhattan and spent several nights a week at the Casino. Eddie's command performance for the big-wigs of American politics at the capital is proof that opportunity still knocks on doors in the U. S. A. For Eddie had a humble start in life and but for a quick acceptance of Old Man Opportunity's invitation might be rolling pills behind a prescription counter in Boston today.

Born on April Fool's day in 1909, Eddie's father intended that he should follow in his steps and become a druggist.

Eddie attended the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and was about ready to step into his shoes at the corner drug store when Music beckoned and Eddie joined Leo Reisman's orchestra as pianist.

When Sid Solomon, pal of Mayor

Reisman decided to open the Casino, Eddie was invited to play at the Central Park Casino. Walker selected Leo Reisman as his orchestra leader and Eddie Duchin who had played for Reisman for a short time moved in with Eddie at the piano and in September 1931 Reisman left and Duchin formed his own orchestra for the Casino where he has remained since by popular demand of the Social registerites and political big-wigs who patronize the Casino.

TRUCK DRIVERS URGED TO CO-OPERATE WITH GUARDIANS OF THE HIGHWAY

THE SAFE DRIVER'S BEST FRIEND

Picards like these are being distributed throughout the state by the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — The state highway trooper must be looked upon as one who is diligently protecting the interests of every highway user and not as a representative of the law who becomes unhappy if he can't chalk up a large number of arrests every day for major and minor infractions of the law.

This in effect, is the word sent out by Ted V. Rodgers, president of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, with headquarters here, to operators of commercial vehicles throughout the state. To give wide visibility to this phase of its courtesy campaign, the truck association has distributed in various sections of the state several thousand picards which carry the illustration and legend reproduced above.

"In a nutshell," Mr. Rodgers said, "the object of our courtesy campaign will be to encourage truck operators to give passenger car drivers the benefit of every doubt and to facilitate the movement of passenger traffic even though at times it may slow up a bit the movement of commercial traffic."

"Courtesy, cooperation and consideration exercised by all users of the highway will insure a maximum of safety, efficiency and economy for all those who must operate motor vehicles on the public highways. The owners and operators of commercial vehicles must appreciate that the modern mode of living has made the passenger car essential to the pursuit of pleasure, health and recreation and that it also serves a very important part in the proper conduct of domestic and business affairs.

"On the other hand, the owners and operators of passenger vehicles should appreciate that the highway, from the dawn of civilization, has been primarily an artery for the proper conduct of commercial and military affairs, and that the big truck which occasionally annoys him, or slows him up, is playing a highly important part in the economic distribution of the essentials of life.

"There is no doubt that widening is urgently needed on many highways of the main state system that carries the great bulk of our traffic, farm vehicles included. It would seem that such highways, carrying many hundreds and many thousands of vehicles daily, should be adequately improved before funds, supplied by the great majority of motorists, are used to surface roads on which the traffic volume scales down almost to the vanishing point.

"However, pending the day when such essential widening and other desirable improvements to main state highways are made, much can be accomplished toward making motoring conditions more pleasant and more profitable by observing the common courtesies."

YOU'RE FOOLISH TO TRY IT, LADY...

Experts have estimated that the weight lifted while ironing a normal week's wash by hand is equivalent to one ton... and that the arm travels a distance equal to three full statute miles during this time. If that doesn't make you a traveling "weight lifter" of the first order, what does?

You're foolish to do it lady... when an Ironer either Electric or Gas, will do away with all that weight lifting; those muscle strains and back aches that are so much a part of old-fashioned ironing. It does away with blistered and calloused hands and that overheated feeling that comes from standing over an iron all day.

An Ironer will do ALL your ironing... from large sheets and bed spreads to dainty handkerchiefs... and from heavy suits to flimsy negligees. The Ironer will do a better and a quicker job than you can do by hand. And it's so simple a machine that even a child can do the ironing.

Even a Child can operate an Ironing Machine

Furthermore, these Ironers are inexpensive to operate and sell at prices and on terms attractive to everyone.

51 GET PERMITS FOR WATER SALE

Permits for permission to sell and distribute bottled water in Pennsylvania have been issued by the State Health Department to fifty-one persons or corporations since January 1.

Permits are issued only after an investigation has satisfied the department that sanitary regulations are being observed regarding the sources of supply, bottling and the safety of the water.

Under the law permits must be renewed annually. A number of dealers have not yet applied for their approval. It was announced today that measures to force compliance will be instituted shortly.

HEALTH EXPERTS INSPECT SCHOOLS

A total of 4080 the fourth-class schools were visited during the State Health Department's medical inspection drive which has just been concluded. Treatment advised for defects discovered in the examinations total 91,230 to date.

From reports being daily received by the department, a large proportion of the treatments and corrections already have been made by the family physicians to whom all such cases are referred.

CHECK RESTAURANTS IN RURAL SECTIONS

The restaurant hygiene division of the State Health Department reports that during the last four weeks 107 inspections were made in second-class townships and 2088 health certificates were issued. In 364 municipalities reporting restaurant hygiene activities, 5492 places were inspected and 6640 health certificates were granted.

The immediate activities of this division, as announced today, will be directed toward the small town restaurants. Reports indicate that there are many such establishments whose sanitary practices are not within the law.

WHAT does a comedian do when he lands a job in a grocery store? The answer is not long forthcoming. Tom was asked such a question, and his reply was prompt and emphatic.

"Make your customers smile," said Howard. "Give them songs, harmony and humor. Sing while you sell, and sell while you sing. You won't order any more red ink, and depression will be a myth. If Mrs. Schnapps is wavering over the purchase of some rutabagas, play her a tune, and watch the rutabagas disappear off your counter. If Mrs. Green doesn't know whether she wants some mayonnaise for her salads, get out your clerks and have them render some tasty harmony, and if Mrs. Printwhite is undecided about oleomargarine, call out an orchestra, and watch her buy it up."

The result of this sage advice landed Howard a job in what he chooses to call a "Musical Grocery Store." It opens for business, with all the musical and humorous appointments, on Friday evening, March 10, over a coast-to-coast hook-up of the National Broadcasting Company.

Other members of the merry staff of the "Musical Grocery Store" are Jeannie Lang, the squeaky-voiced cashier who first came into prominence when Paul Whiteman discovered her in Hollywood and gave her a part in the "King of Jazz"; Herbert Polesie as Billy Best, the proprietor; Scrappy Lambert and His Singing Clerks, and Harry Salter's 15-piece orchestra.

The "Musical Grocery Store" will be heard in the East and Middle West every Friday evening from 9 to 9:30 over an NBC-WEAF network; in Rocky Mountain section from 10:30 to 11:00, and the Pacific Coast from 9:30 to 10:00.
