OWL-LAFFS

The jig saw puzzle craze, like at thousands of other places, has a firm hold on the family of George Mumper at Florin. The other evening Mr. and Mrs. Mumper worked on a puzzle until late but did not finish it so next day while George was at work the good wife decided to complete the job but could not find all the pieces. When Geo. came home that evening they found the missing pieces in his lunch box.

A family on North Market St. had the same misfortune. They discovered the missing pieces under the porch. The latter fell backward on the family brought the puzzle from a neighbor, she fell, spilled it over the porch but had not found all the pieces.

Now, I'll have to tell you my experience. A fellow gave me a puzzle that he had sawed out, stating that it was a woodland scene. When I got it together it was a dog fight. But I guess he was right at that.

An incident occurred on W. Main street that is really too funny to let go unnoticed. A certain lady came down town closely followed by her little daughter on a tricycle. The latter, not looking where she was going, rode full speed into her mother. The latter fell backward on the child, tricycle upset and oh boy what a wreck. Fortunately no one was hurt and you can all do as they did—laugh.

Over at school one of the beginners said she couldn't tell the 'b' from the 'd.' Another said: "That's easy—one of 'em has its stomach on the back."

Merchant John Booth tells me that the strict interpretation of the remark "beakly weather" means when it rains dogs and cats.

Over at the firemen's meeting on Thursday night one fellow said: "Does your wife ever boast that she made a man of you?" Reply: "Well, she doesn't go that far. All she says is that she's tried her best."

One of our high school girls asked another if you could call a girl's waist line, the line of least resistance.

A farmer out near Donegal Springs has one of those kicking mules. I asked him if the animal ever kicked him. He said: "No, but he's often kicked in the place where I've been."

A man living down on South Barbara street says that the English language has 82 sounds but that the cats in that vicinity must know other languages besides English.

They tell me we have a chap who calls on a school teacher but he quit because every time he failed to put in an appearance she wanted him to bring a written excuse from his mother.

A number of children were playing when the mother of one boy asked why he couldn't play without making so much noise. He said they were playing picnic, a storm came up and he was the thunder.

They say Dame Fortune knocks at every man's door at least once. Well, a chap at Florin says when it knocked at his door it turned out to be Miss Fortune.

I never knew until recently just why that narrow gauge railroad from New Bloomfield to New Germantown in Perry Co. was abandoned until recently. They say that every farmer throughout that valley had sued the company for damages. The trains ran so slow that the passengers milked all the farmers' cows along the line.

A little fellow here in town heard a woman say that he was the very picture of his father, then he went to Dad, told him about it and asked if he thought it was meant as a

HEALTH TALK

WRITTEN BY DR. THEODORE B. APPEL, SECRETARY OF HEALTH

"Maternal mortality in the United States represents a most unenviable figure. In spite of the efficiency of the medical profession, the fine hospitals and the advanced knowledge of antiseptic control, nearly 16,000 women lost their lives from child-birth or associated conditions in this country last year. Unfortunately this sorry situation is to a great extent beyond the definite control of the attending physician and public health officials," stated Dr. Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health.

"For example, many cases of the death-dealing child-bed fever, technically known as puerperal septicemia, are the results of self-induced abortion which often creates a situation far more dangerous than child-birth.

"It would thus appear that the gravity of this practice is not properly appreciated. Were its significance fully realized, this hazardous method of sidestepping child-birth would become rare, and the death rate from child-bed fever would be diminished.

"Indeed, after eliminating abortion which, usually self induced, causes one-fourth of the puerperal septicemia deaths, the remainder of child-bed fever fatalities are mainly due to preventable infections.

"However, speaking generally, innocent or willful neglect on the part of expectant mothers, is to a great extent responsible for the maternal death rate. When the loss of mother-life can thus be traced in large part to preventable causes, the situation becomes more deplorable.

"Somehow, expectant mothers must be made to realize that the proper time to seek medical attention for the emergency is when the expectancy is first realized. Pre-natal care is the great bulwark against many of the conditions that cause havoc and tragedy at the birth.

"Indeed, it is safe to say that if every expectant mother would place herself under the direct supervision of a physician at the beginning of the term, the present maternal mortality rates could not only greatly but spectacularly be reduced. Unfortunately, however, as far as public health officials are concerned it is the sad old story of 'You can lead a horse to water but you cannot make it drink.'

"In short, to cut the appalling maternity death rate, thoughtful and cooperative initiative must originate in the home. For a full, proper and timely medical guidance is the real and only antidote."

The closing of Garfield school and transporting pupils to Newtown to make a strong "Double Unit" school is not favored by the taxpayers.

Folks don't believe that paper will keep a person warm but it will. I know a fellow who has a note in the bank and it keeps him in a sweat all the time.

I remarked to a woman here: "Your husband is mighty good to you. I hear he bought a beautiful washing machine for you."

She replied: "Oh that? He bought that for himself. He heard it was just the thing to make homebrew in."

I asked Joe Sheaffer, one of our local artists, if he ever makes pictures in the nude.

He said: "Gosh no. I always wear at least a working jacket."

"THAT LITTLE GAME" POKER DICE

"Watch the Signals Young man"

A timely message is conveyed to the children of Lancaster city and county on the Safety Posters distributed to the various schools by the Lancaster Automobile Club. A-

The poster depicts a youngster greeting an officer in the heart of an area of heavy traffic.

"Watch the signals, young man," says the officer.

"O. K. with me, Mr. Officer!" replies the school boy, using the lingo of today.

"One of the reasons for the drop in the number of child fatalities, as compared to those involving adults is that the youngsters of the county are learning the importance of obeying traffic signals, whether given by officers of the law or by the School Patrols," said S. Edward Gable, president of the Automobile Club. "This March poster is one of thousands now being put up in the school rooms throughout the county as a part of the campaign of the American Automobile Association and its affiliated clubs to further reduce the toll of deaths resulting from accidents on the streets and highways. The fact that the number of motor fatalities involving both adults and children decreased approximately fifteen percent during 1932, as compared with 1931, has greatly encouraged those interested in the safety movement."

Every school in Lancaster city and most of those throughout the county, including a number of one-room rural schools, receive these monthly posters from the Automobile Club. Mr. Gable says that the schools not receiving them can make arrangements to do so by getting in touch with the Club at 10 and 12 South Prince street, Lancaster. There is no charge to the schools for this service.
