

What Penna's Governor Says

(From page 1)
I ask your help to prevent a great calamity to our Commonwealth and a great disgrace as well. For it would be a bitter shame if Pennsylvania should fail to do what it can to help its own people who are in trouble.

If relief is not given, hundreds of thousands of undernourished children will go without milk, hundreds of thousands will go without shoes, other thousands will be unable to work for lack of clothes. You cannot stand for that.
I have suggested to the Legislature a plan for providing relief on a balanced budget, with a surplus instead of a deficit, with a greater reduction in State expenditures than in any other state, with a proposed cut in local taxes of over $50,000,000, without hamstringing the Departments, without pillaging the Motor Fund, and with no new form of taxes whatsoever.

I am not insisting upon my plan. Any other plan which accomplishes the same things, or better things, will be satisfactory to me. What I am against is burdening the taxpayers just for politics—adding to your burdens or preventing you from getting rid of some of them just to keep some more or less useless and incompetent job holders on the payroll.

Politics has no place in this emergency. What we need nationally, what we need in Pennsylvania, is a long pull and a strong pull and a pull all together for the common good. I cannot understand the blindness of political leaders who are willing to play politics in a time like this, and I doubt if you can either.

Will you give me your help in putting through a plan of relief that will be on the level both with the taxpayers and the unemployed? If that is what you want, let your Senator and Representative learn your will in no uncertain terms. Theodore Roosevelt used to say: "The public good comes first." Certainly it out to now.

WITH THE WITS

Madmen and fools see only through their humor.

Confidences contribute more wit to conversation.

The quality least met with in galantry is love.

In love he who is earliest cured is always best cured.

Elevation is to merit what dress is to a handsome person.

The vivacity which arguments with years is not far from folly.

Our wit sometimes enables us to commit follies with impunity.

A man does not please long when he has only one species of wit.

Religion has nothing more to fear than not being sufficiently understood.

A man may be more cunning than another, but not more cunning than all others.

Why should we despise those who have not wit? It is not a voluntary evil in them.

We have few faults which are not more excusable than the means we take to conceal them.

We are sometimes less unhappy in being deceived by those we love than in being undecieved by them.

Coquettes make a merit of being jealous of their lovers, to conceal their being envious of other women.

A city man wants a farm for esthetic reasons, but that always means putting a tenant on it or a couple of hired men.

Credit Italy's Progress to Fascist Reform Law

The educational reforms introduced by the Fascist government during the ten years of its existence are far-reaching. It is enough to read the history of Italy since 1815 to regard with intense sympathy her struggle for nationhood, writes Howard R. Marraro in Current History.

After fighting for the right to become a united nation for more than fifty years she began her effort to build a nation from a heterogeneous population that was more than 75 per cent illiterate, with no money, no industry, no railroads and very limited natural resources. In spite of the shock of the World war and the series of economic and social disturbances which followed, the Italians have reduced illiteracy to 21 per cent, and they have created a school system which endows the new generation with energy of thought and will, and seeks to develop a culture that truly represents the manifold powers of the Italian race.

Because Fascism exalts and enables those qualities which assure the greatness of Italy, and since the problem of its greatness is above all a problem of education and culture, Mussolini has rightly defined Gentile's educational reforms as "the most Fascist of all the Fascist reforms."

All BUNDLES Must Be Left at the DOOR...

STRANGE ruling! Yet a ruling that is adhered to strictly by every church. The bundles in question are WORRY, CARE. They must be left at the door when you enter your Church. And when you come out again, the bundles will be gone! No matter how heavy your burdens, no matter how long or far you have carried them, they will be lifted from you as you enter. Remember that! When things are darkest, and you are weary, and the hill ahead looks too steep, and you feel that you cannot take another step, remember your Church.

Leave Worry and Care at Home

Your Church offers you strength, rest, courage. Let your Church help you. Come Let your Church help you. Come often. Come in sorrow, but come, too, in joy. For though the Church can make your sorrow less bitter it can also make your joy more sweet. Come to Church next Sunday and leave WORRY and CARE at the door.
